U. S. AND STATE COURTS ACT TO END HUEY'S RULE

Troops Barred on Election Day.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The courts intervened on two fronts today in the political battle of troops, police, and legislature being waged between Senator Huey P. Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

In the East Baton Rouge District court Judge W. Carruth Jones issued a temporary injunction restraining Senator Long from using his state police force during the congressional primary election of Sept. 11. The order was made returnable for a hearing on Sept. 13.

Federal Court Takes Hand.

The federal government stepped into the conflict for the first time when United States District Judge Wayne G. Borah granted a restraining order on the petition of two citizens against the state appointed registrar of voters, R. J. Gregory, commanding him not to remove the names of any voters from the list to be used in the congressional primary.

The registration office is still in the possession of Senator Long's National Guardsmen, who have controled it for more than a month.

The petition before Judge Jones was filed by Mayor Walmsley, Superintendent of Police George Reyer, and two other New Orleans officials. It attacked the constitutionality of the act of the recent special legislative session creating the state police.

Warns of Clash Danger.

Unless the courts prevent the policing of the city by the state police force, the petition stated, there will be a clash of authority which "will seriously endanger the peace, lives and property of the inhabitants of New Orleans on election day."

The petition described the state force as "outlaw police" and declared that city officials would preserve their right to govern the city "by arms, if necessary." The city will eject or imprison "any purported agent or employé" of the state bureau of identification and investigation, or the titular head of the state constabulary, who enters the "city to perform the illegal functions attempted to be conferred upon them by the acts of the legislature," the petition says.

"People Being Robbed."

It was further alleged in the Walmsley petition that the acts of the special session of the legislature were passed "in order to permit and empower the now dominant faction in this state to rob the people of New Orleans of their right to a fair vote and a full count."

In addition it charged that "it is the intention of the said bureau of identification and investigation to send into the city of New Orleans at the primary election on Sept. 11 hordes of partisan employés to take away from the people of this city the constitutional rights."

Vice Inquiry on Air.

An amazing tale of New Orleans graft and vice flowed over the radio this afternoon as Long's legislative investigating committee broadcast the stories of 14 witnesses for the benefit of the voters in the primary election.

That election will decide the power of the senator in this community and therefore in the state. It is between his own faction and that of the old regulars, the New Orleans political ring dominated by Mayor Walmsley.

The "Kingfish," as counsel of the committee, brought graft close to the mayor today in evidence which even he said was "too raw" to be printed or read to the public. It disclosed complaints of the widening area of the red light district, the plight of property owners, the wide open handbooks and gambling houses, and specific instances of protection money paid to the police.

Plans Impeachment Charges.

This should be enough in any ordinary election to blow an administration out of office. As the mayor is not running, however, it is the plan of Senator Long, as announced to the committee, to bring impeachment charges before the legislature. One candidate on the opposing ticket was smirched as a drunkard and roisterer.

"I have wanted to show the committee the general horoscope of graft and corruption," said the senator at the close of today's two and a half hour hearing. "This would ordinarily require investigators and preparation, but it is wide open in this community that all but three witnesses have volunteered. It is a complete 100 per cent picture that you now have in the records. It now remains to trace amounts to officials. We want auditors in the city hall, which is rotten and corrupt. We may have to open lock boxes. We

Five Slain, One Shot; Confesses Killing Seven

Fulton, Ill., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Three men and two women were shot to death here today and another man was critically wounded before a policeman's bullet halted the killer, Fred Blink, 45 years old, a truck operator. Blink said he had also slain two other men. Police were searching for the bodies.

Names of the dead:

John Hamilton, a farmer of Fulton.

Mrs. Tim H. Corrick Jr. of Des Moines, Ia.

Henry Menje of Belvidere.

Mrs. Jennie Walter of Sterling, Ill.

Webb Collier, Sterling, Ill., brother of Mrs. Walter.

The wounded man was Joseph Collier. The police believed the other two men whom Blink said he had slain were Lee Hamilton, brother of the dead farmer, and Fred Van Zuiden.

Slayer Shot Twice.

Blink, who was shot twice, once when he tried to kill himself and once by Policeman Frank Kustes, was taken to a hospital at Clinton, Ia.

Blink gave no reason for the slayings, but his wife said that he and Hamilton jointly operated the farm where the shootings occurred and that Hamilton owed Blink money.

Menje, Webb Collier, Mrs. Corrick, and Mrs. Walter were slain in Hamilton's farmhouse by Blink. Hamilton was slain when Blink pursued him across the Mississippi river bridge near by. Joseph Collier was wounded as he came in the path of the gunfire at the bridge approach, but witnesses were unable to determine whether Blink had shot him deliberately.

Hears Shooting on Bridge.

Policeman Kustes was returning to Fulton from Clinton when he heard the shooting on the bridge. He stopped his automobile and, using the car as a shield, opened fire on Blink with his pistol. Blink turned his shotgun on himself and inflicted a face wound. A moment later one of Kustes' shots struck him and he fell to the pavement near the bridge. He will recover.

When Blink was questioned at the hospital he told the police he had killed four people at the Hamilton farmhouse before shooting Hamilton. He also stated he had killed two others.

11,000 Street Car and Bus Workers Strike in Tokio

TOKIO, Sept 5 (Wednesday).—(AP)—All members of the Transport Workers' union, estimated at 11,000, went on strike today, tying up the municipal street car and bus system. The companies maintained a skeleton service with strike breakers. There were no disorders. The strike was a protest against threatening discharges and pay cuts.

THINKS HE SPENT $158 OF HIS FIRM'S MONEY ON SPREE; HANGS SELF

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Overcome by remorse because he thought he had spent $158 of his firm's money on a drunken spree, Thomas Donnelly, White Plains salesman, his mind still befuddled by alcohol, hanged himself today. Half an hour later his boss found the money where Donnelly himself had concealed it.

Donnelly, who worked for an auto accessory concern, had secreted the money for safekeeping before he set out for a night of whoopee late yesterday. His employers and the police, attempting to reconstruct the case today, expressed the belief that Donnelly, who had an excellent record, forgot he had hidden the cash.

The office manager found the body. In a pocket he found notes. One addressed to him read: "Dear Harry: I've been cleaned. The office money is gone." The other read: "Dear Agnes: Good-by, dear. Take care of the baby."

TRY NEW PLAN TO STOP TRAFIC TICKET FIXING

Police Commissioner Allman issued an order last night which he believes will end much of the "fixing" of trafic tickets.

Commanding officers were instructed to forward to the commissioner's office every morning the duplicate summons slips remaining in every policeman's order book at the end of his tour of duty. These are copies of the summonses retained by the offending motorists and those sent to the Trafic court.

By comparing the duplicates sent him with those appearing on the court docket, Commissioner Allman will be able to learn the extent of ticket fixing. Several recent cases have come to light of motorists sending scores of summonses to friends connected with the courts.

SEARCH FOR GANG STEALING 9 TONS OF EXPLOSIVES

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP)—A desperate game of hide and seek, with nearly nine tons of high explosives and a larcenous gang on one side and police on the other, was being played in southern California tonight.

While police of the metropolitan area came upon a presumably hot trail of the big cache of stolen dynamite and powder near the palatial home of Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, estranged film couple, a new theft of explosives was reported.

2,000 Dyers Face Lockout; NRA Blamed

More than 2,000 employés of 39 cleaning and dyeing plants will be locked out this morning, it was announced by the owners of the plants last night. The lockout will also affect approximately 5,000 retail tailors who will be unable to send their clients' work to the plants.

The lockout on behalf of the 39 plants was declared by F. W. Crowley, president of the Cleaning and Dyeing Plant Owners Association of Chicago, after a meeting of the 76 members of the association at the Palmer house. The other 37 members, who own smaller plants and employ about 1,000 men, did not take the action. Mr. Crowley is the head of the City Dye Works, one of the plants joining in the lockout.

Mr. Crowley said that the lockout was the direct result of the failure of the NRA to enforce the cleaning and dyeing code provisions in this district, resulting in plants outside the association being able to furnish the service at a lower cost.

Blames Johnson and NRA.

"We have no quarrel with organized labor," Mr. Crowley said, "and have always been satisfied with our employés, who are all union members. However, we are not taking in enough money to pay their wages. We are faced with cutthroat competition, several large cleaning and dyeing plants outside the association servicing garments three for $1, while we have obeyed the code provision and are charging a minimum of 75 cents per garment. The association is a member of the NRA, and, while these plants outside the association have not signed the code, it was understood they came under its provisions.

"With the present existing conditions in Chicago, we feel it is only fair to place the blame where it rightfully belongs, namely: on the NRA and Gen. Johnson for their failure to carry out their agreement with the cleaning industry, in which a code was agreed upon, recommended by Gen. Johnson and approved by President Roosevelt last Nov. 12.

Await Washington Action.

"Weighing carefully all the existing circumstances and conditions, it is our recommendation that the industry stand by and await further developments that will doubtless yet come from Washington or our local authorities."

While 39 members of the association voted for the lockout last night, 14 other members were against it. Five members did not vote and 18 others walked out before the vote was taken.

Another meeting of the association members will be held at 1 o'clock this afternoon at which it will be decided whether other members will join the lockout or whether steps can be taken to end it. Mr. Crowley said that Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney will be asked to take a hand to enforce the code agreement if the code authority takes no action.

BARE LAWYER'S OFFICE AS DEN OF DILLINGER GANG

Piquett Rooms Used by Outlaws.

Robbery plans were made by John Dillinger's lieutenants in Attorney Louis Piquett's office in the downtown district, according to federal agents who revealed details yesterday of the confession of Arthur W. O'Leary, investigator for Piquett.

ARTHUR O'LEARY.

O'Leary, Piquett, and five others have been arrested and charged with harboring Dillinger before he was shot to death by federal agents. O'Leary's confession is said to have revealed that the Dillinger gang maintained a "general office" in Piquett's rooms in the Builders' building at La Salle street and Wacker drive, while federal agents were hunting the desperado.

Dillinger "Near at Hand."

According to investigators, O'Leary in his confession did not say that Dillinger himself visited the office. This point was amplified later by United States Attorney Dwight H. Green. "I cannot say that Dillinger ever attended any of the gang's conferences in Piquett's office," Mr. Green said, "but he was close around there, at least."

O'Leary's confession, federal agents said, described how men and women of the Dillinger gang gathered in the law office to work out details of their "ventures." Arrangements also were made in the office, according to the agents, for the remodeling of the features of Dillinger and of Homer Van Meter, a Dillinger associate who was slain recently in St. Paul.

The actual plastic surgery, however, took place in the home of James Probasco at 2509 North Crawford avenue, investigators said. Probasco, arrested after Dillinger was killed, leaped to his death from a window in the federal agents' office in the loop.

New Charge Against Piquett.

As the use of Attorney Piquett's office by the gang was being disclosed, a new charge was placed by the government against Piquett, who has declared that he will fight the first charge of harboring Dillinger on the ground that he acted only in the rôle of attorney for the outlaw.

The new charge against Piquett is that of harboring and concealing a fugitive in the person of Dr. Wilhelm Loeser, now under arrest as the physician who performed the operations on the faces of Dillinger and Van Meter.

This new charge is based on a case in which Loeser was sentenced to Leavenworth prison for violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic act. Loeser was paroled in December, 1932, through the efforts of Piquett, after serving one year of a three year term. After two months Loeser ceased reporting to the parole officer, federal agents said. They asserted that Attorney Piquett knew these facts and prevented the apprehension of Loeser by failing to take any action.

Federal Grand Jury Impaneled.

The federal grand jury for September was impaneled yesterday by Judge John P. Barnes and will hear the evidence in the case against the seven charged with harboring Dillinger.

Defendants with Attorney Piquett, O'Leary, and Dr. Loeser are Dr. Harold Cassidy, who is charged with aiding in the plastic surgery; William Finerty and his wife, Ella, in whose Calumet City home Dillinger is said to have taken refuge, and Marie Conforti, sweetheart of Van Meter.

Assistant United States Attorney Leo J. Hassenauer indicated yesterday that several days may be required for the presentation of all the government evidence in the case. It was understood that several of those in custody may be used as prosecution witnesses against Piquett. Besides O'Leary, Loeser and Cassidy are said to have confessed.

Faces Trial in Wisconsin.

Darlington, Wis., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Prosecution of Attorney Louis Piquett for violation of the Wisconsin blue sky law is planned for December despite his arrest in Chicago, H. J. Beardsley, district attorney of Lafayette county, said today.

Piquett is charged in Lafayette county with selling stock in the Pennsylvania Lime company in 1933 without a Wisconsin state license. Beardsley said that farmers in the county were swindled out of $7,500 in the stock sales. Piquett furnished $5,000 bond pending trial of the case.

Senators Hear of World Trust on Submarines

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Disclosures that an American and a British armament maker had combined to dominate world submarine building, with Sir Basil Zaharoff as their supersalesman, were written today into the records of the senate munitions investigating committee.

That story was unfolded during the day long questioning of three officials of the Electric Boat company of New London, Conn., and New York.

BASIL ZAHAROFF.

That concern, now building submarines for the United States navy, was shown to have an arrangement with Vickers, Ltd., foremost of British armament companies, through which business was divided and few submarines were constructed throughout the world without one or the other getting a share in the profits.

Letters written by Zaharoff, probably the first ever published, were introduced to show that in 1925 he had directed officers of the Electric Boat company to ask that the state department have the American ambassador in Spain, Alexander P. Moore, use his influence to have the firm making submarines for the Spanish government keep its contract with the Electric Boat company.

"When you inform me that your government has given the necessary instructions to their ambassador in Madrid," wrote Sir Basil, "I will have no difficulty in persuading the British to do ditto, ditto, ditto."

Still More to Tell.

Still on the stand when the hearings closed for the night were Henry R. Carse, president of Electric Boat; L. Y. Spear, vice president, and Henry R. Sutphin, another vice president. They will resume their testimony tomorrow.

From the moment they took the oath at 10 a. m. there poured out a series of revelations about a business surrounded by rumor, whisper, and mystery.

Among them were:

A letter, transmitted by Carse in 1917, containing the suggestion by a firm of lawyers that Zaharoff avoid payment of income tax to the United States on money received from the Electric Boat company.

A letter from Zaharoff that he had received a large payment from the Electric Boat company with which he was "doing the needful"—a disclosure immediately followed by intimations by committee members that some of it was used for bribery.

That the Electric Boat company paid Zaharoff $766,000 from 1919 to 1930. The amount paid from 1912 to 1919 was not revealed, although records indicated it might approximate $1,360,000.

Spanish Percentage High.

Still other developments were:

The statement by Spear that the commission of 5 per cent on all profits from the Spanish business was "unusually high" by comparison with other commissions.

A letter indicating that the British government did not know that Vickers was sharing its profits from submarine

Labor Leaders Deny Walkout Failure.

Crowd Perils Workers

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Tear gas and pistols were brought into play by police tonight who sought to liberate some 300 workers who were held prisoners inside the Pepperell company textile plant where more than 10,000 persons had congregated.

The workers, who just completed a late shift, were huddled against the side of the factory building inside the gates as the crowd taunted them from outside. Factory officials had just announced they were considering setting up sleeping and eating quarters inside the building when shots rang out, the bullets being fired into the air. Acrid tear gas fumes spread into the crowd.

Then a fleet of cars, headed by police cruising machines, sped through the gates, loaded the workers aboard, and raced out through the crowd, which dispersed with tear stained eyes.

More Join Strike.

Paterson, N. J., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Twenty thousand workers in the Paterson silk manufacture area will join the textile strike movement tomorrow, Ell Keller, general manager of the Associated Silk Workers of Paterson, announced tonight. Members of the industrial relations board of Paterson, the local arbitration unit, were still undecided whether to authorize the walkout which, it had been agreed, would not be called until 40 per cent of the nation's looms were stilled.

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—With leaders of the nation-wide textile strike claiming "tremendous success," spokesmen for the cotton, woolen and silk textile industries declared today that on the basis of reports received from manufacturers the strike is a failure.

George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile institute, with sheafs of telegrams pouring in from every part of the textile field north and south, announced three workers had remained at work for every one who went on strike. According to Mr. Sloan, New Bedford, Mass., was hardest hit with eighteen mills closed and only three in operation.

On the other hand, Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America and chairman of the general strike committee, claimed at strike headquarters at Washington "easily 300,000," or half the strength of the working force, are out. He asked newspaper men to hold to his statement that 85 per cent of the industry would be "tied up tight as a drum by the end of the week."

Says Victory Assured.

Running his hands through a heap of telegrams on his desk, Mr. Gorman read message after message from various sections declaring that the walkout in these mills had been 100 per cent.

"The strike is moving with the impetus of a landslide and with the same irresistible force," he declared. "The strike movement is irresistible. Victory is assured."

Union members "responded to the strike call to a man," said Mr. Gorman, "and like regiments timed to go over the top on the minute, this splendid army of working men and women obeyed orders and walked out."

Mr. Sloan was equally confident that "if intimidation of loyal workers can be held down" the strike will fail.

Calls Strike "Spotty."

"The predicted complete tieup has materialized as a very spotty strike," he said. "The fog in the south is clearing up. Information now reaching us shows that with the exception of a half a dozen centers the strike is wholly ineffective. Taken as a whole in both the north and south employés are working three to one.

"We have reports from mills employing 346,000 out of the 410,000 employés in the cotton industry. In the mills reporting, 154,000 persons are at work in the south and 100,000 in the north. Mills reporting from the south show 60,000 not at work and from the north 32,000 not at work. On this basis 73 per cent of employés in mills reporting are working.

"Flying Squadrons."

"We are receiving telegrams from the south particularly about 'flying squadrons and motorcades of workers going from one mill to another.' It remains to be seen whether a minority whose leadership fail to obtain the confidence of the majority can successfully resort to coercion to force its will.

"We haven't made any predictions since this strike was called. We are not making any now. But we are giving these facts out exactly as they came to us in the hope that the public and more particularly the mill employes will compare them with predictions made by strike leaders and draw their own conclusions."

Peter Van Horn, president of the National Federation of Textiles and chairman of the silk textile code authority, following a meeting called at the code authority's headquarters to survey developments, declared that only 5 per cent of the silk workers answered the strike call. In Pennsylvania, where is centered almost half of the industry's total production, only 3 of a total of 400 silk mills were shut down, according to Mr. Van Horn, who announced that reports showed conditions in New Jersey, notably the Paterson area, are normal.

On the Other Hand.

Against Mr. Van Horn's estimates, Frank Schweitzer, general secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Silk Workers and chairman of the silk division strike committee, announced here that 60 per cent of the silk industry had been tied up by the strike on the first day of operation following Labor day. He called Mr. Van Horn's statement that the strike is a failure "ridiculous."

Arthur G. Besse, president of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, stated it is his opinion, based on reports from woolen textile plants, that not more than 10 per cent of the workers walked out.

The strike had little effect on the woolen industry in Passaic, N. J., where three large mills already were closed. Whether it is effective will be determined tomorrow when the Botany and Samuel Hurd mills are scheduled to reopen and next Monday when the Forstmann plant is scheduled to resume operations.

Labor Board May Act.

Another division of the textile industry, the silk throwers, totaling 25,000, mostly in Pennsylvania, have been ordered out tomorrow. At St. Louis and Kansas City 15,000 cotton garment workers were ordered out by the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union.

Meanwhile, the national labor relations board remained at its post scanning reports of the strike situation. There were strong intimations that the board would within a week appoint a three man board, clothe it with some of its statutory powers, and assign it to the task of making a quick but thorough investigation.

The unions are demanding a 30-hour week with no reduction in pay and their recognition by employers.

VIOLENCE IN SOUTH

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Violence flared today and more was threatened as adherents of the United Textile Workers of America sought to extend the general strike into every southern cotton mill.

Eighty thousand of the approximately 160,000 workers in the two states watched the battle or turned in themselves to aid organized pickets. Approximately 250 cotton textile and silk mills were closed, with a similar number operating.

Georgia also experienced disorder as the union, turning to with a will after the Labor day lay-off, began its shut down in that state. Workers in the Macon and Porterdale plants of the Bibb Manufacturing company stopped automobiles and allegedly threatened office workers, and at Porterdale a crowd of women and children halted a train until they were swept aside by fire hose.

Georgia returns indicated 21,000 of the state's approximately 55,000 workers had joined the movement.

Reports from Birmingham and other Alabama mill centers said a third of that state's active workers were now idle. Fifteen thousand were reported out. The state's estimated cotton textile employment is about 40,000.

Carolina "flying squadrons" in the Gastonia area broke open doors at some mills, shut off power, and unbelted machines as workers were ordered from their frames. The "flying squadrons" ranged in number from 200 to 1,000 men. Many mills closed at their mere approach "until further notice."

National Guardsmen at Greer, S. C., were reinforced by officers with machine guns and other guardsmen from Lyman when an outbreak was threatened after minor disorders before time for the mill shifts to change, but no serious trouble developed.

76,000 OUT IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston, Mass., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The general textile strike gripped New England in earnest tonight, but estimates of its effectiveness varied widely. Reports indicated approximately 157,000 employers were at work, with about 76,000 remaining away from their tasks.

The strike shut down all but four mills in New Bedford, one of the largest textile centers in the country, and threw 14,000 out of work. It saw 8,500 go idle at Manchester, N. H., where the big Amoskeag mills were closed by the company.

In Vermont it was close to 80 per cent effective, but in Maine not many more than 1,000 were reported to have quit their jobs. In Connecticut, where 32,000 operatives are ordinarily employed in the industry, 7,000 were reported idle, but the situation was complicated by the fact that many plants were not affected by the ordered walkout.

In Rhode Island a newspaper survey showed only 4,000 of the state's 50,000 textile operatives out, but union officials said this was 16,000 too small.

In Massachusetts the textile union claims 43,000 workers are idle of 116,000 normally employed. The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers estimated not more than 25 per cent out.

Violence was principally confined to Fall River, where an assault on a woman worker resulted in a general mêlée outside the big Pepperell plant and brought two arrests as police closed in on the combatants.

AURORA MILLS UNAFFECTED.

Employes of the Aurora Cotton mills, the only textile mills in Illinois, remained at work yesterday. Of the 175 employed, between 25 and 30 are members of the union. A strike vote was taken with this group, but the necessary two-thirds majority was lacking and all of the employes continued to work. With the exception of a few small mills in Indiana, these are the only textile mills west of New England.

COLUMN OF RED ANTS ATTACK WEALTHY PARALYZED WIDOW

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 4.—(AP)—A wealthy paralyzed widow, victim of a fierce attack by a column of thousands of red ants, was reported recovering at her home in Britton, Okla., today.

Had not a neighbor and a night watchman, attracted by her screams, entered her home two and a half hours after the attack began, fatal injuries might have been inflicted upon Mrs. A. W. Gott, owner of numerous farm properties.

When rescued she was almost unconscious, and her eyes were swollen shut. Mrs. Gott, an invalid for the last five years, usually is cared for by a young woman employé. The girl, however, had been given the night off.

DR. SCHACHT CUTS OFF GOEBBELS' SUPPLY OF CASH FOR PROPAGANDA

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The flood of Nazi propaganda abroad is menaced by a serious drouth because of lack of funds, it was stated in reliable quarters here.

It was reported that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, minister of economics, has notified Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels that in the future no public money will be available for propaganda in other nations. It was understood that Goebbels, propaganda minister, has been expending not less than $80,000,000 annually for this purpose.

German professors and other prominent persons making visits to other nations frequently have been granted handsome allowances for spreading the Nazi gospel abroad.

HIRE GUARDS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF CARBIDE PLANT

The Carbon and Carbide Chemical corporation was preparing yesterday to resume construction of its $10,000,000 plant in Whiting. More than 100 men were sworn in yesterday as special policemen for duty in the plant, which has been picketed by members of the Lake county [Ind.] Building Trades council since construction work was halted last July.

The company undertook construction of its own plant, paying 88 cents an hour for labor, claiming this course was open to them under the chemical code of the National Recovery act. Members of the trades council who walked out demanded $1.25 an hour as required in the construction workers' code.

TWO KIDNAPED IN SOUTH HAVEN; SET FREE HERE

Robbers Abduct Theater Man and Janitor.

H. C. Boughton, manager of the Center theater in South Haven, Mich., and his janitor, Herman Severeng, were kidnaped yesterday by two robbers and driven 120 miles to Chicago, where they were put out of the bandit car in Jackson park. The gunmen got $430 in a holdup of the theater before the kidnaping.

Throughout the ride to Chicago Boughton feared he would be put to death or held for ransom, despite assurance of the bandits that he and Severeng would be released. The gunmen explained, Boughton said, that they had seized him and Severeng only to forestall pursuit.

No Alarm in South Haven.

So swiftly did the robbers move that no alarm was raised in South Haven. Nor was the absence of the two men noted during the day. The first report of the kidnaping was made by Boughton to the Woodlawn police a few minutes after his release.

The robbers entered the theater, a motion picture house, shortly after 9 o'clock in the morning, Boughton said. He had gone to his office to get the receipts of the holiday week-end and put them in a bank.

Boughton was compelled to open the theater safe. When this was found to be empty he was searched and the money was discovered on him. At this point Severeng, who was on duty, entered the office and was covered with a revolver by one of the robbers.

Forced Into Robbers' Car.

"We were forced to get into the bandit car and told to close our eyes," Boughton said. "I thought we were going to be taken out of town and killed. One of the bandits laughed at me when I expressed my fears.

"I then thought I was being kidnaped for ransom and told them I had no money. The same bandit said: 'Don't worry, buddy; we're going a long way, but you won't be hurt. You'll be set out as soon as we can make a break.' But I was not easy until we were freed at 2:30 in the afternoon."

STRIKERS EXTEND PICKETING OF BUS COMPANY TODAY

Striking employés of the Chicago Motor Coach company, members of local 1022 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway, and Motor Coach Employés of America, will extend their picketing campaign against the company today, it was announced yesterday by Ralph J. Stoltzmann, president of the local.

Mr. Stoltzmann said that the local expects to have 1,000 pickets on duty, including a large number recruited from other unions. The coach company has maintained its schedules since the strike started on Aug. 16.

SEIZE DEBUTANTE FOR NONSUPPORT OF HER FATHER

Brookville, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Miss Josephine Litch, debutante daughter of Thomas K. Litch, member of one of this community's oldest and wealthiest families, was arrested today upon her father's complaint that he was living on $1.50 weekly from a relief agency because she would not support him.

The father, 48 years old, specifically charged his daughter with desertion and nonsupport. Investigators said he collapsed on the street from hunger a few days ago and was treated in a hospital.

Heir to a big fortune, Litch some years ago established a trust fund providing for his wife and daughter. He now charges his daughter refuses to aid him, forcing him to go on the relief rolls while his funds and estate are tied up because of litigation with Mrs. Litch.

Under the trust fund, Litch says, his daughter was to receive $100 a month.

The trust fund was established after relatives testified in court that Litch was incompetent to manage his own affairs.

CAPITAL WELTER OF CONFUSION AS ELECTIONS NEAR

Conflicting Orders from U. S. Bewilder Trade.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—With the congressional elections approaching and political pressure and expediency operating even more actively than usual, the New Deal begins to present the appearance of confusion worse confounded.

Policies, programs, orders and rulings affecting industry and agriculture are being promulgated, amended and rescinded so bewilderingly that private enterprise cannot tell from one day to another where it is at.

Gen. Hugh Johnson's arbitrary order for the review of coal prices in Washington produced such confusion in the solid fuel trade that the members of the coal code authority resigned in a body.

Seeks Decentralization.

For months President Roosevelt has been preaching the decentralization of industry and in various ways has been carrying the theory into practice. He has contended that there is too great a concentration of industry in large cities for the economic welfare of capital and labor. He wants factories to move to smaller communities.

In the Tennessee valley experiment, the President is seeking to draw industrial population away from the big centers. His aim in the subsistence homesteads comprehends the diffusion of industry and the creation of a new type of worker, half craftsman and half farmer.

Presumably the decentralization of industry would result largely from the migration of factories to smaller communities because of some advantage to be attained thereby. But the moment the decentralization movement got under way the New Dealers flew to arms against it.

Run Into Wage Complication.

The regional labor board in New York City asked the national labor relations board to rule on the legality of the removal of industrial plants from large cities to other areas to escape payment of the wages demanded by city employés.

The regional board recommended that "steps must be taken to prevent employers from escaping their obligations to national recovery by moving to a community where with impunity they can pay a far lower wage."

The regional labor board hailed a decision of the New York Supreme court justice, Samuel I. Rosenman, as upholding in principles its contentions.

The ruling was an application of Sam Farulla, president of the Doll and Toy Workers' union, for an injunction restraining Ralph A. Freundlich, Inc., from violating a contract with the regional labor board. The justice said the company might be enjoined from moving to Massachusetts if it could be shown the move was an attempt to escape the provisions of the NRA agreement.

Section 7A in Big Snarl.

Interpretation of the famous section 7A, the labor collective bargaining provision of NIRA, is in a worse snarl than ever. The latest development is an attack made today on the constitutionality of the section by the Worth Steel company of Claymont, Del., at a hearing before the national steel labor relations board. The company also contended that the board is without jurisdiction because of the alleged unconstitutionality of the congressional resolution and executive order under which the board was created.

The administration of section 7A is a welter of conflicting rulings and interpretations. Only the other day the national labor relations board in deciding the Houde Engineering corporation case, rejected the principle of minority representation adopted by the President in the automobile industry settlement and ruled that the agents selected by a majority of employés should be exclusively authorized to bargain with employers.

Section 7A provides that "employés shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing."

Can Pick Who They Like.

On Aug. 23, 1933, Messrs. Johnson and Richberg, endeavoring to set forth the "plain meaning" of section 7A, held that "employés can choose any one they desire to represent them, or they can choose to represent themselves. Employers likewise can make collective bargains with organized employés, or individual agreements with those who choose to act individually."

In the settlement of the "captive" coal mine dispute on Oct. 30, the statement of terms issued by the White House contained the declaration: "The representatives chosen by a majority will be given an immediate conference and separate conferences will be held with any representatives of a substantial minority."

On Feb. 1 of this year the President issued an executive order generally taken to mean that, when an election was held to choose representatives for collective bargaining, those selected by a majority of the employés were to represent all. Immediately thereafter Johnson and Richberg issued another statement "interpreting" the executive order. While "as a practical proposition," they said, "the national labor board would find it impossible to deal with every controversy that might arise between rival groups of employés, each seeking to represent a fraction of the employé opinion," nevertheless "the selection of majority representatives does not restrict or qualify in any way the right of minority groups of employés or of individual employés to deal with their employer.

"Section 7a affirms the rights of employés to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing; and such concerted activites can be lawfully carried on by either majority or minority groups, organizing and selecting such representatives in such manner as they see fit."

The next step was taken by the national labor board, in its ruling on March 2 in the Denver Tramway corporation case. Ignoring the opinions of Johnson and Richberg, it held that the union supported by the majority would set the conditions for all the workers in its negotiations, and that the management must recognize it as the exclusive agency of the employés for collective bargaining.

In his settlement of the threatened automobile strike the President disregarded this ruling, as well as his own executive order of Feb. 1, and announced that "the employers agree to bargain collectively with the freely chosen representatives of groups."

The arbitration agreement provided that "if there be more than one group, each bargaining committee shall have total membership pro rata to the number of men each member represents."

Now They're All Reversed.

The national labor relations board now, in effect, reverses these decisions of the President, the recovery administrator, and the general counsel of the NRA, and returns to the attitude of the national labor board, merely making the concession that individual employés and minority groups may retain the right to present grievances. The practical effect of this ruling will be that any union that succeeds in gathering the adherence of 51 per cent or more of the workers, whether it is a company union, an A. F. of L. union, or an independent union, will be able to establish the conditions of work of the other 49 per cent or less.

The employers in the cotton garment industry flatly refused to comply with the President's order to reduce working hours from 40 to 30 a week and thus raise the pay of their 250,000 employés 10 per cent. They said they could not comply and continue to operate at any profit at all.

Employment at Peak.

The cotton garment industry was employing more people last March than at the peak in 1929; since its code was adopted it has increased wages in its northern mills by about 55 per cent and in the southern by about 85 per cent; in "substandard" shops the wage increase has been as high as 200 per cent; hourly wages in the industry are 20 per cent higher even than in July of 1929; these wage increases have already been reflected in an increase in wholesale prices of garments—bought mainly by working people—of 40 to 60 per cent; a new wage rise would mean a further increase in prices of garments and a falling off in consumption, which would be reflected back in a reduced volume of employment.

KNELL OF DEATH SOUNDS IN N. Y. FOR 'CLIP JOINTS'

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The death knell for "clip joints" and the employment of gigolos and hostesses in cabarets was sounded today by Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan.

Beginning tonight, no licensed cabaret will be allowed to "employ or permit to remain therein any person or persons acting in the capacity of hostess, companion or dance partner, whether upon salary, commission, or at sufferance." This was one of the new regulations issued by Commissioner O'Ryan this afternoon.

Another rule aimed at the "clip joint" provides that licensed cabarets shall, before serving a patron, supply him with a plainly printed menu or schedule showing the price of each item of food, drink or other refreshment and any cover or minimum charge. Aiming at the "taxi dance halls," another regulation prohibits hostesses from mingling with guests, except on the dance floor. Booths and private rooms are outlawed.

SINCLAIR FINDS HIS PLAN IS SAME AS ROOSEVELT'S

New Deal Has Caught Up with Us, He Says.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Upton Sinclair, radical, former Socialist, and now Democratic nominee for governor of California, emerged from a conference with President Roosevelt this evening and proclaimed to the world that his "Epic" plan and the New Deal are identical in all respects.

"A year ago our Epic plan was projected a little further into the future than the New Deal, but the New Deal has caught up with us and we are now one and the same," said Socialist Sinclair.

That was the answer, awaited with national interest and speculation, to the fascinating question of whether the New Deal would embrace this Socialist, choice of California Democracy, and his program of a collectivist society and a changed form of government.

"Interested Now in Our Share."

"Since the New Deal has caught up with us," said Sinclair, "we are now only interested in getting our share for California."

Mr. Sinclair, a mousie little man with gray hair, a thin face and a high pitched voice, expressed in one breath his determination not to disclose anything the President had said, and a few seconds later declared the President had insisted that he remain two hours.

"It was the most interesting two hour talk I ever had in my life," he said. "The interview was the President's own fault, for I had intended to stay only an hour.

"I talked with one of the kindest, most genial, frankest, and most open minded and lovable persons I ever met. Out in California we speculate on what he's doing and how much he knows about what we are trying to do. I am happy to be able to tell the people of California that if he knows as much about the other 47 states as he knows about us he's a marvel.

"I told him I had met one other President, Teddy, and that I didn't know which was the franker. That pleased him very much."

Lets Cat Out of Bag.

Mr. Sinclair made a great point of his unwillingness to disclose the subject of his conversation with the President, and then naïvely let the cat out of the bag with this declaration:

"I mustn't tell you anything we discussed, either about politics or the Epic plan."

In granting him the appointment, the White House, at least for public consumption, had placed a specific ban on the question of the California campaign, adding that Mr. Roosevelt had steadfastly refrained from taking a hand in state elections.

Sinclair was asked whether, as a result of his interview with the President, he felt more confident of being elected governor. He immediately realized that this was a fast one and laughed about it, but added:

"I am naturally of a confident nature. So is he."

Sinclair left after the conference for New York, where he was to deliver a radio address and then interview Postmaster General James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Asked what he wished to see Farley about, Sinclair said he merely wanted to meet him and assure him "that I am a loyal New Dealer."

"How, in your opinion, does the Epic plan stack up with the New Deal?" Sinclair was asked.

"They are identical in all respects," he said. "The New Deal in the District of Columbia is doing exactly what we propose. They have 86,000 dependents and they are putting them on land to grow food and in factories to produce goods.

"Production for Use."

"The New Deal is making mattresses in Ohio and stockings in Massachusetts and it is canning in California. All that is production for use and that is what we propose. We have 1¼ million people depending upon public charity and our plan is to put workers on lands and in factories, thereby taking them off the shoulders of the taxpayers."

It was suggested to Mr. Sinclair that his leadership of the Democratic party in California might cause a bolt of the conservatives, imperiling the New Deal seats in congress, and that the radical trend of the Democratic party might cause a national defection of the regulars.

"For every old Tory that goes out, four progressives come in," he replied. "We kiss each Tory on both cheeks and bid him farewell. We have brought 333,000 new members to the Democratic party since Jan. 1."

Sinclair was reminded that Norman Thomas, nominal leader of the Socialist party, had called the Epic plan a "crazy quilt." He replied that it was unfortunate that Mr. Thomas couldn't take time off to find out just what the Epic plan is.

CHICAGO COAL CODE AUTHORITY DECIDES AGAINST RESIGNING

Members of the divisional code authority with jurisdiction over retail coal dealers in the Chicago area, decided yesterday that they would continue to enforce the code in this district, although the national code authority resigned on Monday night as a protest against National Recovery administration handling of their code.

The decision was reached at a conference held in the divisional code authority's headquarters at 180 West Washington street. Before the conference was a bulletin issued by the national authority in which it reviewed the incidents that led to its resignation and charged that the NRA is responsible for the industry's being in a more chaotic condition than ever before.

The principal cause for the resignations, according to the bulletin, was the stand taken by NRA officials that they could revise the code without notice or hearings.

ROBBIE ROBINSON SEWS NRA LABEL INTO FUR COAT

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Declaring that she "is a good cook, but not much at sewing," Miss Frances M. [Robbie] Robinson, executive assistant to Gen. Hugh Johnson, administrator of the NRA, put a gold gift thimble today on the third finger of her right hand—instead of the second finger used by most seamstresses—and sewed the second of the two first NRA labels in the fur industry onto an $800 blue fox fur scarf. The other label was attached to an Alaska seal coat of equal value by Mrs. Grover Whalen.

The event symbolized the entry under the Blue Eagle of the fur manufacturing industry. The ceremony was held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Pennsylvania and was witnessed by approximately 100 members of the fur manufacturing industry and affiliated trades.

CITY HAY FEVER SEASON STARTS ON DOWN GRADE

The hay fever season has reached its peak and has already started on the downward grade, according to O. C. Durham, chief botanist for the Abbott laboratories, who spoke yesterday over radio station WCFL under the auspices of the hay fever committee of the Chicago Woman's club.

It is still too soon, however, for sufferers who took refuge in the northern woods to return to Chicago, Mr. Durham warned. Those who are only mildly affected should remain away another week, while those who are extremely sensitive should not return before Sept. 20, he said.

"During the last week in August," said Mr. Durham, "the average daily pollen count, which was expressed per cubic yard of air [untrained eyes are needed when the count reaches 100]. On Aug. 20 the figure was 460, and on Friday we reached the climax of 670. This lacks considerable of measuring up to last year's all time record of 870 on Sept. 1, but is still higher than any of the other five years for which we have figures.

"On Saturday, Sept. 1, the count dropped to 410, and the rain brought the official record for Sunday down to 77 pollens per cubic yard. Early yesterday the air was still clean, but the count went up when the woods dried."

building and leasing of patents with Electric Boat.

Letters from Sir Charles Craven, Vickers official, to Spear, in which slighting references were made to disarmament conferences.

Disclosure that patents of the Electric Boat concern, leased to an Austrian firm before the war, helped German U-boat building during that conflict.

Ousted by Zaharoff.

Paul Koster, one time Paris representative of Electric, was "fired," it appeared, after Zaharoff wrote a letter in 1927 to Carse in which he protested Koster's "intervention" in the Spanish business and threatened to quit Electric if it continued.

It was asserted by committee members that Zaharoff said he owned stock in both Electric and Vickers, Ltd. Carse and Spear said they knew of no such ownership in their concern.

Pressed by Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rep., N. D.], chairman of the committee, and Senator Bennett Champ Clark [Dem., Mo.], Carse denied that he had attempted to help Zaharoff evade his income tax back in 1917.

Asks if Koster Is Spy.

Later Senator Clark asked if Koster, former Dutch naval officer and one time representative of the Electric Boat company in Paris, was not "an international spy."

"You heard that it was all over Europe that Koster was an international spy?" Carse was asked by Senator Clark.

"Yes, but I didn't believe it, and we never had any evidence to that effect," replied the Electric Boat president.

Talk of Navy Trouble.

There was considerable talk during the day about connections between the Electric Boat concern and the navy department here. At one point Nye asked Spear about a letter in which it was stated that after several years of friction between the staf of the boat company and the navy department the trouble had been settled and the company "promised" awards of contracts for two of three United States submarines to be constructed.

Senator Clark pressed the witnesses to say who had promised the awards.

Spear said he had carried on the negotiations and that the navy department had decided upon the Electric Boat company's designs.

Calls Officer a Friend.

Earlier the committee received a letter from Carse to Zaharoff, written in 1929, in which Carse said: "One of our good friends in the navy department," Rear Admiral Andrew T. Long, had been nominated by President Hoover as a director of the international hydrographic bureau in Monaco.

It was brought out that Long had been a technical adviser to the American delegation at an early naval conference. Carse was asked if he helped Admiral Long get the position, but said he did not.

Spear told the committee in answer to questions that his company did not reveal any American secrets to foreign governments and refused to sell equipment abroad that was being built for the United States navy. He said Electric Boat suffered thereby in doing business abroad. He said he believed others sold identical weapons.

After introduction of Zaharoff's 1925 letter suggesting that the state department be asked to instruct the American ambassador in Spain to lend his weight to help Electric Boat, Spear conceded that he had approached state department officials on that matter. His recollection of the matter, however, was hazy.

There was considerable talk about Japanese armaments. Although Vickers, Ltd., Electric's ally, has connections in Japan, Carse said Zaharoff had not entered "into the Japanese armament picture."

"But he would come into the Japanese picture because of his Vickers' connection," Senator Bone commented.

"That might be true," Spear interposed.

Denies Japanese Contract.

The Electric Boat company, correspondence between Carse and Zaharoff showed, tried to negotiate a contract with Japan in 1927.

A letter from Sir Basil on Nov. 23 said the closing of the proposition with us may occur very soon."

The Electric Boat company head described how a United States intelligence officer approached him and demanded to know about a contract with Japan.

"He grew very indignant," Carse said, "when we told him we had not received a contract."

Senator Clark introduced a letter written in 1920 by Frederick E. Chapin, Washington representative of the Electric Boat Co., which said naval officers had been enlisted in a scheme to send a fleet of American submarines around South America to act as a "showcase for American goods." Such a suggestion, Carse said today, was "mere chit-chat."

In a letter, produced before the senate committee, Zaharoff wrote to officials of the Electric Boat company that Michael Clemenceau, nephew of Georges Clemenceau, France's great war time premier, would be a good agent for them in getting the munitions business of South America.

MAN WHO DESTROYED CARICATURE OF NEW DEAL JAILED AGAIN

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special]—John Smiukse, the 26 year old Latvian, who took it upon himself to destroy a painting which he regarded as an insult to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and soon thereafter found himself a prospective resident for six months of the Westchester county penitentiary, enjoyed a few hours of freedom today, thanks to a legal maneuver known as a writ of habeas corpus.

After three hours' deliberation, Supreme Court Justice William F. Bleakley, before whom the writ was argued, dismissed the motion and Smiukse was sent back to prison.

During the three hours that Justice Bleakley pondered the matter, Smiukse was free—paroled in the custody of an attorney.

PRINCESS MARIA OF ITALY TO WED ARCHDUKE OTTO

Engagement Arranged by King and Zita.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

ROME, Sept. 4.—At a meeting between the families of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and ex-Empress Zita of Austria in the latter's Villa Pianoro at Viareggio, an engagement was arranged today between Princess Maria, youngest child of the Italian house, and Archduke Otto, Hapsburg pretender to the Austrian throne.

Princess Maria was present at the conference, but Archduke Otto is still in Sweden, hunting elk on the island of Oeland with King Gustav V. Princess Maria was born in Rome on Dec. 26, 1914. Archduke Otto was born Nov. 20, 1912 in Villa Wartholz, near Reichenau, lower Austria.

No official announcement will be made, it is understood, until there is a clarification of Otto's position with regard to restoration of the monarchy in Austria and Hungary.

Told by Prince of Luxemburg.

The fact of the engagement, however, was confirmed by Prince Felix, consort of the grand duchess of Luxemburg. The royal couple of Luxemburg as well as the duchess of Parma and her husband, Anthony of Braganza, are guests in Zita's home.

King Victor, Queen Elena and Princess Maria, wearing civilian clothes, went very unostentatiously to Villa Pianoro. They drove in a closed limousine from their summer villa at San Rossore. They talked for an hour with Empress Zita and it is understood the details of the engagement were quickly settled.

After the conference the ex-Empress Zita introduced seven of her eight children who were in the house. They were: Archduchess Adalaida, 20; Archduke Robert, 19; Archduke Felix, 18; Archduke Charles, 16; Archduke Rodolphe, who will be 15 tomorrow; Archduchess Charlotte, 13, and Archduchess Elizabeth, 12.

Father Died in Exile.

The five older children were born in Austria, but in the stormy post-war years Rodolphe and Charlotte were born in Switzerland and Elizabeth in Madrid. Their father, Emperor Karl, who on Nov. 21, 1916, succeeded Franz Josef, long time monarch of the Austro-Hungarian empire, renounced the old throne on Nov. 11, 1918. Karl died in exile at Funchal, Madeira, April 1, 1922.

Princess Maria is the last unmarried child of the Italian royal family, which is the house of Savoy. Her sister, Yolanda, is the wife of Count Bergolo, her sister Mafalda the wife of Prince Philip of Hesse, and her sister Giovanna is queen of Bulgaria, wife of Boris III. Her brother Humbert is heir apparent to the Italian throne. His wife is the former Princess Marie Jose of Belgium.

72 PRECINCTS IN AUSTIN TO VOTE ON LIQUOR SALE

Seventy-eight precincts in four wards will vote soon on the question of permitting the retail sale of liquor. This seemed assured yesterday when petitions asking that the question be included in the November election were filed with City Clerk Peter J. Brady by a delegation headed by William H. Henriksen, treasurer of the Austin Civic council, and former Ald. Wiley W. Mills.

All except six of the precincts are in the old town of Austin, which was dry until repeal. They are: 30th ward, precincts 14 to 17, inclusive, and 19 and 20; 36th ward, precincts 27, 29, 30, 40, 42, 45, 46, and 47; 37th ward, precincts 1 to 55, inclusive, excepting 48, 59, 62, and 63.

The other precincts are in the 8th ward. They are the 28th, 46th, 47th, 53d, and 54th. Accompanying all the petitions, which were signed by about 15,000 voters, was a letter saying they were circulated after a conference with Attorney General Otto Kerner, Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, and Robert L. Taylor, attorney for the election commissioners.

Already there are dry spots in four wards. In the 18th ward, which includes the Beverly Hills residential section, 19 precincts have voted dry. There is one dry precinct in each of the 3d, 6th, and 17th wards.

Bolts Shooting Quiz, Leaps Five Stories to Her Death

Camden, N. J., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Leaping suddenly from the swivel chair in which she had been seated while detectives quizzed her concerning the shooting of a detective in her rooming house, Mrs. Emma Heisler, 38, leaped from a fifth story window of the city hall here today and died.

BURGLARS TAKE SAVINGS DRAWN FOR TRIP ABROAD

Before the bank moratorium in 1933 Mrs. Mary Lorbach, 48 years old, withdrew her savings of $2,500 in cash and $4,000 in negotiable bonds and hid them in a tin can in her apartment at 1931 Larrabee street. Recently she informed neighbors that she was going to give up her job in a carpet weaving plant and use her savings for a trip to Europe. On returning home last night she found that burglars had pried open the window at the rear of her apartment and had taken the money and bonds from their hiding place.

NRA BOOSTS COAL BILL $5,590,000 FOR CITY HOMES

Protesting Brief Warns of Court Test.

The annual coal bill of Chicago home owners has increased approximately $5,590,000 under the NRA, it was disclosed by a survey yesterday. The survey took as its basis a supplementary brief filed with NRA authorities at Washington by the Chicago Real Estate board and the Building Managers' association, attacking the fixing of prices by the Chicago coal code authority.

Four popular varieties of domestic fuel have been boosted to between 79 and 92 cents a ton higher than they were on July 1, 1933, an average of 86 cents. The bituminous coal code took effect at the mines last October, and the retail solid fuel code became operative in February.

Homes Consume 65 Per Cent.

The total increase figure of $5,590,000 was obtained for six and one-half million tons after Andrew Murphy, editor of the trade publication Black Diamond, estimated that 65 per cent of the 10 million tons of coal used in Chicago each year is consumed by homes.

A warning of an impending court test of the price fixing was given in the brief filed at Washington.

"Where the activity of the divisional code authority, pending the investigation in Washington, carries to the point of filing complaints and citing dealers for failure to observe the prices fixed," the brief states, "the resort to the courts in the very near future is inevitable.

"We respectfully submit that to permit these [cost] determinations—to be subjected to a court test on the record made in this case could only reflect unfavorably on the NRA and certainly should be avoided."

One Day Notice of Hearing.

The brief charges that while the public was to be given a chance to oppose the higher prices, the hearing on the matter, on June 8, was held on the same day that notice was published in the morning newspapers. The only prior public notice appeared in the previous afternoon papers.

"On June 8, the code authority assembled," the brief relates, "and in a very short session purported to open the hearing for the presentation of facts with respect to costs. Very little evidence was presented at this hearing and no effort whatsoever was made by the code authority to ascertain the exactness or accuracy of the cost sheets which already had been filed with their auditor.

"There can be no doubt from a reading of the record that the code authority had pre-determined the very question it was supposed to judge from the evidence presented at the hearing."

Not only is a court test "imminent" but the manner in which the "costs" constituting fixed prices were set up would be a fatal defect in such a legal proceeding, the brief predicts.

Appended to the brief are a dozen pages of supporting exhibits showing the NRA price increases. The retail prices today, according to dealers, are the same as those in the table below, which is one of the exhibits:

	Mine price.	Frght.	Dlrs.' cost.	Retail price.	Dlrs.' margin.
SOUTHERN ILLINOIS EGG.
July 1, 1933..	$1.35	$2.01	$3.86	$7.45	$3.59
Aug. 6, 1934..	2.30	1.95	4.25	8.29	4.04
SOUTHERN ILLINOIS NUT.
July 1, 1933...	1.85	2.01	3.86	7.30	3.44
Aug. 6, 1934..	2.15	1.95	4.10	8.09	3.99
INDIANA [GLENDORA] EGG.
July 1, 1933...	1.40	1.71	3.11	7.10	3.99
Aug. 6, 1934..	2.15	1.65	3.80	7.98	4.18
POCAHONTAS MINE RUN.
July 1, 1933...	1.50	3.35	4.85	7.15	2.30
Aug. 6, 1934..	2.30	3.29	5.59	8.07	2.48

"It is apparent," the brief declares, "that there is now, and will continue to be considerable 'bootlegging' of coal below the code 'costs.' Under these circumstances it is not surprising that we are convinced that the 'costs' fixed are satisfactory selling prices to the industry as a whole, and include profit to the dealers adopting them as the general prevailing prices."

More than 87 per cent of all visitors to the World's Fair visited the main building of the Ford exposition during the Labor day week-end, the management announced.

An unposed portrait of Eric DeLamarter, associate conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, made from a portion of a negative only one-fourth of an inch square, won first prize in the minute camera contest at the Hall of Photography. Kenneth J. Heilbron, 619 North Michigan avenue, made the photograph.

A Century of Progress flower exhibit to be held in the Horticultural building at the Fair Sept. 8, 9 and 10 by the Men's Garden club of the Chicago region, is attracting entries from all sections of the United States, it was announced yesterday by A. F. Bronwell, president of the club. Competition in 142 classes will be judged by Chicagoland experts in floriculture.

YOUNG SUSPECT HELD IN OUTLAW GANG ROUNDUP

John Curran, 19 years old, 3223 North Clark street, was held by the Town Hall police last night as a suspected member of the "Saturday night" bandit gang, two of whose members were slain Monday.

Howard Allen, 16 years old, 4702 North Talman avenue, was fatally wounded by a chef during an early morning café robbery. The other slain youth, Harry L. Walder, 19 years old, 4811 North Ashland avenue, was killed in a police trap sixteen hours later. Two others, Bradfield Fields, 17 years old, 4422 Magnolia avenue, and Jesse Hemrick, 18, 2467 North Clark street, were being sought on information that they had participated with the dead youths in more than 100 robberies on the north and northwest side.

Curran was arrested yesterday in a meat market at 2850 Broadway, where he was employed. He admitted recent association with Walder, and gave police a suitcase containing several articles believed to have been stolen, which he said Walder had entrusted to him. Sergt. Michael Ahern arrested Curran after he remembered the youth and Walder were in court together two months ago in connection with the theft of a chemist's scale. Charges against them were dismissed for want of prosecution.

FAIR OPENS DRIVE TO SET RECORD IN FINAL 2 MONTHS

BY EARL MULLIN.

Past the Labor day milestone with flying colors, World's Fair officials yesterday launched a drive to make the last two months of A Century of Progress Exposition its most successful period.

Until demolition begins on the morning of Nov. 1 every building on the grounds will remain intact, every show will go on and all of the exhibits will remain in their place, directors of the Fair asserted yesterday in a new appeal to out of towners to see the Exposition before it closes forever.

Half Million See Fair.

Throngs had their farewell look at the modernistic city on the lagoons during the Labor day week-end, which, including Saturday as part of the holiday period, saw 545,732 paid admissions registered at the gates. This total was reached in spite of rains during the period. Labor day alone brought in 201,965 paid admissions, Sunday clocked 166,794, and Saturday saw 174,973 cash customers.

Fully 90 per cent of these visitors were from out of town. With good weather, which would have drawn throngs of Chicago visitors, officials estimated the attendance would have been in excess of a million visitors for the three days.

Rain Interferes Again.

Again yesterday rains during the morning and early afternoon cut down attendance. Despite the threatening skies patrons poured in to such an extent that the ten millionth visitor was welcomed early in the evening.

Typical of the day's crowds, the ten millionth visitor was from out of town. She is Mrs. E. Nora Newholm, postoffice clerk at Duluth, Minn. She was accompanied by her roommate, Miss Mabel Swanson. The two were met by P. J. Morrison of the Fair publicity staf and Martin M. Tveter, controller of the Fair. Mrs. Newholm received many gifts and smilingly declared she was glad she had stayed an extra day despite the rain.

The honor visitor arrived with thousands of others who had been lured outside by the sunshine of the late afternoon and early evening. At midnight 63,244 persons had entered.

At present, the total attendance at the 1934 Exposition, as of yesterday morning, was 9,940,541. At the same time last year, 13,949,165 admissions had been registered.

Forecast 14,000,000 Visitors.

Officials estimated yesterday that at least 14,000,000 admissions would be recorded for the 1934 Fair. Inasmuch as 13,000,000 had been set as the year's goal, the Exposition is believed to be an almost certain success.

For the remainder of the Fair, anticipating that September and October will be record attendance months, the management is sparing no expense on programs. Music, pageantry, and spectacles are planned.

Wrecking activities will start on Nov. 2. Sealed bids will be accepted for anything on the grounds and all equipment will be sold to the highest bidders.

A few buildings, including the Administration building, will be retained by the south parks, but in the main A Century of Progress Exposition at that time will pass into history.

Dr. Doran to Address Rectifiers Here Today

Dr. J. M. Doran, former national prohibition administrator, who is now head of the Distillers' institute at Washington, will address a meeting of 125 rectifiers of distilled spirits at a meeting today in the Stevens hotel. The rectifiers, who blend whiskies and make cordials, will pledge their aid in the government's campaign against bootleggers, according to Ammon McClellan, supervisor of the League of Distilled Spirits Rectifiers.

CRIMINAL COURT ATTACKS JOB OF 576 INDICTMENTS

CRIMINAL COURT.

Emil Appa, possession of a machine gun, sentenced 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Harold Bluett, attempted larceny, 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary, by Judge Joseph B. David.

Judge Denis E. Sullivan, newly installed chief justice of the Criminal court, and eight associate judges yesterday began the work of disposing of 576 pending indictments with the opening of the September term of court. The number of indictments is the lowest ever to appear on the court docket at the start of a court year.

"Continuances are the curse of the Criminal court," Chief Justice Sullivan said several times while assigning cases for hearing. "Speedy decisions should be the order of things when the presiding judge has the issue in mind."

The judges who appeared for work yesterday are Walter J. La Buy, Michael L. McKinley, Donald S. McKinlay, Walter P. Steffen, Harry B. Miller, Grover C. Niemeyer, and Joseph B. David.

Five other judges assigned to the court are expected to take up their work within the next two weeks. They are John C. Lewe, who now is ill with hay fever; William V. Brothers, who is to return from his vacation on Sept. 10; Cornelius J. Harrington, who is recovering from injuries suffered while diving on a vacation; Hugo M. Friend, who returns from vacation on Sept. 17, and Charles A. Williams.

will not be able to go so fast. I have been going bing, bang, bung, so far. Now we want to go into finances. I expect to show that the city owes 7 million dollars to the banks and other millions in private that can never be paid."

Legality in Question.

The question of the legality of this hearing, which was held in the Canal Bank building, hedged around with fifteen National Guardsmen with steel helmets and rifles, who kept the public and newspapers out of the room, was raised by one witness, a reporter for the New Orleans Item, who had written a sizzling feature story of wide open gambling.

He did not take advantage of the opinion of his attorney, that the hearing in private was not legal, but backed up his story in every particular. Newspapers, press associations, and witnesses were advised, however, that this was all illegal and unprivileged to print. Several libel suits have been filed as a result of last Saturday's hearing.

Senator Long laughed at this, but the committee yielded a little to the demand for a fair hearing and announced that Mayor Walmsley and Judge Walter L. Gleeson, candidate in the election next week, would be permitted to appear in their own defense if they wish. The mayor is reported ready to waive immunity. The chairman, Senator James Noe, said that all persons accused should have such a chance, in his opinion.

Tells of Paying $800.

The first witness told of paying $800 to get her property zoned for business purposes. One of the ward leaders of the "old regulars" is to be called in this connection. The second witness, a real estate operator, told of the depreciation in his property due to the spread of the disorderly houses, and how the women told him they had to pay too much for police protection. He told of juggling of taxes.

"Every man of integrity should fight against a condition which is destroying our city," he said. "On Canal street until recently I noticed beautiful young women in parked automobiles beckoning to young men and to men of my age. I saw the police in conversation with these women, joking with them."

Senator Noe asked other citizens "of his caliber" to come forward.

Handbook Operators Heard.

A witness, whose name was not disclosed, said he ran a handbook and the police often came in. He is running it, "right now," he said.

Another witness testified that he wanted to open a handbook and asked the policeman on the beat about it. He was referred to the captain and made a deal for $10 a week, which he paid.

"Just a business proposition, standard," said Senator Long.

SUES TO FORCE RECORDING OF 30 MARRIAGES

A petition for a mandate compelling County Clerk George W. Sweigart of Lake county, Ind., to record the marriages of the Rev. H. Oscar Stevens, Crown Point's self-styled "marrying parson," was filed yesterday in the Lake County court in Gary. County Judge Claude V. Ridgely set the hearing on the petition for 10 a. m. Friday.

Sweigart has refused to record 30 of the 350 marriages performed by the Rev. Mr. Stevens on the ground that he is not a recognized minister in Indiana. The dispute has placed the status of all 350 marriages in doubt, county officials said.

While the outcome of the controversy remained uncertain, Clerk Sweigart announced that he issued 97 marriage licenses on Saturday, surpassing the previous single day record of 82, established in April, 1917, when the world war draft was imminent. The week-end total of 123 licenses just established was also a record, Sweigart said.

SEN. PITTMAN TAKES 3 TO 1 LEAD IN VOTE FOR PLACE IN NEVADA

Reno, Nev., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Key Pittman, who campaigned for re-nomination on his 22 year record in the senate and his activities in behalf of silver, late tonight appeared assured of victory on unofficial and incomplete returns in the three cornered race for Nevada's Democratic senatorial nomination.

With more than half the state's 246 precincts counted the vote stood: Pittman, 7,008; H. R. Cooke, 2,364, and Bob Moore, 505. Cooke is a Reno attorney, and Moore is a young Las Vegas business man.

For the Republican senatorial nomination, early returns gave George W. Malone, state engineer, a 600 lead over August Frolich, Reno Justice of the peace. Malone polled 1,270 votes, Frolich 664, and Cyde D. Souter, Reno attorney, 597.

Passing through Chicago yesterday en route to Washington after a trip to Hawaii, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings disclosed a plan for a series of crime conferences in Washington next December.

"We shall invite the heads of metropolitan police departments, university criminologists, and representatives of all government agencies dealing with crime," he said. "The hearings will be public."

Mr. Cummings was accompanied by Mrs. Cummings, Assistant Attorney General Harry Blair and Mrs. Blair, and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Kraemer.

It gives you GREATER MOTOR PROTECTION because it Has 2 to 4 Times Greater Film Strength!

here is the Evidence

THESE metal blocks (sketches from actual blocks) are visible evidence that New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil gives you greater motor protection.

Both blocks were used in a Timken testing machine which measures film strength. The same pressure was applied to both, under identical conditions.

The block at the left was lubricated with a competitive, premium-grade motor oil. The one at the right was lubricated with New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. Look at the difference in wear! Measurements show the block on the right suffered 96.5 per cent less wear!

This and hundreds of other tests prove that this new patented oil has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than a straight mineral oil.

High-speed motors demand oil with great film strength. Continental has developed that oil for you—an oil that gives greater motor protection and lower oil consumption. The famous Destruction Test at Indianapolis, in which New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil was tested against five nationally-known competitive oils, proved that this new oil has both of those characteristics: (AAA Sanction No. 3001).

18,000 Conoco Red Triangle Stations in 40 states have this new oil for you. Drive in and fill with New and Improved Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil—the oil with the "Hidden Quart". Your motor worries will then be eliminated.

BOMBS KILL 8 IN HAVANA; 3 DIE IN STRIKE CLASH

Mendieta Promises to Ease Martial Law.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Sept. 4.—Amid a continuous bursting of bombs which killed at least eight persons, the noise of frequent riots in which three were killed, and a scheduled celebration, President Carlos Mendieta, seeking to end a nation-wide strike of government employes, tonight gave some ground to oppositionists, promising a relaxation of martial law.

He promised immediate cessation of official protection for followers of the fugitive Gerardo Machado, who was overthrown Aug. 12, 1933; eradication of political corruption and embezzlement of public funds, and a drastic restriction of military influence in civil affairs.

The last promise aims directly at Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of staf of the army, in whose honor today's "Fourth of September" celebration was arranged. A year ago Batista, then a top sergeant, led the "enlisted men's revolt" which ousted President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes. Batista has backed and maneuvered three governments since then.

Promises Civil Courts.

President Mendieta's proclamation adds that civilian offenders hereafter will be tried exclusively by civil courts, the military having jurisdiction only over military affairs and offenders. While he did not lift the martial law that has prevailed for some time, his promises are expected to calm the situation.

More than 75 bombs have exploded since early yesterday, mostly in Havana. There has been a veritable rain of ten ounce "petardos" and six pound "granados." Two bombs demolished a fire station in Mariano, suburb west of Havana, killing six firemen. The first six pounder in Havana tonight killed two and injured seven persons. One early this morning damaged the home of Federico Dorta, Nationalist leader and close friend of President Mendieta.

A large bomb wrecked the Fair department store on San Rafael boulevard. Two bombs exploded simultaneously in the customs and immigration building. Another damaged the palatial residence of the late Mme. Rosalia Abreu. The bomb did an estimated $200,000 damage to the home, which is modeled after a 16th century castle.

Blames Former Official.

Chief of Police Pedraza declared the bombing campaign is being directed by Antonio Guiteras, who was secretary of interior under former President Ramon Grau San Martin. Guiteras' whereabouts have been a mystery to police for some months.

A report from Santiago stated a bomb tonight seriously damaged the cathedral built in 1569. Other bombs were reported from Camaguey, Cienfuegos and Matanzas.

Striking government employes are expected to return to work tomorrow in spite of efforts of the Authentic Revolutionaries' organization to prolong the strike 72 hours more.

Two dock workers were killed, a 12 year old girl was mortally wounded, and three persons were injured when soldiers and striking dock workers clashed on the waterfront this morning. Other clashes resulted only in injuries.

Burn Batista in Effigy.

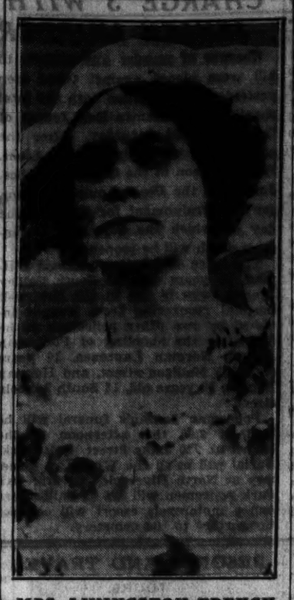
An effigy representing Col. Batista dressed in full uniform was tried by a "summary court" at Havana university by 600 students tonight. After the "trial" the effigy was burned on the university plaza while the crowd cheered. A student yelled:

"Burn Batista before Caffery [the United States ambassador] saves his life."

The effigy bore a large label on its chest reading:

"I am Batista, the assassin of innocent civilians."

BRIDE TODAY



MRS. LIVINGSTON FRENCH.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor III and Mrs. Astor's sister, Miss Virginia Middleton French, left for New York this afternoon to attend in New York tomorrow the marriage of Mrs. Astor's and Miss French's mother, Mrs. Livingston French, to James Lenox Banks Jr. of New York.

Rumors have been current for some time that the former Eleanor Livingston Burrill would be wed to Mr. Banks shortly after the marriage of her daughter to Mr. Astor, which took place in Trinity Episcopal church here on June 30. Mrs. French, who has been passing the summer here, left for New York on Monday night.

The ceremony tomorrow will be performed at noon at the home of Mrs. French's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Livingston Burrill, by Bishop Arthur W. Brooks of the Apostolic Episcopal church of Hollis, Queens, and will be followed by a luncheon.

Both Mrs. French and Mr. Banks are divorced. Mrs. French is the former wife of Francis Ormand French of Dedham, Mass. Mr. Banks was formerly married to the former Miss Vieva M. Fisher, now the wife of J. Dryden Kuser of Bernardsville, N. J.

SECOND BRITISH ADMIRAL URGES CANADA TO ARM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 4.—Sir Roger Keyes, admiral of the British fleet, publicly attacked the treaty of London today as "robbing Great Britain of the freedom to keep her place in naval armaments." He is the second of Great Britain's "big four" admirals to exhort Canadians within the past month as to the need of a larger navy.

He denied, however, that his visit and utterances, following so closely the visit and similar declarations of Admiral Sir Reginald Tyrwhitt, were part of a "bigger navy" propaganda campaign on behalf of Britain.

"We must try to rid ourselves of the treaty of London," Admiral Keyes said. "Britain's naval forces should be brought to adequate proportions. If our fleet is allowed to fall below its proper strength the danger of invasion will be revived. On the great ocean spaces over which our ships carry food and raw materials vital to the British isles, aircraft can neither attack nor defend our trade."

JAPANESE BLAME REDS FOR STAGING RAILWAY WRECKS

Deny Responsibility for Jailing Russians.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 5 [Wednesday].—Japan today issued a counter protest to Moscow, charging communists with pulling strings behind the railway disasters and other terroristic demonstrations in Manchukuo, and with stirring anti-Japanese agitation in Manchukuo.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota's declaration was made to Ambassador Constantin Yurenev of Russia in reply to the Moscow government's protest of Aug. 22 against the arrest of the Russian railway workers. Hirota declared that the arrests were made within Manchukuo's jurisdiction and the Japanese government was not responsible.

On the advice of the war office, the foreign office disclosed that soviet spies arrested in Manchukuo had confessed to being in direct communication with the Red army at Khabarovsk, receiving orders from there and promoting sabotage in Manchukuo.

Violate Peace Policy.

It was declared that careless utterances against Japan by important Russians and articles and editorials in the soviet press criticizing Japan are at variance with the enunciated peace policy of the soviet government, and interfere with the normal development of Japanese-soviet relations.

The statement said, in part:

"The soviet government must be aware in connection with the train incidents and similar disturbances of peace and order in north Manchuria that many soviet citizens have been arrested from time to time since last spring. Yet they single out particular instances of recent arrests, and on the presumption that these have something to do with suspension of negotiations for the sale of the north Manchuria railway regard the arrests as having occasioned disorganization of the work of the railway.

Russians Not Molested.

"Such a view is entirely groundless, and the grossest distortion of fact. The Japanese government is seriously concerned with determining from what quarters the plots were actually directed. It must be noted throughout the train incidents in question that most of the trains attacked were military goods trains, and that no attempt was made at looting them. The victims were mostly Japanese and Manchukuans, while Russians scarcely suffered. This is a phenomena which is entirely different from ordinary attacks.

"Almost all of the Russians arrested belong to certain illegal societies which aim at disturbing peace and order in Manchukuo and some issued directions to bandits to blow up the railway and supplied them with explosives. It seems natural that some Russians should be considered in some way concerned in the plots under reference."

JUSTICE DEPARTMENT MOVES FINGER PRINTS OF 4 MILLION PERSONS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Millions of finger print records, important ammunition in the government's fight against crime, were transferred, under heavy guard, to new and fireproof quarters by justice department officials over the Labor day week-end.

More than 4,000,000 prints were moved. It was one of the biggest rush order moving jobs ever performed in the government departments, officials said.

PRISONER FOUND GUILTY BY ERROR TO BE RELEASED

John Long, 22 years old, who has served four months of a one year to life sentence in the Stateville penitentiary for a crime confessed by another man, was brought to the county jail here yesterday for the hearing that is expected to bring him freedom. He will be taken before Judge Donald S. McKinlay in the criminal court this morning on a writ of habeas corpus.

"I'm not mad at any one," Long told reporters with a broad grin as he entered the county jail. "I think I'm the luckiest guy in the world to get out of the penitentiary now."

Will Visit His Parents.

Long said that he planned to visit his parents in Peru, Ind., when he is free. News of his predicament had not reached his parents at the time he was sentenced, Long said, and added that he was not sure that they knew of the case at the present time.

Long, who was sent to the penitentiary through mistaken identity, was saved from longer imprisonment by the confession of his "double," Edwin Brethauer, 27 years old. While Brethauer and Long were not acquainted they had a mutual friend in George Wilch, who was sentenced with Long.

Long was with Wilch when the latter was arrested and because of his resemblance to Brethauer was identified in the robbery of a drug store at 1976 Lawrence avenue.

Freedom Likely This Morning.

Brethauer, who was seized by detectives on secret information, and who is wanted in Wisconsin on a murder charge, confessed his part in the robbery and cleared Long. He will testify today in the hearing before Judge McKinlay.

Assistant State's Attorney Richard Devine yesterday joined Defense Attorneys Daniel Wolf and Harold Lowenthal in clearing away technicalities halting the release of Long. A writ of error was filed in the criminal court to clear the way for the state to ask that the case be nol prossed. If this action is taken as planned this morning Long will be freed a few minutes after his appearance in court.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE.

Oscar Johnson, 62 years old, 7814 Langley avenue, a tool and die maker, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning yesterday in the garage behind his home. Police said the death apparently was an accident.

Malcolm St. Clair, Film Director, Divorced by Wife

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 4.—(AP)—When Malcolm St. Clair, motion picture director, came home at all he usually brought unexpected guests for dinner, his wife, Cordelia St. Clair, testified today in winning a divorce. Superior Judge Dudley S. Valentine approved a property settlement giving Mrs. St. Clair one-half of the director's earnings for the next five years.

BRITTEN HOME; DECLARES NRA IS CRACKING UP

Tells Desperate Efforts of New Deal to Save It.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

The national administration is striving with might and main to stave off the inevitable crackup of the NRA because of the repercussions that would be felt in the November elections.

This was the view expressed yesterday by Fred A. Britten, dean of the Republicans in congress. He is serving his 22d consecutive year in the house of representatives.

Congressman Britten arrived in Chicago from Washington to launch his campaign for reelection against the Democratic nominee, James McAndrews, in the Ninth district on Chicago's north side. He declared that he would appeal to the voters in his district on the basis of the "befuddling experimentation of the brain trusters" with the NRA as the most glaring example.

Predicts Crackup of NRA.

"The NRA is about to crack up," asserted Mr. Britten. "The little business man and the consumer have been gouged almost to death by price fixing and promotion of monopolies. No one knows this better than Franklin D. Roosevelt himself, and he is exerting every effort to prevent a complete collapse before the November election.

"Gen. Hugh Johnson, Donald Richberg, Secretary of Labor Perkins, and other NRA leaders are pulling against each other. All have different ideas and no one is willing to admit that the other's ideas are practical. Key men are resigning daily from administration of the NRA because of their confidence in its more or less complete dissolution in the near future."

President Roosevelt and his advisers, Mr. Britten said, are privately admitting the failure of the NRA.

Cost Already Enormous.

"When President Roosevelt gave Gen. Johnson a raise of $9,000 in salary [from $6,000 to $15,000 a year], he did so solely to prevent his immediate resignation from the NRA," declared the congressman. "If Johnson had taken this step before the elections it would have wrecked the NRA, which has already cost the taxpayers of this country a staggering total."

Mr. Britten said that the American business man would "hail with glee" a Republican majority in the next congress because it would assure less government in business and more "horse sense" in future legislation.

"There will be no industrial expansion in business," he said, "until the country is satisfied that further radical and untried legislation can be blocked by Republicans. The building trades will continue to remain stagnant under the existing uncertainty."

Has Hopes for Outer Bridge.

Mr. Britten expressed the hope that, with the validity of the new consolidated Chicago park district upheld by the Illinois Supreme court, a way would be found to complete the outer drive bridge. He said that in his opinion Secretary of the Interior Ickes, head of the public works administration, would find federal funds for the project if proper security could be offered.

There are nearly 100,000 registered voters in the Ninth congressional district where the Britten-McAndrews fight has just started to sizzle. The district is bounded roughly by the main channel of the Chicago river on the south, Irving Park boulevard on the north, the lake on the east and Racine avenue and the north branch of the river on the west.

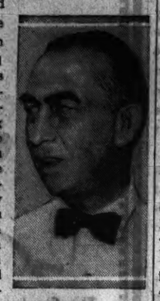
G. O. P. LEADER TELLS HOPE OF WINNING MAINE

Bolton Finds Republican Prospects Good.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Maine's state election next Monday is now engrossing the attention of Republicans and Democrats as the opening gun in the congressional elections. Reports that the Republicans have prospects of making gains against the New Dealers in Maine were brought to Chicago yesterday by Congressman Chester C. Bolton of Ohio, chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee.



CHESTER C. BOLTON.

This week sees both parties going it hammer and tongs in the Pine Tree state, mindful of the old adage—"As goes Maine in September, so goes the nation in November." Seldom has the state seen a campaign of such intensity. Both parties have sent in batteries of heavyweight orators.

Spending Alarms Yankees.

According to Chairman Bolton, the Republican attack on some of the experimentation of the brain trust has led Gov. Louis J. Brann, Democrat, who is seeking reelection, to change his campaign tactics and to slide away from laudation of the New Deal. Mr. Bolton, after an extended tour of Maine, said the old Yankee spirit is leading the voters to ask where all the money is coming from to pay for the enormous debts now being run up.

"Two weeks ago," said Chairman Bolton, "the Democratic governor, Mr. Brann, in his campaign for reelection, was lauding the New Deal.

"Ten days ago he changed his tactics, and in a speech said the choice of governor should be nonpartisan and the governor should be elected on his record. He has been attacked by some Democrats as switching from New Deal Democracy to a personal appeal.

Old Project Is Revived.

"Democrats from Washington have been filling Maine with wild promises. The old project to harness the tide in Passamaquoddy bay at a cost of 42 million dollars to create electricity for which there is no market has been revived. It was turned down at first, but Secretary Ickes has ordered it reopened and a new survey made.

"Reports in Maine are that farmers are to be provided good prices for their potatoes through AAA, no matter if there is a surplus.

"Also, it is reported the government is operating canning factories along the coast. It cans what fish it can for distribution in the dales. This has stirred much resentment. People in Maine and Vermont are old-fashioned and they are Yankee enough to be sore at the tremendous expenditures under the New Deal. They are asking: Where is the money coming from?

Sees Good G. O. P. Prospects.

"Republicans have excellent prospects in Maine. We are sure of reelecting Senator Frederick Hale, and of carrying two or the three congressional districts, with a 50-50 chance of carrying the remaining district and making a clean sweep on the congressional delegation.

"In the First district, C. L. Beedy, Republican, is certain of reelection; in the Third, ex-Gov. Ralph O. Brewster will beat John G. Utterback, present Democratic congressman, who won by only 294 votes in 1932. In the Second district, Judge Zelma M. Dwinal, Republican, has an even chance of beating Congressman Edward C. Moran, Democrat.

Tells of Maine Criticism.

Mr. Bolton declared that in Maine the voters have been critical of the speeches of President Roosevelt on his transcontinental trip from Portland, Ore., to Washington, D. C.

"The people are talking of troubles from the NRA and the AAA," he said. "The President landed at Portland, in a region torn with the longshore strike—but he made no mention of strikes or NRA. In the west he came through drouth smitten regions, but in his speeches not a word about AAA. In Wisconsin he spoke in a state that has the strike at Kohler, the milk troubles, and other troubles, but he made no reference to them. There has been much criticism of all this among the people.

"I feel the underground sentiment is growing stronger all the time, and it has been given much momentum by the nomination of Upton Sinclair, Socialist author, by the Democrats for governor of California.

Wonders About Refinancing.

"One thing I am wondering about is what will happen after Oct. 15 when the government has to refinance a billion and a half dollars of bonds. The banks today hold over 9 billions of government securities—50 to 60 per cent of their assets are in government securities.

"The only people who are going to buy are the banks. They don't want to, but the outlook is they will be forced to. My prediction is that the banks to have money for their customers will then start to dispose of the bonds, put them on the market at a discount, and in that event the government would sustain the market by buying the bonds. It has prospects of being a circular piece of financing."

TORTURE OF SAILOR BY SMUGGLER GANG IS BARED BY ARREST

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—An international smuggling ring's retribution against a French seaman, who inadvertently threw a package of narcotics into the sea, was revealed today when federal agents arrested two men and a woman, charged with abducting and torturing the sailor.

William Rosen, seaman on the French liner Champlain, was kidnaped Aug. 2, when the vessel docked in New York and for more than a month was held captive, bound by ropes, while his captors seared his forehead with lighted cigarets.

The kidnapers sought to force Rosen to pay them 40,000 francs [$2,640] for the narcotics. He threw the package overboard, believing it to contain potash.

Cablegrams to Rosen's wife in Havre, France, directing her to forward the money, resulted in the investigation that led to the trio's capture. The abductors released Rosen yesterday. With his assistance federal operatives arrested Salvatore Mancuso, 28, and his wife, Nellie, 25, both of whom, police said, Rosen identified. They also held Dominick Gelferno, 31. Rosen was seized when he stepped off the ship.

REFUSES TO SEND GIRL SLAYER TO JUVENILE COURT

Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court yesterday refused to transfer the case of Anna Maletta, 18 years old, who shot and killed her father and mother, from the Criminal to the Juvenile court. The petition was made by Thaddeus Toudor, newly retained counsel for the girl.

Attorney Toudor held that the Criminal court had no jurisdiction, as the defendant is less than 16 years of age. Judge Sullivan said that in his opinion the Criminal court has jurisdiction. He added, however, that he would not entertain any motions until the grand jury has acted in the case.

The Maletta girl has been recommended held to the grand jury for the murder of her father, James, 43 years old, by a coroner's jury.

OAK PARK POLICE CHARGE 3 WITH JENSEN MURDER

Charges of murder and assault to kill were placed against three men yesterday in connection with the fatal shooting of Policeman Earl Jensen of Oak Park last Saturday. After the complaints were signed by Lieut. Harry Wilson of the Oak Park police, Justice of the Peace Louis S. Gibson set the arraignment for Sept. 14, the day on which the inquest into Jensen's death will be reopened.

The three men held are Ernest Dittman, 29 years old, 509 South Oakley avenue, who is in the Bridewell hospital recovering from wounds inflicted by two other policemen as he fled after the shooting of Policeman Jensen; Norman Laurence, 19 years old, 2105 Madison street, and Herman Boulan, 19 years old, 13 South Lincoln street.

Policeman Jensen's funeral will be held at 2:30 this afternoon in the chapel at 720 Lake street, Oak Park. Burial will be in the Woodlawn cemetery at North Riverside. Several Oak Park policemen will act as pallbearers and a motorcycle escort will conduct the cortege to the cemetery.

RUDY VALLEE IS SERVED IN SUIT FOR $250,000

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special]—A summons was served today upon Rudy Vallee, orchestra leader and radio star, in what was announced as a $250,000 breach of promise suit, although the bill of complaint was not served.

Attorney Hyman Bushel, speaking for Mr. Vallee, said the action had been brought by Frances Singer, 26, of Hewlett, N. Y.; Kansas City, Mo., and Denver, Colo.

"'In 1930,' Mr. Bushel said, 'she wrote to Rudy from Denver, Colo., proposing marriage to him. I have all her letters. She says the love songs he sang over the radio were sung to her.'"

CONGRESS QUIZ ON BOND GROUPS TO START TODAY

Congressman A. J. Sabath, chairman of the congressional committee named to investigate real estate bondholders' protective committees, said yesterday that preparations have been completed for opening hearings this afternoon in the United States courthouse.

"The committee's chief investigator, J. Comer, has been in Chicago for several days," said Congressman Sabath, "and I have gone over the information collected. It is unbelievable what things some of the bondholers' protective committees have done, but they have been no worse in Chicago than in numerous other cities.

"I have wired members of the committee to be in Chicago this morning to review the evidence gathered by our investigators, who have been studying bondholders' committees here for several weeks. In the afternoon we will map a program of procedure with Chicago attorneys who have been selected to aid in the inquiry."

HELD ON NARCOTIC CHARGE.

IN BOWMAN BOTTLING PLANTS the pasteurizing temperature for milk is guarded every single minute by an electric "watchman."

If the temperature varies even as little as one-half of a degree, the "watchman" blows his horn. Everything stops! Not another drop of milk goes through the pasteurizer until the temperature has been corrected, and then pasteurization is automatically resumed.

Bowman will not take even the smallest chance that a single quart of milk might "slip through" without measuring up to the Bowman standard. That is the reason the signal horn and the automatic "stops" and "starts" were installed—equipment that is distinctly a Bowman development.

NAZIS TRUDGE TO HITLER CONGRESS TO GET NEW FAITH

Claim Victory in Battle for Raw Materials.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NUREMBERG, Germany, Sept. 4.—With unabated faith and yearning for faith, hundreds of thousands of Germans made a pilgrimage to Chancellor Adolf Hitler's party congress today, filling this small town to overflowing with party men in uniforms of all descriptions. Meanwhile the reichswehr, for the first time, officially mounted guard for its supreme commander.

For blocks around the hotel where Hitler is staying heavy cordons of Schutzstaffel [Hitler's handpicked guards] blocked off traffic, holding back the crowds who thundered ovations when the cars of Hitler and his retinue arrived as the setting sun put touches of gold in the turrets of the castle rising on the top of Burgberg, or Castle hill, opposite Hitler's hotel. Shortly afterward all church bells in Nuremberg began to peel the "message of joy."

Claim Victory Over Imports.

"A miracle has been achieved. German initiative and inventiveness have made Germany independent of foreign raw materials. We will master the world crisis, or rather, we have mastered it already."

This statement was published in a special welcome edition of the Nuremberg Achtuhr to bolster up the faith of the people and the congress members. None of the Nazi leaders with whom THE TRIBUNE correspondent spent the day at various party headquarters was able to throw any light on these promises.

The official program of the party congress was decorated with Hitler's photograph, immediately followed by that of Julius Streicher, anti-Semitic leader, above the motto: "Without a solution of the Jewish problem there can be no recovery of the German people."

"Labor a United Giant."

The chief of the Nazi press, Dr. Otto Dietrich, outlined the Nazis' claims for success in their administration. He averred that Nazism "gave workers spirit."

"A total of 167 old organizations, with 7,000,000 members, formerly engaged in a class struggle," he said. "Now the united giant, the Labor Front, has its 29,000,000 members working together. Strikes and lockouts are an impossibility.

"Four and a half million jobless got jobs, leaving only 2,420,000 unemployed. The Nazis built almost two billion dollars' worth of new small homes in 1934.

"The power through joy movement gave vacation trips to 1,500,000 workers who before never left the factory or office. The mother and child welfare organization gave health trips to 15,000 mothers and 350,000 children. Eighteen million Germans received relief last winter. Farmers' income has increased by $200,000,000 a year, with their interest bills and tax bills drastically cut," Dietrich declared.

Everything Has Increased.

Dr. Dietrich asserted also that industrial production had increased by more than 25 per cent, and tax returns are increasing steadily despite, or thanks to, tax reductions. He said that they were 18 per cent higher in July than in the best month last year.

Dietrich sees the best barometer of improving times in the fact that 37 per cent more marriages have taken place this year than in the first half of 1933.

While Dietrich complained of the foreign press, asserting that too many untruths are said about Germany and that all the Nazis are asking for is "truth in print," Dr. Ernst Hanfstaengl, Harvard educated chief of the Nazi foreign press bureau, sought to convey to foreign guests in Nuremberg a better understanding for the longing and dreams of the old Germany out of which much of modern Nazism has evolved. For this purpose he took them to the treasures of the Germanic museum at Nuremberg, the "heart and soul of the first German empire and Hitler's third reich."

"Whoever understands the spirit and beauty of Nuremberg will be able in time to understand the power of the Hitler movement in Germany and kindred nations," he said.

He's Champion at Reading Meters

Two Others Honored

John Rice of 2332 Addison street, Stanley Mason of 3045 Cornelia street, and Ernest Rodell of 4049 North Francisco avenue were declared the champions yesterday among 210 meter readers of the Commonwealth Edison company. None has made a mistake since last Oct. 1. Rice, ace of the three, has read 142,210 meters since Aug. 1, 1932, without one reported error.

Accuracy is not confined to these three, however, according to company records. Last year the 210 meter scanners read 12,889,533 dials and their group accuracy was 99.986 per cent.

RUSSIAN FLYER RESCUES 3 FROM ARCTIC ISLAND

MOSCOW, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Three Russian scientists, marooned for two months on Dunai island in the Arctic ocean, north of the mouth of the Lena river, have been rescued by an airplane which flew over shifting ice floes from the mainland, it became known today.

The rescue was made on Aug. 13 by M. Glovin, a Soviet flyer. The scientists were without a radio and for two months subsisted on wild game. Ice breakers were unable to reach the remote island.

The airplane took three other scientists to the islands who replaced the men brought back to the Siberian shore.

SWISS TO FIGHT SOVIET RUSSIA'S ENTRY TO LEAGUE

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The federal council of Switzerland agreed unanimously today to fight Russia's entrance into the league of nations.

The council decided to instruct the country's delegation to vote an emphatic "no" on the question of soviet participation in the international body at Geneva.

Leaders said that the opposition was caused by the fact that the Swiss still are resentful over the soviet revolutionary propaganda disseminated in Switzerland during the world war when refuge was given to exiles from Russia.

PAY FIRST FOR SAAR, FRANCE TELLS GERMANS

Warns League to Make Rules Before Plebiscite.

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—In a memorandum to the league of nations published tonight France demands that the chief economic questions which will arise if the Saar votes to return to Germany be settled before, and not after, the plebiscite of Jan. 13, 1935. France is particularly concerned about the mines she owns.

To guarantee the execution of commitments and to assure the protection of national minorities, France recommends that a mixed abritration court sit in the territory for 15 years after the plebiscite.

This recommendation, along with several others, are bound to bring a stormy reply from Germany, for they would mean that even if the Saar voted for the reich it couldn't be entirely integrated into the Nazi state for 15 years.

Shows Danger of Change.

The French memorandum is cleverly worded, and while ostensibly concerned only with pointing out the measures to assure the peaceful change of régime if Germany wins, it systematically implies arguments against such a change. Thus, it warns the Saarlanders against the danger of closing of the mines in which they earn their living, against abandoning the franc in favor of the mark, and against other economic pitfalls involved in a change of régime.

With the German campaign in the Saar under way for many months, this memorandum can be taken as the opening gun of the French counter attack. The actual agreement of Germany before January to the demands set forth in the note is regarded by neutral observers as most unlikely.

The chief point with which the French are concerned are the mines which they took over after the war as an indemnity and still are operating. If Germany wins in the plebiscite, France is prepared to give up the mines, estimated to be worth $100,000,000, but will insist on reimbursement in gold, as called for in the Versailles treaty. It is pointed out that the mines remain French property even after the plebiscite until they are paid for.

Stress Stability of Franc.

In this connection, the memorandum stresses the inadvisability of the mines being operated by a power which has no sovereignty over the Saar territory, thus implying that since Germany quite likely will not be able to raise the money to pay for the mines by the time of the plebiscite the Saarlanders might be better off if they maintained the status quo, or voted for France.

The note dwells on the currency difficulties which would arise if the Saar went to Germany, and by stressing the soundness of the franc, it is indicated that the Saarlanders need fear no inflation if they maintain the status quo, and continue using French currency.

Taking all the economic questions one by one, the French point out that a vote for keeping the league mandate or going over to France would mean very little disturbance of Saar economic life. A bid for the Saarlanders who fear the rigors of the Nazi state is contained in the paragraph guaranteeing a liberal régime if France wins. The same civil and political rights assured the French citizens are guaranteed for all regardless of language, race, or religion.

GERMAN CLAIMS ISOLATION OF CANCER BACILLI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 4.—The claim that the cause of the world's greatest scourge, cancer, has been definitly established was made today by Prof. Wilhelm von Brehmer of the Reich Biological institute at Dahlem, Berlin. He is supported by the famed blood specialist, Prof. Viktor Schilling, and the bacteriologists, Dr. Carl Boerner and Dr. O. Jancke.

Prof. Brehmer asserts cancer is due to a bacillus which hitherto has escaped observation because it clings closely to the red corpuscles in the blood. Prof. Brehmer dislodged them and made them visible under a microscope and this evening's Berlin newspapers publish pictures of them.

Pure cultures of these bacilli were made by Prof. Brehmer, who then infected healthy animals with them. When the latter developed cancer Prof. Brehmer was able to breed further cultures. The cancer bacilli only thrives in alkaline blood, says Prof. Brehmer. His researches proved that as a general rule the blood of children is acid and gradually becomes more alkaline with advancing age.

BYRD EXPEDITION FLYER 'SOUNDS' AIR AT 7,200 FEET

LITTLE AMERICA, ANTARCTICA, Sept. 4.—(AP)—[Via Mackay Radio.]—William McCormick of Montclair, N. J., today flew an autogyro to an altitude of 7,200 feet in an atmospheric sounding flight. It was the first spring operation of the Byrd Antarctic expedition.

McCormick discovered from that altitude that the Ross sea, north of the entrance to the Bay of Whales, was entirely free of ice.

Expedition scientists said this observation may prove that the Ross sea actually remains open during the winter despite the fact that summer navigation is hazardous there because of the big icebergs.

"Why Didn't Somebody Brew an Ale Like This Before?"

THAT'S hard to answer. Maybe no one believed as we did that a far better ale could be produced. Or maybe nobody had the vision to experiment—to send research men abroad—to test yeast culture after yeast culture—to keep everlastingly at it until the ale-brewing formula was developed.

But you are not interested in how we discovered the formula that now produces the finest ale ever brewed. You want real, first-hand taste proof. It's all ready for you. In hotels, cafes, clubs, bars—wherever men and women demand the very finest that can be produced, there you will find Blue Ribbon Genuine* Ale already a favorite. There certainly is a brand new, grand new taste in town! Blue Ribbon Genuine Ale brings you a new taste—a brand new better flavor—yet every old traditional ale characteristic has been carefully retained. Try it today!

WHAT ALE IS: Ale and beer differ in formula, process, character, and strength—ale being stronger. The most important process difference is in the yeast and kind of fermentation.

Requiring different yeast and different treatment, the making of ale and beer should be carefully separated. So-called ales, made in the same fermenting and storage rooms with beer, are usually neither true ale nor true beer, but "crossbreeds."

Made in a plant built for that purpose, Blue Ribbon is Genuine Ale—no half way product, no crossbreed—real ale with the tang, bouquet and vigor, that ale should have.

FARM YOUTH HAS COURAGE

Look at the confident smile with which this farmer's son faces the future. His whole expression reveals courage and strength. He knows the bitter experiences of farmers since 1920. He has seen Dairy farmers face the most trying times during the past fourteen years. He has witnessed drought, excessive heat, hail storms, insect plagues, and crop failures, yet he chooses to follow the courageous leadership of his father.

His training together with improved agricultural educational facilities may fit him better to cope with such conditions. But the great gamble with Nature still remains.

The Pure Milk Association is the co-operative of 18,000 dairy farmers with a $288,000,000 plant and farm investment who supply Chicagoans daily with 2,000,000 quarts of pure fresh milk. This organization maintains its own laboratories and staff of university trained field men. They help co-operating milk dealers and health authorities to give Chicago the best milk supply of any large city in the world!

NOTE: This advertisement is one of a series published by Pure Milk Assoc., 608 S. Dearborn St., Chicago, to acquaint the public with the dairy farmer's side of the milk problem.

"Give me but the liberty of the press and I will give to the minister a venal house of peers. I will give him a corrupt and servile house of commons. I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him, to purchase up submission and overawe resistance; and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will go forth to meet him undismayed. I will attack the mighty fabric of that mightier engine. I will shake down from its height corruption and bury it beneath the ruins of the abuses it was meant to shelter."
—Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

A GREAT AMERICAN UTTERANCE.

The outstanding event of Labor day, which heard many able speeches, was the address of Senator Borah at Focatello, Idaho. Senator Borah is the most formidable champion of American constitutionalism in the senate, if not indeed in the wider forum of popular discussion. No public or private student has a more thorough knowledge of our fundamental law or speaks with more authority upon the profound principles of government which our constitution embodies. Of this the speech on Labor day was a memorable example and deserves the earnest thought of the American people who for months have been invited to discard the form of government and the principles of ordered liberty under which they and their predecessors for a century and a half have achieved and enjoyed a democratic well-being that has won the respect and envy of the world.

Especially timely and impressive in this address is Senator Borah's warning "that those who take advantage of these unsettled times and our country's distress to inveigh against our institutions and seek to build up opinion against the efficiency and worth of free government are not the friends but malign enemies of labor." The warning is that of a long proved friend of the democratic masses of America, the wage earner, the farmer, the rank and file of our people, and it is founded upon an observation of conditions past and present in the actual experience of peoples that any man may verify and the general body of the American people ought especially at this time to reflect upon. Not only to labor but to every member of the free society established and cherished hitherto by the American people the vital importance of the issues raised in this troubled time must come home, for they involve the preservation of our heritage of self-government or the substitution for it of a system of government and a social order which in one form or another have been tried and found wanting repeatedly in the history of mankind.

To labor in field or factory this revolution is recommended by doctrinaires and demagogs. But Senator Borah reminds us that in all these schemes of superior government or arbitrary power, Fascism, Nazism, or communism, "the soul of labor has been tortured, murdered," and that "back of all arbitrary governments are hunger and peonage for the average man and woman." "There is no exception to the rule and never has been and, if we are to judge the future by the past, never will be, that when constitutional government has been destroyed and liberty has been denied or forfeited, labor becomes the victim of ambition on the one hand and the prey of greed on the other."

Of course among a people as long and potently free as Americans have been the destruction of free institutions cannot be accomplished at one blow. It must arrive by degrees under plausible pretexts, under claims of emergency and threats of dire alternatives. The air is full of them, and Senator Borah defines the form in which this tendency is now presenting itself. "A great debate is now going on," he points out, "a debate in which labor must feel a deep interest. The debate arises out of the supposed conflict between economic security and personal liberty. It is contended by some that security involves the giving up of liberty. It is said in reply that liberty is more to be desired than security, and therefore we must waive security and hold fast to liberty." But this, he asserts, and all loyal Americans will affirm it, is a false issue. The choice is not a question of surrendering liberty and attaining security, for security has never been attained or retained by surrendering liberty. The question, says Senator Borah, and no statesman has spoken a truth more profound, is: "Shall we surrender liberty and lose security?"

The program of revolutionary transformation of American institutions now authoritatively offered and in process of accomplishment is supported by the assertion, as Senator Borah remarks, that in our modern economic life democracy will not work"; that it has broken down; that we must have something else, but "just what is to be selected from out of the wilderness of disjointed, incoherent, and discredited schemes floating to the surface to take the place of democracy is not clear."

It is not clear. It is not becoming clearer but darker and with growing obstruction to the vital processes of restoration inherent in this nation. But as Senator Borah declares, "constitutional rights and liberties are the weapons by which the average man and woman are to win ultimate security, and the only weapons by which they can hold the field after the battle is won."

These are wise words verified by human experience and especially by that of the American nation. "A free people," as Senator Borah declares, "are entitled to both liberty and security." And all loyal Americans will join him when he says: "Let's keep our heads and we will get them."

PROF. VINER AND PROF. VINER

The learned Prof. Viner has returned to Chicago to find out why banks have shown a certain reluctance to lend their depositors' money to every business which requested credit. He says, among other things, that the operating capital of many businesses has been greatly depleted in the depression years. New operating capital must, therefore, be provided. Short term loans will not meet the need. Perhaps, he says, existing banks can be induced to provide the longer credits and perhaps a new lending agency must be created.

It is somewhat startling to find in a treasury official such deep concern for the liquid capital of business enterprises. Perhaps there are two Prof. Viners. One of them sees the need for ample working capital for business. The other is devoting his energies to destroying working capital. It is the latter Prof. Viner who is heading the treasury's commission seeking new and ingenious ways of extorting taxes from business and thereby depleting its working funds. It is this Prof. Viner, also, who was sufficiently sympathetic with the administration's devaluation policy to join the treasury's brain trust.

Devaluation, as many of Prof. Viner's pupils have been taught, is a ruthless destroyer of liquid capital. The aim of devaluation is the raising of wholesale prices and if this is achieved the buying power of a given sum of money must be correspondingly reduced. The owner of a shoe factory whose liquid capital has been adequate, before devaluation, to supply his need for lether must lack adequate capital once devaluation has brought about higher prices.

Prof. Viner's preoccupation with the problem of adequate working capital may be interpreted in some quarters as an assurance that the treasury contemplates no further tampering with the dollar. Unfortunately, the conclusion is not warranted. A brain truster is expected to ride off simultaneously in all directions. If he doesn't, he is not a brain truster. Mr. Tugwell helps create a food and feed scarcity with a view to raising farm prices, but then seeks to prevent prices from rising. Mr. Richberg is simultaneously for and against monopoly. Gen. Johnson fires a union organizer from his NRA organization, which is devoted to preventing other employers from doing the same thing. Miss Perkins encourages industrial discontent and spends most of her time, ostensibly at least, in trying to quell the disorders she has helped to create. Prof. Viner has his place in this distinguished company.

SAFETY LANES.

The free automobile inspection service being rendered by THE TRIBUNE on East Ontario street has disclosed two facts long suspected about the automobile business in the United States. One is that the quest for speed and power has retarded the pursuit of safety. The other is that the modern service man is about as efficient as the blacksmith mechanic was in the goggle and dust coat days of motoring.

Forty per cent of the vehicles taken through the safety lane were found to have mechanical defects which made them unsafe to drive. Bad brakes and improper wheel alignments were the major faults discovered, and these were as numerous on new cars as on old. It was apparent that motors had been improved tremendously, while brakes, which become progressively valuable as speed and acceleration increase, had been neglected.

More startling was the discovery that 50 per cent of the automobiles refused certificates were found unsafe on their second trip through the lane. This meant that mechanics had been unable to right defects specifically pointed out to them.

These are obviously two of the causes for the increase in trafic accidents and deaths. The manufacturer holds the remedy for both. He can devote more time to the improvement of brakes and other safety factors and he can sponsor reliable service stations with properly trained mechanics. The motorist, too, can coöperate by checking his car on safety lanes where they are available, and by demanding their erection, either by the community or by a safety minded organization, where they are not.

LET 'EM STARVE.

"So long as we have orders and hungry people who want to work, we are going to run our plant."

This was the statement of officials of the Richmond Hosiery Mills, Inc., of Rossville, Ga., during a recent NRA investigation of charges that the plant had been running an extra shift of 120 workers contrary to the code.

Adding justification where none was actually needed, the officials went on to explain that if the extra shift was not operated in the mill the 120 workmen, nearly all of whom had families, would have been thrown out of work and would have either had to accept charity or starve. They further pointed out that there were orders to be filled, and that these would ultimately be filled, either by single or double shifts, and thus the manner of how they were filled would not imply deliberate overproduction.

However, Federal Judge Marvin Underwood was not impressed with the necessity of giving hungry people work. He refused to give the hosiery mills an injunction to protect their working employés, stressed the constitutionality of the national hosiery code and permitted indictments to be voted against the mills and five officers. He permitted the workers to be thrown out of work.

JUST ANOTHER LITTLE DRINK.

[Sioux Falls (S. D.) Argus-Leader.]

The inflationists are not satisfied with the steps already taken in their direction. They want more and more.

In this there is significance. At first they sought just "one little drink." Now having had one or four rather large ones, they are clamoring for more.

This is the story of uncontroled inflation throughout the world. No nation moves deliberately into destructive inflation. The consequences are not appreciated as step after step is taken. There is always a feeling that the brakes can be applied just as the chasm is reached. But by that time the momentum is so great that the brakes fail to hold.

DISCOVERING NANTUCKET.

I call Nantucket the Nantucket Free State because
It seems like that.
It probably still belongs to these United States of America, but
It's hard to prove it.
Everything is so different
Out there.
The very first night
I landed I journeyed
Way out towards Sconset
And then turned and pursued
A rutted road across
The silent moors
To the little cottage where I was going
To dwell.
A white sign post loomed
Up in the white glare of my Headlights.
Now, I am not one of those
Who step on it and strain
To beat the fast freight
Or a flying passenger
Train to the crossing,
So I put on the brake and came
To a dead stop,
And I waited and waited
And waited,
But no train came, nor
Was there the slightest sign
Of one.
There was absolutely nothing
Anywhere to break the Great brooding silence of
The lonely moors.
And then I saw the gleaming
Bright headlight of the Train.
It seemed to be coming right
Towards me, but
I wasn't standing on the track,
So I didn't move.
The headlight disappeared and
I supposed the train had gone behind a Hill.
And then again the
Dazzling headlight appeared.
And then the guide who
Was escorting me to my Island home and who had Got far ahead came back
And wanted to know why
I was waiting, and when I told him
I was waiting for that train
To go by he said it Wasn't much use to wait, because
The light came from the revolving
Tower of the Sankaty Head Lighthouse and that the Sankaty Head Lighthouse was
A pretty solid affair of brick
And stone and Didn't roam much around
The island.
And then I pointed to the Railroad sign and my guide
Said to go closer
And read it and I did and It said:
"No Hunting Allowed."
And the guide said I needn't
Be afraid of butting
Into a railroad train on Nantucket Island, because there
Are no railroad trains on Nantucket Island.

And then in the calm, peaceful
Days that followed I found
There were a lot of things
That bother us over here
In the U. S. A. that Are not
On Nantucket Island.
There are no stoplights,
No bandits,
No big rumbling trucks,
No men walking up and down
With sandwich board signs Saying, "This Factory Unfair to Its Workers."
At first I thought the factory
Workers must be a very happy and Contented lot in far-off
Nantucket,
But then I decided that it
Might be due to the fact
That there are no
Factories
On Nantucket Island.
And for the same reason
I could walk cheerfully
Down Main street without
The slightest fear of somebody
Jumping out of the Seventeenth story window and lighting
On my head.
There are no seventeen story windows
In Nantucket,
Or even a twelve or a ten or a six.
If a building down there is three Stories high
They call it a skyscraper.
The highest eminence that Can be reached are the Widow's Walks
Built up on top of the apex of
The roofs on the beautiful
Old Nantucket houses.
These were built by the captains
Of whaling ships back in
The good old days when Nantucket was the Whaling capital of the world.
And when the captain was far
Out in the Atlantic and was gone
For weary weeks and months and even Years
His anxious wife would pace up and down
On the walk up on top
Of the roof, straining her tired
Eyes far out across the great, gray,
Tossing, endless sea,
Hoping to see the white sails
Of her captain's ship returning.
At first a roof walk was called
The Captain's Walk,
But so many captains never came Back from the sea and so many Lonely women kept vigil and Stared in vain across the Silent sea that
After a while a walk on top of a roof
Was called
"The Widow's Walk."

And all a seventeen story jumper
Could find high enough in Nantucket to leap from
Would be a Widow's Walk,
And it wouldn't do him much good.
He'd just roll down the roof and Get snagged by the seat of his Pants in the eaves trough
And be held there
Not over two or three stories from
The ground.
And he wouldn't even get sympathy.
The woman who lived in the House
Would merely come out and
Tell him would he please,
When he fell, not drop into her
Flower bed, as he might Break the Sweet Williams.
All together it's
Is Nantucket.

TRICHINOSIS.

THE human family is afflicted with several diseases caused by parasites. Some of these are acquired through eating the flesh of infected animals.

Trichinella spiralis is the name attached to a wormlike parasite that infects swine. It is particularly dangerous, as the encysted form may live for a long time in the muscles of an animal. The worm was first discovered in 1835 by James Paget in the course of a dissection. He observed tiny specks in the muscles and, on examining them, found that each speck consisted of a slender coiled worm. The name was suggested by Richard Owen.

In human beings the disease caused by this parasite is known as trichinosis. When infested meat is eaten the outer wall of the worm cyst is digested and the worm liberated. The worm itself is able to withstand digestion. The parasites breed in the intestine, and when the larvae are discharged from the adult females the young make their way into the muscles via the blood and the lymph.

The symptoms accompanying this infection in humans are fever, an acute inflammatory reaction in the gastro-intestinal tract, nausea and vomiting, and diarrhea accompanied by pain and prostration. After a few days there is a characteristic swelling of the face, particularly of the upper eyelids. If at this stage a blood examination is made a considerable increase in the white cells of the blood will be noted.

In many cases there is gradual recovery from the acute symptoms, followed by severe muscular pains due to the invasion of the muscle fibers by the parasite. In mild cases the disease usually terminates at the end of two weeks; in severe infections six to eight weeks or longer.

Trichinosis is prevalent throughout the world and cannot be considered a rare and unusual disease. No doubt there are many more cases than have been reported; in fact, it is assumed that mild cases are frequently unrecognized and may be diagnosed as influenza, rheumatic fever, or a mild form of typhoid. Epidemics occur with disconcerting frequency. Between 1929 and 1933 there were 166 cases reported in New York City, with three deaths. The United States public health service report for July 27, 1934, calls attention to the fact that at the present time trichinosis is an annoying problem. While the number of cases reported is not large, it shows that many people have failed to sense the importance of cooking pork and pork products thoroughly.

Reliable statistics indicate that about 2 per cent of swine in the United States are infested with trichinae, and that the disease in human beings follows the consumption of infested pork that has not been properly cooked. Occasionally epidemics have been traced to improperly cooked hamburger, which is presumably ground beef. When this occurs it has been found that pork has been mixed with beef, or that beef has been passed through a machine that has been used for grinding pork. The United States department of agriculture has frequently called attention to the fact that the certification that pork is wholesome does not mean that trichinae are not present. [See bureau of animal industry leaflet No. 34.]

Treatment is usually ineffective unless it can be started before the young worms invade the muscle tissue. If the disease is recognized early the physician knows the importance of clearing out the gastro-intestinal tract by means of vigorous cathartics.

BLOOD PRESSURE.

B. B. writes: When I recently took a physical examination I was found to have a blood pressure of 150. I am a boy 18 years old and of normal build.

REPLY.

Your systolic blood pressure is higher than it should be for one of your age. There must be some cause for this and you should return to your physician for a careful check.

Nervousness has something to do with increasing blood pressure. It may be that you were exceedingly nervous at the time your blood pressure was taken. Many persons who are normal physically and who are not at ease during an examination may show an increased pressure of 20 to 30 points.

SEND FOR BOOKLET.

O. J. A. writes: I have been looking for a discussion of prostate gland enlargement and suggestions for the relief of same. High frequency electric treatment has been suggested to me. Do you think such treatment would help?

REPLY.

We have a booklet on the prostate gland which you can get by sending 10 cents and a stamped, addressed envelope. You probably would not be helped by the suggested electrical treatments.

DIVORCE DECREE.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In the divorce decree I secured in Chicago it states that I should pay a certain sum each month for the support of my child, who is in the custody of his mother. 1. If the wife remarries, do I still have to pay for the support of the child? 2. If the mother should send the child out of the state for several months, do I have to pay for the time the child is away? 3. I'm to see the child at all convenient times, but when he is out of the state I can't go to see him. Would this be considered contempt of court on the mother's part? M. R. J.

1. Yes.

2. Yes, unless the decree contains wording to the contrary.

3. It would seem inconsistent with the provision which you mention, but we cannot give advice of much value without having the exact wording before us. The attorney who secured your divorce for you is in a better position to advise you than we are.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROPERTY TRANSFER.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am the owner of a first mortgage on a certain piece of property on which I am about to purchase the deed from the owner rather than foreclose. 1. What papers must be transferred to me by the owner of the property, and to what other papers must I have in order to transfer title and show ownership in my name? In the event of foreclosure, and after the period of redemption is over and the court decrees the property to me, [2] what papers are there I should have? R. P.

1. Ordinarily a quitclaim deed is the only paper on such a transaction, but the quitclaim would be of little value to you if the title of the grantor in that deed is subject to judgment liens or to junior mortgages. We advise you to employ an attorney in this transaction.

2. You will get a master's deed. We assume that, as the mortgage holder, you already have the abstract or some substitute and the other papers which you need.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—Visitors to Paris who remember fondly many of its picturesque quarters may never see them again unless they hurry over within the next couple of years. This fall when parliament gets back on the job one of its major tasks will be to accept or reject the so-called Marquet public works plan, and if a favorable vote is obtained some of Paris' most famous old corners will go.

Not since Baron Haussmann in the second empire cut ruthlessly through blocks of houses and constructed the wide avenues which now give Paris its form has so bold a plan been presented. Adrien Marquet, minister of public works, is father of the idea, and he will insist that if he is to remain in the national government it must be carried out. His scheme calls for spending about $650,000,000 in the improvement of roads, navigable ways and ports, the construction of schools, cheap lodgings and airdromes, and the suppression of grade crossings. About half this sum is intended for Paris and its suburbs.

One of the things the visitor will notice is the disappearance of the Carrousel bridge, sitting on its steel hoops, which leads across the Seine from the arches of the Louvre to the Quai Voltaire, just failing to hit the Rue des Saints Pères on the left bank, and just failing to dovetail with the arches on the right bank.

A bolder plan is to demolish the picturesque quarter which lies directly east of Place St. Michel, between the river and the Boulevard St. Germain. For centuries this section, known roughly as the St. Severin quarter, has been inhabited by students of the Sorbonne. Now it has fallen and is filled with cheap flophouses and dingy restaurants somewhat hard on the nose. Picturesque as it is, there will be compensation when this quarter is leveled, for then will emerge the two ancient churches of St. Julien-le-Pauvre and St. Severin, now almost completely hidden from view by the venerable houses crowded around them.

Two landmarks on the left bank slated to go are the medical school which has far outgrown the use intended for it when it was built in 1769, and the huge Hopital de la Charité, on the Rue Jacob, with its three deep and restful courts that seem to lead miles back from the old carriage entrance. When the imitation classic colonnade of the medical school disappears a new school will be built on the site of the hospital, which will be demolished to make way for it. The hospital will not have died in vain, for the school to be built on its grounds will be a medical center worthy of a modern capital, including two auxiliary hospitals as well as school buildings.

On the right bank, the assault on the quarter just east of the markets, between the lovely Tour St. Jacques and the city hall, which began some years ago, will continue. The sun will reach some of those streets for the first time since the middle ages when the ancient, leaning buildings disappear.

In the swollen suburbs the improvements begun some years ago when the city wall disappeared will be continued. Streets will be paved, lighting systems and sanitary systems extended and, most important of all, the subway system will go far beyond the "zones" that mark the site of the walls at points where it has not already penetrated.

A VALUABLE SUGGESTION.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—I have just finished reading your editorial on the Spirit of 1787.

After twenty years' experience in teaching history and civil government, your editorial is the first I have read that invites attention to a very real defect in our educational system.

The reason for the neglect in instruction regarding the constitution might be that the familiar is neglected. Every textbook I have used in a class has not made the constitution a live and interesting document. Rather have the books given cold, dry facts, and expected the student to memorize the powers of congress and other similar extracts.

A proper study of the constitution presented in the right manner can be made so interesting to even a seventh grade class that they will look forward to the period. With seven periods a day in various subjects a teacher has not the time for the necessary research and study to prepare the subject. Fortunately I have been able to gather such material over a long period and with a textbook as a reference make the subject approach what it should be.

Many of our texts seem to be prepared more from the social worker's point of view, or else that of the lawyer. What we need is a book prepared from the point of view of the average voter.

I admit the justice of your criticism; and now, in the same friendly spirit, might I make a suggestion? Couldn't a great newspaper in its columns present a series of lessons on the constitution that the average reader would look for and appreciate? Art and music get their columns. History gets plenty of space. Many magazines and newspapers devote much space to grammar and composition. Politics comes in for columns and columns. Why not an attempt to show the public the wonder of that document upon which our government is based? S.

THE NAME OF THE GREAT TAXONOMIST.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The undersigned, as a visitor, wishes to congratulate this community upon its excellent new zoölogical gardens at Brookfield. They are indisputably a worthy contribution to the numerous cultural attractions of Greater Chicago.

But how disappointing to find that the local scientific authorities responsible for the labels have in at least half the cases grossly misspelled the name of the great Swedish naturalist to whom is due by far the greater part of the credit for our modern scientific and exact system of naming plant and animal species. I refer to Prof. Karl von Linné [1707-'78], known to Europe, Asia, and the Americas as Linnaeus. The result of a careless blunder, he is read in Brookfield as Linneaus, which strikes the careful person with double force; it is not only a perversion of a distinguished man's name but false Latin as well.

The authorities would do well to keep posted on at least those elements of terminology with which the average schoolboy might not unreasonably be expected to be familiar. The writer, an amateur botanist, would like to hope that this humble reminder may serve its purpose in effecting an improvement as regards the labeling in question.

SIXTEN CEDERBLAD.

SPEAKING OF NON-HOG RAISING.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—The incentive given to industry and efficiency by our present economic program of paying the farmer for not raising pigs and for not growing cotton is somewhat similar to the incentive given the natives of one of the poorer counties of one of our backward states some years ago.

This county could not afford public institutions to care for its mentally defective and so made a cash allowance to families with mentally defective members of $50 per year to care for each defective.

A traveler going through the county and noting the neglected and rundown condition of the farms and homes finally came to one larger and more prosperous looking than any of the others.

Turning to his guide he said: "Who owns this place? It looks quite prosperous."

"O yes," said the guide. "That's Wash Widdicombe's place. Luckiest man in the county. Fohteen children and all ijits." W. V.

RELIEF CHISELING.

Chicago, Aug. 28.—I agree with Mr. Reynolds, secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, that all persons receiving unneeded relief from the taxpayers' money handled by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission are chiselers.

I am notifying Mr. Reynolds, as per his request, of the most flagrant case of chiseling of which I ever heard, namely, the paying of $18 per week by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission to teachers and ex-teachers for attending a school and receiving instruction in communism, singing the Internationale, and dancing.

How badly they must need this relief! This school is located in Judson court of the University of Chicago, although they claim it is not connected with the university. MARY C. SMITH.

AN INDUSTRY TO BE TAXED.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—In Chicago today there are 7,000 handbooks [estimated two months ago]. These places have been springing up like mushrooms after a spring rain and it seems the only qualification is a charge of 5 per cent of the weekly gross. This amount paid to, we don't know whom, runs from $50 to $6,000 per week for each establishment. Taking an average of $100 per place [a very low estimate], protection costs amount to $700,000 per week. If the city would license these places, charge the same fee as the bookies are paying today, it would add an income of $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 per year. The bookies are paying now. Why not let the city get this money? H. E. SMITH.

THE OLDEST JOKE.

Maywood, Cal., Aug. 25.—The county clerk in refusing a marriage license to one of the Siamese twins says that they are inseparable, so a man can't live with two women. My wife and her mother are inseparable, at least I never have been able to separate them, so I have been living with two women ever since I got married. Tell Violet to come to California and bring her sister with her. We are broad minded out here. H.

Into the Modern Room Hats

American Designers' Genius Is Conspicuous in New Millinery Showings at $8.75 and $10

It's a gay day for millinery, with so many utterly becoming styles waiting to be pulled and placed on feminine heads. And it's a great day for millinery value, as this Modern Room collection at its leading prices proves. New turbans, the hats you will see worn with so many afternoon costumes this season, are relying on painstaking workmanship and careful details for their strongest appeal. A hat of felt cut into feather shapes and peaked with tiny feather quills is but one individual idea. Toques cut on modified Russian lines, brims with a shallow young look, are exactly what many women have been looking for to begin a season of picturesque fashions. Fifth floor.

Informal Showings All Week on Second Floor

Practically every type of clothes the college girls need will be shown informally in the Silk and Woolen Sections on the second floor every day this week. See for yourself what to wear for classes, for trips to town, for rushing parties and proms.

Not for a long time have the new fabrics been as exciting as they are this fall, and you'll be surprised at how little a budget can be when you make your clothes yourself.

Outstanding Fabrics Featured

Among the new woolens, Darby Crepe is a light-weight wool crepe, in a complete line of new colors, including interesting dark shades and the bright Parisian shades. Its price is $2 a yard. Heatherlaine is another woolen that is simply grand for coats, skirts and suits. You'll like its soft basket weave, which in plain colors is simply stunning, combined with checks and plaids, for scarfs and blouses. It, too, is only $2 a yard.

New Silks Are Different

Pure dye silk faille, in all the new colors, at $1.50 a yard is the natural starting point for a wardrobe for both street and afternoon. Starfleck, a novelty silk with a satin thread, so lovely that you will surely want to use it, at $2 a yard. For afternoon and evening hammered satin promises to be much in prominence. You may choose from many shades at $1.50 a yard. Transparent velvets at $2.50 a yard and corduroys for lounging pajamas at $1 a yard are also featured this fall.

Lovely Laces for Evening

The Lace Section on the First Floor, North, State, is represented in the showing with two exquisite gowns. Several patterns in laces are excellent buys at $1.95 a yard.

Field's College Shop Approaches End of Eighth Great Season

The Sixth Floor's Special Section Closes Saturday

With Northwestern and Smith doing the honors today, Field's College Shop nears the end of its eighth successful season. Joann Wakeman of Northwestern and Lucille Wright of Smith will be on hand in the shop to offer advice on every type of clothes from sweaters to evening gowns.

In planning the College Shop, Field's worked with representatives from eight leading colleges, in order to get the real "low-down" on campus and week-end clothes. Each day two of these young women acted as hostesses in the shop. The schools with their representatives are as follows:

Chicago—Virginia Eyssel
Violet Elliot
Vassar—Elizabeth Quigley
Jane Bethge
Northwestern—Joann Wakeman
Cora Kling
Smith—Lucille Wright
Helen Korradary
Illinois—June Carpenter
Betty McNutt
Rockford—Ann Van Dyke
Helen Koon
Wellesley—Mary Agnew
Betty Luther
Wisconsin—Ethel Webster

College Corner Decorates Rooms

Field's new College Corner on the ninth floor furnishes the material (literally) to decorate college rooms in bright new ways at small cost. Draperies, studio couch covers, pillows, hassocks—planned to meet college requirements—are attractively displayed. Candlewick dot chintz draperies, trimmed with brush fringe, $4.50 a pair; modern cotton studio couch covers, $7.50 (with matching draperies, $7.50 and a bedspread at the same price), leatherette hassocks for as little as $3.85, pillows of all kinds—all these just begin to tell what there is to see and buy in the College Corner.

Designs in Clothes, Furnishings Predict Brilliant Season

Paris Dressmakers Launch Vintage Fashions Inspired by 1880 and Other Great Clothes Years.

CABLES from the Paris office of Marshall Field & Company, reporting on the Paris Openings, carry the news of a picturesque season of vintage fashions inspired by the great clothes years.

SHEATH dresses with slits in the hems to show your slippers will remind you of 1914. 1880 appears in other collections in gowns of stiff fabric and back drapery. 1840 (a becoming fashion, that!) and many others have been translated into the most modern of materials.

NEW ideas in decoration are more interesting than ever, whether you prefer traditional or modern rooms. Table appointments are very gay or dignified enough for the most elegant conservative.

AS always, the fall season really begins at Field's, where satisfactory examples of the new things have been carefully assembled for you.

Shoptalk

A twin-bed lamp that allows you to sleep in peaceful darkness while your spouse finishes his (or her) detective story, is more than a good-looking household furnishing. It's a boon to humanity. A really new lamp both in design and serviceability, it's made of white glass and metal, trimmed in classic motifs. $15, $16.50, $17.50 and $18.50. Lamps, Second Floor, Wabash.

Good to look at and useful as well is the Venetian glass smoking set that just arrived. There are four ash-trays and a holder—very graceful in shape—and in perfectly enchanting pastel colors. The five pieces total just $3.50 and are found in the Glass Section on the Second Floor.

Monday Morning Coach is a grand new game for football fans to play indoors. The children will love it if their parents give up the game long enough to let them have it. The set, complete with special cards, $2.50. Games, Fourth Floor.

Patrons in a Big Hurry Like Crystal Buffet

Shoppers and busy business women with just a few minutes for lunch flock to the Crystal Buffet on the Seventh Floor. This service has proved so popular that recently the space devoted to it was more than doubled to assure patrons of quick service. The food is tempting, the prices are very moderate, and it is not necessary to tip for service.

Caters to Gourmets

Fish, fresh sea foods, fowls, game in season, artfully prepared, are specialties of the English Room on the Seventh Floor. This Room, recently remodeled, brings you all the hospitable and quaint atmosphere of Old England.

ILLINOIS LEGION PUTS CHICAGOAN IN CHIEF PLACE

Paul G. Armstrong Is New Commander.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Paul G. Armstrong of Square post, No. 232, was elected commander of the Illinois department of the American Legion late today, to succeed Charles C. Kapschull of Deerfield. Frank M. Brown, Rock Island post, No. 200, was chosen senior vice commander.

The Rev. Henry Cluver, Belleville, was elected chaplain. Kapschull was made Illinois' member of the national board; Edward McGinnis of Chicago is his alternate.

The following junior vice commanders were chosen: First division, Matthew Murphy, Chicago; Second division, D. Hardie, Freeport; Third division, A. G. Crump, Barry; Fourth division, Paul Dunn, Divernon; Fifth division, Royce Allison, Chester.

Opposes Child Labor.

The convention adopted a resolution that NRA code provisions against child labor be made permanent, that cities act to prevent the use of children to sell articles on the streets.

A national defense program was adopted for a treaty strength navy, an adequate army and the best of equipment for both. The plan included the replacement of present training ships of the naval militia on the Great Lakes by four new vessels. The present ships were called obsolete.

Without discussion the convention declared for immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus and instructed delegates to the national convention to present the resolution at Miami.

Urges Faith in President.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago in a speech urged the Legionnaires to re-dedicate themselves to service, to community, state and nation, and to reassert their faith in their President.

"It is peace we want, not war," Mayor Kelly declared, "but if America is thrown into war, I don't want to see a few people carry the burden while others lend no hand to the cause. I want to see the so-called 'war profiteering' done away with completely and I want to have industry conscripted."

The Mel Tierney post drum and bugle corps of Park Ridge retained its class A championship in the state contests, winning $300; the Commonwealth Edison placed second, with Danville third and Evanston fourth.

In class B the Galva post team won first place, defeating Duquoin, last year's champions, which finished third. The Logan Square post, Chicago, grabbed second and Joliet fourth.

Wants Insurance Restored.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis told the convention that "it is a crime that the men who had insurance, but who have not been able to pay the premiums should have the insurance lost to them. I urge that as we advanced favor to bankers, farmers, and others the time has finally come when we should say that the soldier who has lost his insurance will have it returned to him without a forfeit."

SHIP SETS OUT TO MAKE ICE FROM WARM SEA WATER

DUNKIRK, France, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The 10,000 ton steamer Tunisie, designed to make tropical sea water produce cheap ice, steamed out of Dunkirk today for its first test. The experiment is to be conducted at Rio de Janeiro, where the inventor, Georges Claude, 64 year old Frenchman, awaits the ship. A few hours behind the ice ship sailed the S. S. Myson, carrying a tube which, when fitted together, is 8 feet in diameter and one-half mile long, part of the ice making equipment.

The theory is that the ice ship will produce electric power by the action of warm and cold water drawn from different levels of the sea. This free power Inventor Claude intends to use to produce 1,000 tons of ice a day to cool the drinks and preserve the food of sweltering South Americans.

On the deck of the floating ice factory are immense reservoirs and a complex system of pipes, turbines, and refrigerating units. M. Claude's new venture is the fruit of experiments at Ougree, Belgium, in 1928 and off the coast of Cuba in 1931. The process, briefly, consists of making warm water from the surface of tropical seas boil by introducing it into a vacuum, utilizing the vapor to run turbines and then condensing it with cold water drawn from the depths.

CLAIMS $17,000 PAID IN ST. LOUIS KIDNAPING CASE

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Edwin R. Christman testified in a deposition given today at Clayton that the McBride family paid $17,000 or $19,500 because of the kidnaping of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley in 1931.

Christman, treasurer of an oil company, is representative of the McBride estate, in which Mrs. Kelley shares.

Christman said $1,500 went to a private detective and the remainder to two lawyers, Charles A. Karch of East St. Louis, then a congressman-elect, and William Baer of St. Louis. Both Karch and Baer have since died.

Christman said he paid Karch $10,500 or $12,500, and Baer $3,500 or $4,000.

After Dr. Kelley's release Karch said he had been employed by the socially prominent physician's brother-in-law and an attorney for the family to get in touch with Sigmund Bass, St. Louis attorney, who had been named in the note of the kidnapers as the person with whom to deal. He said he stipulated he would not "barter with the underworld," and was told he would not be expected to do so.

Baer was employed as Dr. Kelley's adviser after his return. He had no part in the case before that time.

BOARD OF EDUCATION SUMMER WORKERS TO GET FALL PAY TODAY

Board of education employes will be paid on time today for the first time in three and one-half years as 2,500 summer workers receive $170,000 for the last two weeks of August. The pay day marks the beginning of regular cash pay days on the due dates, said James B. McCahey, president of the board. In the future all employes will be paid monthly, rather than biweekly as at present, to effect a saving in bookkeeping costs, McCahey added.

While the regular school clerical staff was preparing the August pay roll, the special disbursing offices at 130 North Wells street were paying out more than $1,000,000 to creditors who hold teachers' assigned checks. The money was provided by the Reconstruction Finance corporation loan.

There are more than 2,000 teachers who have not yet received their checks, covering seven months' back pay, from the Wells street offices, said Arthur Schweitzer, assistant school business manager in charge. Less than 400 called for their pay yesterday.

250,000 BACK AT PAROCHIAL AND SUBURB SCHOOLS

Their long summer vacation ended, a quarter of a million children trooped back to school yesterday. Of these, about 205,000 enrolled in the parochial schools of this archdiocese and some 50,000 attended new classes in public schools in the suburbs and elsewhere in the county. The Chicago public schools do not open until Sept. 17.

The Rev. D. F. Cunningham, superintendent of Catholic schools, estimated that 170,000 had enrolled in elementary schools under his jurisdiction, 20,000 in high schools, and 15,000 in colleges.

Frank J. Petru, president of the Cicero board of education, said he expected a total enrollment of 8,000 in the grade schools, an increase of 1,000 over last year. It is the largest increase in more than three years, he said. Berwyn's registration was 3,000, Blue Island's, 2,600, and River Forest's, 1,000.

Estimated high school enrollments were: Sterling Morton, in Cicero, 6,000; Proviso Township, 3,350, and Thornton Township, 2,100.

CHILDREN RAISE CASH FOR CAMP AND ICE FUNDS

More last minute contributions from children before their return to school were received yesterday by THE TRIBUNE free ice and Camp Algonquin funds.

Up at Lake Delavan, Wis., five little girls gave a play, charged 10 cents admission and raised $5 for the Camp Algonquin fund. They reported the play "a grand success and hope this money will bring as much joy to others as it has to the ones who earned it." Those taking part were Constance Long, Nancy, Billy, and Joan Nelson, and Suzanne Powner.

The ice fund was the gainer through $4.25 raised by a group of children who had a neighborhood show. The children were Jean Grossman, Morton Bolch, Celeste Saperston, Marilyn and Teddy Goehler, and Herman Buiski. This gives the free ice fund a grand total of $6,685.46.

A $10 gift from O. E. Wilke, also of Lake Delavan, brought the Camp Algonquin fund to $6,241.26. Gifts to both funds will be accepted throughout September and may be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

Two Escape as Stolen Car Crashes in Chase

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.
Automobiles stolen, 31; recovered, 29; stripped, 2 [from police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Monday].

Three youths escaped serious injury when the stolen car in which they were riding overturned last night after a chase through southwest side streets by Sergt. Frank Poettle and his squad from the Lawndale station. Although the automobile was wrecked when it overturned at 25th street and Ridgeway avenue, its occupants managed to escape. Fifteen minutes later, however, Sergt. Poettle arrested one of the youths and took him in the squad car while they searched for his companions. Several shots were fired by the police during the chase.

PROMOTER HELD IN ASSAULT ON U. S. WITNESSES

Frank P. Parish Arrested in New York.

FRANK P. PARISH.

Frank P. Parish, former head of the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company, was arrested yesterday in New York and charged with assaulting two government witnesses. He will be brought to Chicago today as government prosecutors go before the federal grand jury here to seek an indictment on the charge.

Parish, who is scheduled to go on trial on Oct. 1 on a charge of using the mails to defraud growing out of the $35,000,000 collapse of the pipe line company, was seized by postal inspectors when he went to New York to see his brother, Preston Parish, who died an hour before his arrival.

Sought Since Aug. 14.

Assistant United States Attorney Warren G. Canady revealed after the arrest that Parish has been sought since Aug. 14, when he and another man, identified only as John Doe, assaulted W. G. Maguire, former director of the Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company, a subsidiary of the Missouri-Kansas company, and Phillips B. Preston, once treasurer of the parent company. Both men are to appear as government witnesses in the prosecution of Parish on the mail fraud charge.

According to Prosecutor Canady the assault occurred in a room in the Palmer house. Maguire, a utility broker with offices at 231 South La Salle street, was in the room in conference with Preston.

Relates Story of Assault.

As they were talking Parish, who is six feet tall and heavily built, entered the room with his companion, who has never been identified. The second man, government agents were told, was more than six feet tall and wore "fancy clothing."

Maguire is a small man, while Preston is approximately the same size as Parish. According to the Prosecutor Maguire greeted the two visitors affably and offered them refreshment.

Parish and his companion, however, according to the evidence in the case, removed their coats and maintained a sinister silence. Then Parish's companion leaped upon Maguire and struck him with his fist, the prosecutor said. Parish is said to have leaped upon Preston.

After a struggle of several minutes Preston is said to have managed to kick the telephone from its stand. Parish and his companion then ran out, knowing that the receiverless telephone would bring hotel employes.

"Boy Wizard of Finance."

A search for Parish is no new experience for government agents. The financier, who earned the title of "The Boy Wizard of Finance" after he had accumulated his first million dollars at the age of 17 years, fled the jurisdiction of the Chicago federal courts in February, 1933, shortly before the mail fraud trial was scheduled to start.

Leaving a note announcing that he had gone into "voluntary exile" because he was not ready for trial, Parish disappeared for more than ten months. He was never located by government agents until he surrendered at the United States courthouse on Dec. 8, 1933. Continuances for various reasons have delayed the start of the trial since that time.

Bar Committee Chief Hurt in Fall from Horse

Attorney Stephen Love, 43 years old, 935 Judson avenue, chairman of the grievance committees of the Chicago and Illinois bar associations, is recovering in the Evanston hospital from a broken arm incurred when he was thrown from a horse he was riding Sunday, it was learned yesterday. The accident happened while Mr. Love was riding with Lieut. John M. Higgins, U. S. N.

NEAL MYERS.

Norman, Okla., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Neal Myers sat unruffled in court today as attorneys completed a jury to hear a charge of murder against him. He is accused of killing 19 year old Marian Mills, his co-ed sweetheart at the University of Oklahoma.

Prosecutors will ask a life term in prison, although a death sentence is permitted in Oklahoma.

The defendant sat between his father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Myers of El Reno. Myers seemed the most dressed person in the little courtroom. After fleeing from the girl's deathbed July 10 after summoning a physician, he wandered for three weeks. Since then he has been in jail.

He is expected to deny he was responsible for an attempted criminal operation that caused the death of Miss Mills. He wants to return to the university, where he was a junior, if cleared.

Prof. and Mrs. Elbert M. Mills, the parents of the dead girl, were not in court as the trial started. Neither was Mrs. Hazel Brown, the fraternity house cook in whose home Miss Mills was found dead. The president of Myers' fraternity was among the few students in court today. The university does not reopen for some time.

French Lines Chief Tells of New Passenger Ship

Henri Canfardel of Paris, managing director of the French lines, arrived in Chicago to visit the Fair yesterday and announced approaching completion of the Normandie, electrically propelled passenger liner that is to be the largest vessel afloat. The Normandie will make her maiden voyage to America next year. She will be 1,027 feet long, with a beam of 119 feet, and will weigh 75,000 tons gross.

$210,000 in Court Costs Paid City in Phone Case

The corporate fund of the city was enriched by $210,000 yesterday when a check for that amount was received from the Illinois Bell Telephone company. The money is in repayment for the city's cost in prosecuting the telephone rate litigation, as ordered several weeks ago by the United States District court. It will be used to meet pay rolls.

HOLD POLICEMAN TO GRAND JURY IN ROBBERY CASE

Lee Johnson, policeman attached to the Austin station, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $10,000 yesterday by Judge William Helander in the felony court after Louis Podesta, 410 North First avenue, Geneva, identified him as the bandit who robbed him of 50 cents and his automobile at the point of a revolver last Saturday.

Podesta's father, Emanuel, 856 North Kedvale avenue, who was following his son in another car, substantiated the identification. Johnson denied the charge. He was suspended by Police Commissioner James P. Allman, following his arrest.

Assistant State's Attorney Patrick Danher told the court the Des Plaines street police, who arrested Johnson, had obtained a statement from him admitting his guilt, but claiming he was intoxicated. Johnson denied making a statement.

INTIMATE FACTS!
Send for free copy of "Things People Won't Talk About," a new 32-page illustrated book telling what venereal diseases are, what they do, how they are contracted, how to avoid them, and how they can be cured. Mailed in plain sealed envelope.

Don't blind yourself

to the seriousness of neglecting these deadly infections

If you know or suspect you have contracted a venereal disease, go immediately to your family doctor or a good clinic for advice!

A great many people who have gonorrhea or syphilis are inclined to make light of their infections. They blind themselves to the fact that these two diseases are truly deadly —that between them they are the direct or indirect cause of at least 300,000 premature deaths every year!

Thus, if infected, it is extremely dangerous to do any of the following things: (1) neglect your disease, (2) attempt to treat it yourself, or (3) stop going to a doctor before he pronounces you cured. To do so is to run the risk of developing a disability that will not only make you dependent upon others for support but shorten your life by many years.

Pay no attention, therefore, to the man who tells you that gonorrhea is no worse than a bad cold. For, if neglected or aggravated by self treatment, this treacherous infection may lead to crippling rheumatism, sterility, or serious prostate, bladder and other troubles. Among women, neglected gonorrhea is a common cause of pelvic peritonitis—a condition which often necessitates a mutilating operation.

Likewise, ignore the man who says it is useless to try to cure syphilis, and that the treatment is worse than the disease itself. For syphilis can be cured or arrested with little discomfort, and unless this is done it is very likely to produce disastrous results. It may bring on blindness, deafness or heart disease, or it may cause apoplexy, paralysis, locomotor ataxia or even insanity! And untreated syphilis in women is directly responsible for the majority of stillborn, deformed and feeble-minded babies.

Hence all those who know or suspect themselves to be venereally infected should seek competent medical advice immediately! Your family physician is a dependable man to consult. Or you can go to a good clinic such as the Public Health Institute, which has given over 4,000,000 treatments to more than 200,000 individual patients.

Equally as important as starting treatment promptly is continuing it until cured. Never take it upon yourself to decide if a cure has been effected, even though your symptoms may seem to have disappeared completely. If you are already under treatment, do as your doctor tells you and continue to consult him regularly until he says you are well. For only by repeated physical examinations and laboratory tests can a physician determine if a venereal disease has been cured.

Founded by public-spirited citizens NOT FOR PROFIT, the Public Health Institute specializes in the treatment of venereal diseases at remarkably low fees. An examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including blood and other tests, costs only $3.00, while some treatments for syphilis cost as little as $1.00 and some of those for gonorrhea still less. Even persons pressed for funds can arrange to be treated.

NOTE: The Public Health Institute has no connection with any other Chicago health or medical institute, and should not be confused with those operated for personal gain!

Gas Service Chosen for its Convenience

So convenient and cheap is gas service that it has come to be considered a necessity in every Chicago home. Few Chicagoans, in fact, can remember when they didn't have gas to make living more comfortable.

This acceptance of a convenience as a necessity may obscure the fact that the use of gas service is a matter entirely up to the individual customer. Gas service is chosen voluntarily, not thrust upon anyone. It is chosen because it is the ideal way to cook, to heat water, to run a refrigerator, or to keep the house warm.

The extent to which gas service is used is also a matter of choice with the individual customer. In spite of the fact that the company is obligated to serve every customer with all the gas he wants, any time, there is no corresponding obligation on the customer's part to use any stated amount.

Whether or not to use gas service is entirely a matter for a customer to decide. Close to 800,000 individual customers, representing nearly every Chicago home, use gas for its convenience and economy.

STARTLING TRIAL OFFER. Gas heat installed at our expense, removed at our expense, if you don't like it

IF you're tired of hauling ashes, cleaning up furnace muss, if you're fed up with paying bills for cleaning walls, curtains and furnishings that have been covered with soot, dirt and grime, here's a valuable suggestion: Get the facts on low cost gas heat!

More than twenty thousand home owners in the Chicagoland area who rebelled against furnace worries are now enjoying the unequalled comforts and conveniences of gas heat. It will pay you to investigate thoroughly the possibility of automatic gas heat in your home. Put an end to drudgery and furnace muss. You can do it without investing a cent for equipment.

We make this startling offer because we have confidence in the performance of gas heat. We are sure that you will never return to old heating methods once you've known the convenience and happiness gas heat will bring to your home. Investigate low cost gas heating now. The radical reductions of rates—now less than half of what they were a few years ago—make it more than ever practical for every home.

Our trial proposition

To prove that every home can now afford to heat with gas, we'll install it in your present furnace or boiler at our expense. You can try it one month, two months, a year. If within the first year you find you don't like gas heat, we'll remove it at our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. While you are trying it you pay only a small rental during the nine heating months—only $3 a month for the burner in the average home. When you decide to keep gas heat, the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment. The rental charge is included with the bill for the gas you use.

Accept this offer now. There's no fire building with gas heat. It's automatic, and a little thermostat on the wall keeps the temperature exactly as you want it.

Try it now

We'll gladly give you the facts on heating your home with gas, together with an estimate on the cost. Call your nearest gas office today. There is absolutely no obligation on your part.

PARAGUAY AVERS LEAGUE FAVORS BOLIVIA IN REPORT

Rejects Treaties Offered by Commission.

GENEVA, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Paraguay today issued an official protest to the recent report of the League of Nations commission on the Chaco war, claiming it was prejudiced and partial to Bolivia, then warned that whatever may be the judgment of the league council on the Chaco report, Paraguay would be obliged to reject it.

"Paraguay also rejects," said the official communication, "any future proposal that might be based on the conclusion of the Chaco report or on a draft of treaties suggested by the commission. The commission's report has aroused in the people and the government of Paraguay a sense of terrible and unmerited injustice."

Yielded to Bolivia.

Insisting that Paraguay always has stood for security first and arbitration afterward, Paraguay declared she was unable to agree to any reopening of the question of the territorial award by President Hayes of the United States in 1879 as suggested recently by Bolivia—the Hayes award having assigned the Chaco Boreal to Paraguay.

In the document, Paraguay declared the league commission involved itself as Bolivia desired in the complicated question of substance instead of causing the cessation of the bloody conflict in which thousands of men have been slain during the last four years.

"The commission," complained Paraguay, "paid no attention to the political aspect of the problem. It failed to realize that only a very small part of the dispute could be dealt with by arbitration.

"Above all, it endeavored to turn its back upon the bloody reality. It was unwilling to realize the existence of the war and of an aggressor.

"Regardless of all morality, it placed a country that had faithfully discharged its international obligation on a footing of complete equality with a country that has violated them.

"It was unwilling to decide which was the guilty party and to demand punishment."

Bolivia Claims Victory.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Military authorities said today they believed the Paraguayan offensive in the Chaco Boreal had been stopped and that a counter offensive by Bolivia was under preparation.

The ministry of war issued the following communique:

"In a zone located east of Algondonal a strong force of Bolivian patrols surprised and defeated an important portion of the enemy. After a violent attack, the enemy retreated in disorder, abandoning its camp, 100 dead and arms and ammunitions of all classes. They were able to save only their wounded whom they transported by trucks from a small hospital."

Rear Admiral Horne Hurt in Auto Accident

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Rear Admiral F. J. Horne was injured painfully today when his automobile left a highway near here and burst into flames. Three of his fingers were almost severed. The admiral was removed to the naval hospital. Mrs. Horne escaped injury. The accident resulted from the naval officer swerving his machine to avoid hitting an oncoming street car. Horne is a native of San Pedro, Cal.

Pays Fine for Contempt in False Tax Testimony

Joseph A. Schwartz, 1341 North Shore avenue, an auditor recently convicted of contempt of court by Municipal Judge Cecil J. Smith, who later vacated the sentence and substituted a $300 fine, paid off yesterday. Schwartz was convicted of giving false testimony in a personal property tax suit. The sentence was rescinded when members of the state's attorney's staff said he was not a member of the "tax fixing" ring.

DRIVER ORDERED HELD FOR DEATH OF PEDESTRIAN

Leon Drewniakowski, 2646 Chicago avenue, was recommended held to the grand jury for manslaughter at an inquest into the death of a man who was run down by his automobile at Warren boulevard and California avenue early yesterday. The victim was believed to be John Roberts, 2742 Washington boulevard, but late last night no one had identified him.

Policeman William Sexton testified that tire marks indicated Drewniakowski's car skidded 105 feet before it struck the man. Paul Ziegler, 36 years old, 2939 Walton street, a passenger in the car, was charged with disorderly conduct when Communistic literature was found in his pockets.

Two other deaths raised the total of automobile fatalities in Cook county since Jan. 1 to 613. The victims:

Joan Marie Valluzzi, 2 years old, fatally injured when a car driven by her father, James, 28, of 1133 West 104th place, crashed against a locomotive on the Indiana Harbor Belt Line at 53d street and Kolin avenue. Her sister, Phyllis, 5, is in the South Town hospital with a fractured skull.

Peter Depierro, 65 years old, 1914 Hudson avenue. Died in the Evangelical Deaconess hospital of injuries incurred when he was struck by the automobile of a hit and run driver at 1469 North Ogden avenue.

Mrs. Elsie Kaiser, 49 years old, 5748 Grace street, was killed and three other Chicagoans were injured yesterday in an automobile collision nine miles east of Lima, O. The others, who suffered cuts and bruises, were Mrs. Kaiser's husband, Ernest, and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Heinemann, 4130 Marmora avenue.

TOTING MACHINE GUN DRAWS HIM TERM IN PRISON

Emil Appa, 29 years old, was sentenced yesterday to serve one to ten years in the penitentiary for possessing a machine gun by Judge Joseph B. David in the Criminal court. The judge, after delivering a denunciation of machine gun gangsters, ruled that Appa must spend one day in solitary confinement for each year spent in the penitentiary.

Appa, who was arrested Aug. 2 at Monroe and Halsted streets, was carrying a machine gun stolen from the Morgan Park Military academy.

"If I had my way in these cases I would sentence every man found carrying a machine gun to the penitentiary for the rest of his natural life," Judge David said. "Imagine men having the effrontery to steal the arms of the United States to slaughter other citizens!"

Gracie Allen was in town yesterday—and she was not looking for her missing brother! Leaving George Burns behind to spend a week-end of wisecracking with the Jack Bennys in New York, Gracie and the "girl friend" of her broadcasts, Mary Kelly, came out Labor day to visit Miss Kelly's mother, who came up from Pennfield, Ill. They returned to New York last night to begin work on their new radio show, "The Adventures of Gracie," which goes on the air over CBS Sept. 19. Bobbie Dolan's orchestra will be used and several vocalists are yet to be chosen. Gracie is eager to get back to broadcasting. Since June George and Gracie have only been heard once in America—and that was a relay from the British Broadcasting company. Incidentally they had their first microphone experiences over BBC, Gracie recalled yesterday.

It took a trip to Europe on the part of Charlie Correll [Andy] to make his father, J. B. Correll, leave Peoria to make his first trip to New York. Charlie's father left yesterday by car to meet him when he arrives Friday on the Aquitania. Mrs. Freeman Gosden, wife of Correll's partner, has gone to California to bring Amos back to Chicago. If she succeeds in prying him loose from Hollywood Amos 'n' Andy will be back on the air Sept. 17.

The Jan Garbers have turned down an attractive offer from Paramount to have their daughter Janice enter pictures. The company sought the services of the 5 year old youngster as a competitor for Fox's Shirley Temple. Asked whether she would care to go into pictures Janice said: "I would rather go back to Chicago with daddy."

Young Arthur Wright's blithe singing on W-G-N and WBBM yesterday masked his anguish over the sudden loss of a close friend. Joseph Winkler, who was killed in a railroad accident yesterday on his way back to Wheaton, had been Art's guest in Chicago over Labor day. While Art was on the air word of the fatal accident reached the studios. But in radio as on the stage, the show must go on. So Art went on with his program.

Little Jackie Heller, NBC singer and a former boxer, will fly to New York tomorrow morning after his appearance on "The Carnival" for the Ross-McLarnin fight in the evening. . . . When Harry Richman goes on the air tonight at 9:30 on his regular NBC program he will be supported by an orchestra under the direction of Jack Golden. Jack Denny will play from New York. . . . Frankie Masters and his orchestra will open an engagement at the Palace theater on Friday.

JOHN D. BOWEN DEAD; N. Y. BANK CORRESPONDENT

John D. Bowen, 32 years old, an assistant treasurer and Chicago correspondent of the Guaranty Trust company of New York, died last night in the Presbyterian hospital after an illness of three months following an operation for appendicitis. Funeral services are planned for tomorrow morning at 11 at the Loyola university chapel. The body will be shipped to Pelham Manor, N. Y., for burial.

Mr. Bowen was associated with the National Bank of Commerce prior to its merger with the Guranty company in 1929. That year he was made a district representative and four years ago was appointed Chicago correspondent. He was born in Boonton, N. J., and was educated at the Brooklyn Preparatory school and the University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Bowen was a member of the University and Attic clubs, and the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. He is survived by his parents, the Oliver W. Bowens, and a brother, Francis.

Antoinette Donnelly Tells How Noted Beauties Keep Charm

Wedding to Henry Ullmann in Santa Barbara.

BY JUDITH CASS.

IF they had their wish a number of Chicagoans would be in Santa Barbara, Cal., this afternoon to witness the wedding of two former Chicagoans, Miss Martha Dickinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Reynolds Dickinson, and Henry Johnson Ullmann Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson Ullmann.

The service is to be read at 4:30 o'clock at Hope Ranch park, the Dickinsons' Santa Barbara home, by the Rev. Samuel N. Watson, former rector of the American church in Paris. Miss Dickinson will be gowned in dull creamy satin fashioned on sheathlike lines with long close fitting sleeves, a cowl neck, and a court train. Over the train will float a billowy veil of tulle. The bridal bouquet will be a shower of valley lilies and gardenias.

To attend her sister as maid of honor, Miss Nancy Dickinson will wear a dress and picture hat of autumn brown and carry an armload of talisman roses. William Franklin Luton will serve Mr. Ullmann as best man and ushering will be William Reynolds Dickinson Jr., a brother of the bride, and Robert Johnson.

A reception is to follow the ceremony and then Mr. Ullmann and his bride will leave on a wedding trip, from which they will return Dec. 1 to settle on Hope ranch.

Chicago Relatives at Charlevoix.

The John P. Wilsons, junior and senior, and the Francis R. Dickinson family are among those who would like to be in Santa Barbara for the ceremony for Mrs. Wilson and Mr. Dickinson are the bride's father's sister and brother. Both the senior Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and the Dickinsons are, however, still at their summer homes in Charlevoix. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will be at home again in their State parkway apartment on Saturday.

The Ullmann family has many relatives here, both on the north shore, where Dr. and Mrs. Ullmann and their children lived before moving west, and in Oak Park and River Forest. Frederic Ullmann of Winnetka is a cousin of Dr. Ullmann.

Miss Marjorie White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. White of Pasadena, formerly of Chicago, whose engagement to John S. Blankenhorn we announced yesterday, will be married on Sept. 12. The service will be read at the White home in Pasadena. Mr. Blankenhorn is the son of David Blankenhorn of Los Angeles and Mrs. Maurice Wells of New York City.

Eastern Romance of Interest Here.

Another out of town romance of interest to Chicagoans is the announcement in South Orange, N. J., of the engagement of Miss Virginia Hall Smith, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Hoffman Smith III., to Joel Stewart Littleton Reynolds of Hulton Park, West Orange, N. J. Miss Smith is well known here through her aunt, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, whom she has visited frequently.

Mrs. Upham is still at her lovely summer home, Lone Pine, in Keene valley, New York, in the heart of the Adirondacks, and will be away until the end of this month. She writes that the autumn coloring is without compare. Her Chicago neighbors, Dr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Croftan returned yesterday to their apartment at 223 East Delaware place.

Miss Ruth Seanor has decided upon Sept. 20 for her wedding to John E. Hubbell of New York. This pretty daughter of the Harry Eugene Seanors of Evanston and the son of the John E. Hubbells of Bronxville, N. Y., will be wed at an evening ceremony in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church in Evanston at 8 o'clock, with a small reception afterward at home. Miss Helen Dawes and Mrs. Chandler Kibbee, the former Jane Bartley, will be Miss Seanor's only attendants. Dawson Wrightson will serve Mr. Hubbell as best man, and the ushers will be four more young men from the east.

Mr. Hubbell has planned a European wedding trip for his bride and himself. They will spend a month abroad, returning to make their home in Scarsdale, N. Y.

W. T. Durbin II. to Join His Parents in Vermont.

Winfield Taylor Durbin II., who landed on the Bremen recently from a summer abroad, is in Scranton, Pa., for the wedding festivities and marriage of a Williams classmate, James A. Linen III., and Miss Sara Scranton. Mr. Durbin soon will join his parents, the Fletcher Durbins, at Manchester, Vt.

Word from Haverford, Conn., tells of the marriage that took place there last Friday of Miss Miriam Elise Vane, daughter of the Augustus Safer Vanes, to Lieut. Chandler Wilce Johnson, son of Mrs. Jared Larison Johnson of Highland Park. After a wedding trip Lieut. Johnson and his bride will live at Fredericksburg, Va.

Mrs. D. Mark Cummings and Mrs. James C. Sharp returned to Lake Forest Monday evening from their extended motor trip through the eastern provinces of Canada and New England. Mrs. Charles Adsit, who was the third member of the party, has remained at Osterville on Cape Cod, from where she will go to Marion, Mass., to visit her daughter, Mrs. Edgar C. Rust.

The last letter from Mrs. Cummings' daughter, Mrs. Curtis B. Munson, reports a grand four weeks' camping trip north of Edmonton, Alberta, where they have now taken a furnished house. Mr. and Mrs. Munson

THE latest contributions to the What-price-fame department concern Rembrandt, and Lessing J. Rosenwald. A girl named Dorothy Stanton, one of the officials of the Albany Institute of History and Art, is in town, and in telling of Mr. Rosenwald's financial help to the museum she mentioned an incident that occurred when an exhibition of etchings by Rembrandt, loaned by Mr. Rosenwald, was opened to the public. A man who was getting out a little booklet about what to see in Albany telephoned Miss Stanton, and she told him, with pleasure, of the fine collection about to be shown.

"There are some sixty etchings by Rembrandt," she concluded.

"What's his last name?" asked the man.

"Van Ruyn," she said.

"Well, do you think they'll know who I mean if I just say Rembrandt?" he inquired anxiously.

MR. ROSENWALD was asked to come to Albany for the official opening of the collection, and he was photographed by a local newspaper at the opening ceremonies. However, when his picture appeared in the paper the caption beneath it was the cameraman's version of the name he had caught. It was "Lansing T. Griswold."

THE prize entry for the What-Is-Fame department was the question asked by Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank when she came to the breakfast table at the week-end house party at the Fairbank country place at Lake Geneva. She had a newspaper in her hand and the first page streamer announced the shooting of Russ Columbo.

"What does it mean, Russ Columbo?" she asked. "A Russian navigator?"

THE janitor of a building that housed a bank, now defunct, apparently has a sense of humor. It is in the vicinity of 71st street and Jeffery avenue—one of the Bain banks—and there was a sign in the window last week-end reading:

"Closed all day Labor day."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Little Shirley Temple comes gallantly up to scratch in "Now and Forever," a makeshift vehicle, palpably scrambled together in a hurry that the child might be kept before the public.

There seems nothing to do about it. The Hollywood producers have apparently decided that Shirley must, invariably, constitute a sort of one baby Legion of Decency whose screen duty it shall be, adorably and unconsciously, to reform adult crooks. This trip, Gary Cooper instead of James Dunn ["Baby Take a Bow"] is the renegade papa. Carole Lombard plays Toni, his mistress, who yearns to do him good and live conventionally but loves him enough to travel the wrong road with him. Toni, a merry rascal known as Uncle Felix, and Mrs. Crane, a crusty dowager of unlimited wealth are all quite helpless when Shirley [Penny] turns upon them her believing eyes, the sunshine of her smile, and asks them: "Honor bright?"

Messrs. Cooper, Emery, and Standing and Charlotte Granville do well with their portions of shoddy story material. Carole Lombard, I thought miscast. She acts, it seemed to me, as if she'd never seen a child before, and I care not at all for her lax mouth and effortful delivery which suggests pulmonary complications. I realize, however, that my reactions are not shared by all. Many most discriminating folks consider Miss Lombard one of our foremost young actresses.

Shirley does a beautiful job. She succeeds in being natural throughout and you love her madly every moment. I would say that "Now and Forever" is worthwhile for just one reason—Shirley Temple.

"HOUSEWIFE."

Directed by Alfred E. Green.
Presented at the Garrick theater.

THE CAST.

William Reynolds	George Brent
Patricia Berkeley	Bette Davis
Nan	Ann Dvorak
Paul	John Halliday
Dora	Ruth Donnelly
George	Hobart Cavanaugh
Sam Blake	Robert Barrat
Kruezer	Joe Cawthorne
Radio Singer	Phil Regan
The Judge	Willard Robertson
Buddy	Ronnie Cosby
Jennie	Leila Bennett
Mr. Simmons	Harry Tyler
Bolton	Charles Coleman

The sooner Bette Davis can forget her success as Somerset Maugham's green faced, bile natured heroine in "Of Human Bondage" the better for her.

Like a faint, unpleasant odor, the cheap mannerisms of Mildred cling to her portrayal of the girl in this picture—a girl who, though far from an admirable character, is still supposed to have brains and charm. Charm enough to lure George Brent away from his screen wife, Ann Dvorak. When you see the two women in their respective rôles you'll realize how quite improbable Miss Davis succeeds in making the story.

As you've surmised, the plot of "Housewife" is built on the old triangle plan. Mrs. Reynolds [housewife] speeds her husband to success and riches. Miss Davis, an artist who had adored him in old Hyde Park High school days, comes a-chiseling.

But THIS housewife, besides being a good homemaker, is a woman of cleverness as well as beauty, who believes in fighting to hold her man. And that man, when it comes to a showdown, shows sense.

H. E. save for a blonde, deprived of her prey and a certain nice Paul who had hoped some day to persuade the at one time prospective divorcée, Mrs. Reynolds, to be his wife.

Girl in First Lasky Movies Gets Job Again

Jane Darwell Will Appear in "White Parade."

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—"Sailor," the hard boiled head nurse who supervises the training of a crowd of young initiates into hospital routine in "The White Parade," was proving a difficult rôle to cast. Jesse Lasky, producer of the film, had looked at many tests of outstanding character actresses for the rôle, but felt convinced that one test was the one he wanted. The actress was far ahead of any of the others. Director Irving Cummings agreed with him.

Investigating the identity of the actress, Lasky found that she was Jane Darwell, a girl whom he had featured in his early film productions twenty years ago.

When "The Squaw Man," "Brewster's Millions," "The Master Mind," and other films were being made at the then new Paramount studio in the lemon grove on Vine street, with its spreading pepper trees lining the narrow road and the huge old barn scented with the odor of crates of citrus fruits stored there, Jesse Lasky, an up and coming young producer with Cecil De Mille as partner, chose a young society debutante to be featured in his pictures.

Miss Darwell had just returned from a sojourn in Europe, where she had been studying voice and instrumental music, having tired of the social whirl of Louisville, Ky., where her father was a railroad executive.

Two years of a movie career under contract with Lasky brought her flattering offers from the legitimate stage which was then considered far superior as an artistic medium of expression to the screen. She left Lasky and the films and went to the old Alcazar theater in San Francisco and later to other stock companies on the road and later still to Broadway. Three years ago she came back to films and has caught on in various smaller rôles as a free lance player. She was in "Huckleberry Finn," "Only Yesterday," and "Scarlet Empress" in minor rôles. The new rôle with Lasky is a very good part and may well be the start of a second career for her in films.

Richard Wallace, who is shortly to direct Katharine Hepburn in "The Little Minister," has a parrot with an original répertoire taught by Wallace personally. The parrot's favorite retort is "Cut!" "That was lousy!"

It cost Roy Del Ruth $200 to keep a crowd of restless wriggling youngsters quiet long enough to get a "shot" of them in Eddie Cantor's "Kid Millions." The scene, an ice cream fantasy, represented a great crowd of children eating enormous prop sodas. Del Ruth promised them real ones after the shot if they would work carefully which they did, amazingly enough.

His promise slipped his mind and he prepared to go ahead with the next shot. The kids began yelling "We Want Ice Cream" in a steady chant, a parody of the "We Want Cantor" song and refused to desist till they had been given a gorge that kept the soda jerkers of three neighborhood shops frantically working to supply the huge mob of kids.

Joe Cawthorne, for two decades a famous stage comedian and successful for several years in films, has been signed to a contract by Warners and will play his first rôle under its terms in "Sweet Adeline."

A modern mother gets precious little consideration from her young. The end of the week Ann Harding was swimming in her pool with daughter Jane, age 7, and the youngster not realizing how tough it was, held her mother's head under water for several moments. Ann was pretty well waterlogged when she made the side of the tank, but bore up without showing signs of distress. She figured that if she acted distressed or frightened it might make the child fearful of water.

Jane slipped away and was happily swimming when she noticed the maid giving her mother attentions. "Mother doesn't need all that petting and attention; she's the strong type," yelled little Jane disgustedly.

Campus Styles for Men Seen in College Shop

English Influence Noted in Wardrobes.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Somebody should be decorated for the idea for the men's college shop. It's a wow! It's snootily sequestered in a shop exclusively for men, so that even the most rabid woman hater has nothing to worry about. Males have it completely under control. It's also geared smoothly like a browse-around-and-take-your-time book shop; you can snoop for hours, assembling the proper fall wardrobe idea for a college year, without interruption.

We were slightly dazed with the blazing collections of essentials for a good college going wardrobe. And despite the fact that we felt like an extra we gathered some impressions of what will be worn by the college man who majors in clothes distinction, the kind of clothes that are noticed without being conspicuously spectacular.

The only thing that might disturb or ruffle your patriotism is the fact that most of the stuff has a strong and telling English accent, but there really isn't anything more casually masculine than the good looking loot from London town. The ties or scarves will make you dig deep in your jeans to buy a plentiful supply. The regimental stripes will take your eye as well as that of all the rest of the world, stunning things, with authentic names of the crack English regiments carefully tacked on the inside. Inside dope on this is that such ties are taboo in merry old England, but here, among the irreverant, it's quite another story.

Suits look like they were assembled after a wild night, the jackets or coats are of one pattern, the trousers of another, and the waistcoats are things of bright and cheery splendor. Grandfather in his palmiest days never had a chance to cover himself with such glory. Tattersall checks, impudently stolen from the famous race track bookies, will saunter into class on any American campus, while other patterns equally as eye filling as to color and general appeal keep the shop humming.

Famous sweater twins have been wholeheartedly accepted and collected by the males, and if sister has imperiled the paternal bank balance with her improvident purchases of sweaters, and still more sweaters, both parents will dwell in downright want this winter after big brother gets his supply together.

Socks, gentlemen, are unquestionably the most audible atrocities any female ever contemplated, especially of the ankle. It's a matter of personal bravery or what's left of your pioneer spirit whether you will or will not wear them. But the striped affairs, those with the scarlet stripes a good inch wide, can easily be worn at Northwestern and heard at Illinois. They are just what you want for the tweed suits. In fact, they are absolute necessities as the correct color contrasts for otherwise dull, dark tweed clothes.

Somewhere there must be a nudist colony of rabbits. Billions of bunnies have been fleeced to supply the demand for rabbits' wool socks, and now, ties. As usual, ties and socks match, and wait till you see the navy blue and dark red combined with that gray fuzz. They are knockouts. Pork pie hats, in shape only, from England are different and good looking. So are the Tyrolean toppers with a bit of a feather, and sissies never wear them.

The Tyrolean tops are the kind that look like you have owned them for years, used them for dusters, sat upon them during the excitement of a hundred football games, and otherwise abused them, but the chap who knows his hats will cherish them tenderly as his best possessions.

"Campus cords" twanged musically across many a campus last year because the ribs in the corduroy were narrow, but this year the new slacks have wide wales and come in soul stirring colors, and all the lads who wear them will sound and look like a bunch of strolling Italian street singers.

Color Notes—Brown with blue; that is, dark brown mixtures in suits with light blue shirts, darker blue ties, and so on; lots of oxford gray and gray mixtures, and a new all-purpose color for hats called covert. You can wear this shade with anything and everything.

Accessories—Decorative braces and belts that match; braces are British and are suspenders and even "galluses" to less knowing but curious readers [and will the two distinguished gentlemen who have successfully baited me for two long, distressing years as to the properness of wearing both of these greatly debatable accessories at the same time please note, the official authority for such procedure can be obtained in the college shop].

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

If you love fresh scents, scents that are sweetly crisp and delightfully different, you'll fall for our new perfume love. It's called "Blue Grass," and if that isn't a triumph in a perfume name we just don't know what day it is.

Our idea of heaven is that blue grass country; when things get hectic we can get beautifully mooney thinking of the pleasant plantation we'll have down there some day when we make our first million. It was this "Old Black Joe" complex of ours that made us love this perfume for its name's sweet sake.

But it's just as good as its name. It's a light scent, excellent for the business woman or for the woman who is the fresia rather than the orchid type. It's just romantic enough, too, and men, we discovered, like it immensely.

Those of you who're utterly gorgeous, usually swatched in silver fox and with a yen for heavy scents, won't care for this one, nor will it suit you particularly. Rather, it's for the woman who dresses simply but exquisitely and is most easily described as delicate and dainty.

It's got real southern charm, this perfume . . . not the robust charm of southern fried chicken and mint juleps, but the fresh softness of a breath of honeysuckle as you come upon it on a southern road. If you haven't been enchanted with just such an experience, you've something to live for. Until then, let the "Blue Grass" perfume serve as an excellent substitute.

We're glad to report that you can get this in one large size, in a smaller size that is very easy on the budget, and also in bulk.

BLAZING GUNS

By WILLIAM MacLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Landis inherited the Lazy S ranch from her uncle. It adjoins the Circle 3 T ranch, owned by Chet Radbourne, powerful boss in the county, who is Mary's legal guardian. He has been stealing Mary's cattle and trying to force her to marry him. To escape his tyranny Mary marries Cole Sanborn, fearless young outlaw and suspected train robber, within an hour after meeting him. There is bitter enmity between Cole and the Circle 3 T brand. The marriage is one in name only, giving them both better advantage to fight their common enemy. Jerry Haskell, Radbourne's foreman, brought Mary to the Jonesboro house, where she met Cole. Haskell had given Cole an hour to get out of town. Cole plans to find a home for Mary in the town while he goes to her ranch as foreman, expecting plenty of trouble to break. Two of Cole's friends, Dave Pope and Pete Daggett, join him. Mary writes a note to Mrs. Peters, whose husband is a leading citizen of the town. They both call to see her and agree to have her stay with them. Cole goes to the Haven of Rest to find Haskell and call his bluff, followed by his two men.

INSTALMENT IX.

TENSE MOMENTS.

Haskell was at the bar, his back to the door. Aware of the sensation, he slowly turned his broad shoulders and stared at the man moving toward him. Not until Cole had reached the bar and was facing him did he speak.

"So it's you," he said slowly, rage in his throat.

"Nobody else, Jerry," Sanborn answered cheerfully. "You gave me an hour to leave town, you remember. Haven't forgotten my time's up, have you?"

"I haven't forgotten," Haskell replied heavily.

"Afraid you had, so I came to remind you. I've been so busy I didn't think to go."

Haskell glared at him. The thick neck of the foreman was suffused with angry color. This fellow's insolence always had that effect on him.

"You're a damn fool, Sanborn," he said.

"Not news, Jerry," the other responded lightly.

Cole's roving glance had swept the room as he came forward. Most of those present were innocuous citizens. Three or four perhaps bore him ill will but would not be likely to carry this to the point of hostilities. Luts was playing poker, but would not fight unless pushed. Lauret might, with enough backing. Except Haskell himself there did not appear to be any Circle 3 T men present. The other riders were on guard outside. Probably one of them was galloping into the hills to report to Chet Radbourne a piece of news he would not like.

"This country won't stand for a minute to have a nice young lady marry a man like you," the foreman announced loudly.

"Don't twist my words, fellow," growled Haskell.

"I don't like a hair of your head, Sanborn, and I'm not drinking with you."

Cole's white teeth flashed in a broad smile. "You scare me when you talk savage thataway."

"I told you to shove," Haskell flung out, slamming a first on the bar.

"That's right," agreed Cole. "Fact is, I'm so blamed frightened my legs won't track. If I didn't have nigger luck I reckon you'd be eating me up right now. Well, I'll shove, Jerry. But first you call in those willing warriors of yours you've got stationed up and down the street to bushwhack me."

"That's a lie," the foreman roared.

"Call 'em in, Jerry." Sanborn's voice was almost a whisper, but a bell of warning rang in it loud as a cathedral chime.

Haskell's swift glance slid around the room. A score of fascinated eyes were watching the drama. This was a frontier town. All present knew that a challenge had been given. If it was accepted, the roar of guns would fill the room. A body—perhaps two—would crumple up and slowly slide to the floor. In that deadly silence Haskell found no help. He had to make his own choice.

Again the foreman's instinct warned him to evade the issue. What was the sense in letting the outlaw fling bullets into his stomach, even though in turn he killed the fellow? At the right time he would get him without risk.

"If you're afraid of my boys, I'll tell 'em to let you alone," he jeered.

"Good of you, Jerry. I'm scared of them almost as much as I am of you. Call 'em in and say your little piece to them."

"You'll find them where Jerry posted them to bump me off," Cole added.

The man named Jim left the room hurriedly. Tension relaxed. The croupier spun the wheel. The dealer at the poker table resumed distribution of the cards. Some one ordered a drink. For there was to be no trouble, at least not immediately. Haskell had made his choice, and that choice had been to decline his enemy's challenge to a fighting finish.

Lauret moved forward from the faro table and joined Haskell at the bar. He was a neatly built man, well dressed, with the cold impassive face of the professional gambler. That he was serving notice he stood with the Circle 3 T against Sanborn was apparent to all.

With characteristic insolence Cole took occasion to insult him at once. From experience he had learned that the best way to meet danger was to challenge it rather than to run away from it.

"Thought you were capper for the Arcadia, Lauret," he said scornfully. "Does the tenderfoot money drift to this joint now?"

"Any objections to my being here, Mr. Sanborn?" the gambler asked crisply. "Do I have to ask you where I may hang out?"

"Nary an objection, if you don't run on to me just because Jerry has got me scared."

A man walked into the place through the side door. He was Butch Preston, a bad man from the National with whom Cole had had a difficulty. Sanborn accosted him instantly. "Well—well, if Butch isn't among us too. A meeting of all my friends, looks like. Come up to the bar and have a drink, Butch, along with Haskell and Lauret. My treat."

The man from the Indian Territory declined the invitation. "I don't like a hair of yore head, Sanborn, and I'm not drinking with you." His walleyed stare took in the situation accurately. "Looks to me like you might be right busy soon, with one thing and another. I'll tell you something, fellow. I'm not sitting in on this play."

Cole looked at him, a long lean man with a clean brown jaw, and he knew at once that Preston's declaration was on the level. He was not going to join Haskell and Lauret if guns were drawn.

Into the Haven of Rest men trickled. First, four riders of the Circle 3 T. Close on their heels Dave Pope and Pete Daggett. At sight of Sanborn's friends Haskell knew why his men had not obeyed the order to kill Cole when he left the hotel.

The foreman spoke to his men sourly. "This fellow here, Sanborn, is scared some of you boys might jump him, so he crawled in here and asked protection. He gets it, for tonight only. I'm giving him time to high tail it outa town."

"Jerry being so fond of me he'd hate to see any harm come to me," Cole drawlingly explained.

One of the men, a black haired graceful fellow, looked at Cole, at the foreman, and laughed aloud. "So that's the way of it," he said.

Haskell turned on him, eyes blazing. "What you mean by that, Slim?"

"Don't get funny with me," Haskell warned.

"It's yore say, Jerry. You can change yore mind if you like. Only——"

"Got any kick coming?" Haskell demanded angrily.

"Keep your trap shut," the foreman ordered, with a poisonous look.

The narrowed eyes of Sanborn rested on Slim. "Too bad you don't get a crack at me," he said.

Slim returned his gaze, steadily. "If I don't," he added.

"I reckon you was born high up on the Guadaloupe, raised on prickly pear, quarreled with alligators, and played with grizzlies," Cole said pleasantly. "Too bad you couldn't get along with the sheriffs in that country. But, of course, its loss is our gain."

"If you'd like to read my pedigree, begin soon as you're ready." Slim suggested, very gently, black eyes fixed on Sanborn.

Cole shook his head. "Not now, Slim, if that's your present name," he said. "I'm taking things in the order of their importance tonight. Likely I won't get down to you." He let his glance range over the other Circle 3 T punchers. "Funny what gets swept up into this neck of the woods."

Beauty Answers

Keep Lip Rouge Centered.

K. McE.: In applying your lipstick don't carry the coloring out to the edges, and let the center of both lips be rather heavily rouged, if you wish to reduce the size of the mouth.

Brown Mascara for Blonde.

J. F. S.: I would not advise a blonde to use black mascara. Light brown is usually the most becoming shade. To use black becomingly one should have dark coloring of hair and eyes.

Tone of Child's Greeting Tells Father's Worth

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

One of the pretty mental pictures that many people enjoy is the one of the returning father being greeted by eager children rifling his pockets. Somehow that picture never appealed to me.

"What did you bring me home?" demanded an adored and adoring little girl of her father. And as he gave her the bounty demanded he realized he had gone too far with this "present" business. The next day he came home empty handed.

"What did you bring me home?" demanded the little daughter.

"Myself," he replied seriously.

She looked at him for a moment, then "thanks," she said gravely as she kissed him.

I was on a commuters' train on a visit to the suburbs one evening.

The greetings that the returning fathers received as they stepped off at the different stations was an intensive object lesson.

There were the little children whose mothers shoved them toward the returning father. There were the dutiful greetings.

But there were more of the other children. I heard an impassioned voice say, "You held his hand yesterday, today is my turn." "Gee, Dad, I'm glad you are home." "Father, you're in time to play a few holes of golf before dinner." I saw eager little faces, hunting through the crowd for the loved familiar faces. I saw scampering and enthusiastic kisses. I saw little children unload the laden parent and skip along to the car, carrying his burden of bag or packages.

As I looked at the men's faces and the faces of their wives meeting them I realized that in them resided the secret of how their children greeted them. An interested, wise, and loving father will easily have an interested and loving child to greet him.

Miss Martha Dickinson to Be Bride Today

Wedding to Henry Ullmann in Santa Barbara.

probably will make a trip to Chicago in November or early December.

Mrs. Edgar Stanton Home From Europe.

Mrs. Edgar Stanton and her son, Francis R. Stanton, returned last Thursday from Europe, where they spent the summer. Young Mr. Stanton was interested in studying each country he and his mother visited from an architectural standpoint, for he is attending the Yale Architectural school.

Mrs. Stanton's son and daughter-in-law, the junior Edgar Stantons (Rosamond Baker) occupied the Stantons' Winnetka home during the summer, with the exception of the last two weeks, which they passed in New Mexico. The younger Mr. and Mrs. Stanton are now established in their apartment on Deming place, where they will be for the winter.

Many families here will be delighted to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. McGann are coming back here from their home in Santa Barbara, Ca'di Sopra, to spend the winter. They will be here Oct. 15 and will settle in an apartment at the Drake.

Other Californians, the senior Carroll H. Sudlers, are back here and already settled at the Drake. Today Tom Menafee, popular young bachelor, is taking the same address for the winter, moving from his near north side apartment.

The James R. Leavells will soon move into their penthouse apartment atop the Drake for the fall and winter months, and just about the same time the Ira Couches will move into the hotel from their Glenview house.

Wheeler Williamses Are Here for Visit.

The Wheeler Williamses have arrived in Lake Forest to spend several days with Mr. Williams' brother and sister-in-law, the Lawrence Williamses. Wheeler Williams is becoming widely recognized for his sculpture and is now on his way from New York to San Francisco, where he must be by the 15th, to spend the winter doing some work for the western city.

Mme. Berthold Singer, wife of the consul general of Turkey and consul of Nicaragua, celebrated her birthday yesterday at a luncheon at the Belden-Stratford hotel. Mme. Singer, whose 70th birthday it was, entertained about 70 guests.

When Miss Georgene Faulkner tells fairy tales at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon in the Story Cove at the World's Fair, friends will be welcoming her back from an extended vacation in New England. With her sister, Miss Elizabeth Faulkner, she went east in June to attend the graduation of their niece, Elizabeth Ann Oberndorfer, from Smith. The sisters spent July at the MacDowell colony in Peterborough, N. H., later going to Bethel, Me., to visit their sister, Mrs. W. R. Chapman of New York.

The Evanston Junior league is to open its fall season with a luncheon the noon of Sept. 24 at the Glen View club. A special guest on this occasion will be the young New Yorker who is coming to produce the League's Follies.

BY MARY MEADE.

Dozens of odd shaped tape measures, a hundred different kinds of bottle openers, that shelf full of china dogs, junior's sweater embroidered with pop bottle caps—blame them all on the well known hoarding instinct! And just to make the list complete I'll throw in my own hoard of roll recipes—quite popping out of its section in the file and begging for tryers.

Heading the list are rolls which are a prime time saver. They're duck soup, in fact, for the lady who holds down another job besides that of head chef and home manager.

Sixty Minute Yeast Rolls.

2 yeast cakes
¾ cup lukewarm water
1¼ cups milk
3 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter
3 cups flour

Dissolve the yeast in the lukewarm water. Place the milk, sugar, salt, and two tablespoons of the butter in a saucepan and heat until lukewarm. Add the yeast and flour and leave in a warm place for 15 minutes. Turn out on a floured board and pat to ¾ inch thickness. Cut with a round biscuit cutter. Fold the dough over a bit of butter to form Parker house rolls and let rise in a warm place on a baking sheet for 15 minutes. Bake in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] for 10 minutes.

Butterhorns are a bit more tricky and take longer to rise, but once mastered they'll keep turning up whenever the bread problem bothers you.

Butterhorn Rolls.

1 cup lukewarm milk
1 cake yeast
4 cups flour
3 eggs, well beaten
½ cup butter
4 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt

Make a sponge of the yeast, milk, and part of the flour. Let rise until light. Add the well beaten eggs and the butter and sugar, which have been mixed together. Add the salt and the remainder of the flour, making a soft dough. Let rise. Punch down and let rise again. Then roll the dough out very thin to about ¼ inch thickness. Cut a circle on the dough around a good sized pie plate and cut ten wedges or triangles, pie fashion, from the round of dough. Roll the dough triangles from the flat side toward the opposite point. Shape the roll, which is pointed at either end, into crescent shapes, let rise, and bake in a hot oven [425 degrees F.].

Then cheese rolls, which are happiest when served with a fish or fruit salad. The dough may be kept in a covered pan in the refrigerator for several days if desired.

Cheese Rolls.

1 cup hot milk
2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
1 yeast cake
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 egg
2 cups grated cheese
4 cups flour

Pour the hot milk over the shortening, add the sugar and salt, and let stand until lukewarm. Soften the yeast in the lukewarm water and add to the first mixture. Then add the beaten eggs, grated cheese, and enough flour to make a dough that can be handled. Knead thoroughly, shape into rolls, and let stand until double in bulk. Bake in a hot oven [425 degrees F.] until golden brown.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

NO TRUMP REBIDDING BEYOND GAME.

Yesterday we decided that in order to make a slam try of four no trumps over a response of two no trumps, the opening no trump bidder should, on a short suited hand, possess not less than five primary tricks. Now let us look into the

when he holds a short suited hand, and the bidding has been one no trump, two no trumps, four no trumps.

Naturally he must pass if he holds only a trick and a half. But what if he holds distinctly more than he needed for his first response?

First, let us ask ourselves what he knows about his partner's hand. He knows that it contains not less than five primary tricks; but he also knows that it contains less than six primary tricks. The opener should have originally bid two no trumps had he held a five and one-half to six trick no trump type hand with no weak spot. That is to say, responding partner really knows that the opening bidder cannot have any further rebid in his hand unless his opening bid was an underbid: an assumption which cannot be taken into account. Consequently the responder is now called on to decide the eventual contract by his next bid. You will find that in order to provide a play for six no trumps responder must have in his hand. With less than this, he must pass four no trumps, though it is true that there may be a finesse for small slam if he has only two primary tricks plus some combinations with jacks or tens, and the hands fit and play well. Nevertheless the slam is an unsound bid with less than two and a half tricks. Hidden tricks cannot be developed without a long suit to work with; or rather, one may not rely on hopes to develop any latent trick or incorporate such possibility in one's bidding.

Two and a Half Primary Tricks

Can Grand Slam Be Reached?

Under the new scoring schedule the rewards for grand slam are so high that one should bid for them if the chances seem to be about even. When dealing with short suited hands, the playing resources are very limited, there being no recourse to a real or pseudo squeeze, so I feel that one requires the chances to be somewhat better than even in terms of top cards. In order to feel out the grand slam possibilities it is necessary for the responding hand to be very informative in his acceptance of the slam try, so that the grand slam angle may be kept in view while the small slam is being developed in the securest possible manner. My system provides a somewhat elaborate but very delicate and precise technique for exploring these possibilities when the bidding has been one no trump, two no trumps, four no trumps. When able to accept this slam try, responder may have a choice of responses, and I will give you my idea of the procedure he should follow with the several types of holdings which are to be expected on this bidding.

Untested Partnerships May Avoid Complications at First.

At the same time these delicate methods may prove complicated or puzzling to inexperienced players, and would undoubtedly be difficult for a new, untried partnership to handle correctly. To those wishing to handle this situation in a summary manner I would say this: Let the responding hand, over four no trumps, pass if he has less than two and a half primary tricks, but having these values let him bid six no trumps, and make no attempt either to end up in a suit contract for slam, or to consider any question of grand slam. Opening bidder cannot have a rebid, otherwise he should bid two no trumps originally. Logically and automatically, therefore, the bid of six no trumps must close the bidding, and you must hope that you are in the best slam contract, having handled the bidding correctly as regards its quantitative aspect, though omitting the qualitative factor. For players who are students of the game and who wish the best, not the simplest or easiest, handing of slam tries, there are more gradual processes of exquisite daintiness and precision which I will discuss in the next few articles.

Suitor Having Leech Tactics Needs Ousting

His Intentions Decidedly Aren't Matrimonial.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Six years is about long enough to wait for the engagement, don't you think? Seems to me I'd have stepped out long ago looking for new prospects, particularly if I were a widow getting along in years.

The woman in question has four children. Six years ago she met the man in the case. "In the first two years," she writes, "all he talked about was getting married. But the talk soon died away without action, and he has never given me a ring.

"He has a good job, but he occasionally runs short of money and comes to me for aid. Sometimes the loan is returned, but it is frequently forgotten.

"He seems to think a lot of me. He calls on me every night, and is with me every minute he can spare. He insists that I always stay at home, even if he cannot see me, and he doesn't want me to go to dances. What would you do if you were I?"

What a question! And, as a starter I'd lock the lid of the family coffer. No man with a good job ought to find it necessary to borrow money from a woman. It's a bad business at best, but in this case it's at its worst.

Then I'd proceed to clean house very thoroughly. I'd tell the man to take his mandates and his "evenings at home" elsewhere. Six years is long enough to wait for a proposal, particularly if the proposal comes with a man who is worth no more than this one. Do you honestly feel that any gentlemen would "welch" on his debts? Do you really feel that he could spend evening after evening at your home, robbing you of other opportunities, when he hadn't made his own position clear?

Of course, I feel that much of the fault is your own. You've given him too much. You've expected too little. Why should he burden himself with a wife and four children when he can get your money, your companionship, and your affection without marriage?

Don't waste any time in getting at your housecleaning. Get this leech out of the way so you can look over the field and see what else there is in the way of prospective husbands.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

Many people believe that toads sit on toadstools or sleep beneath them. Observations have failed to reveal any interest on the part of toads in these plants. The name was derived from the German "tod stuhl," meaning "death-stool"—probably in reference to the poisonous nature of these growths.

Autumn Affords Multiple Benefit for Vacationist

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The early fall is not too late for an enjoyable vacation. One correspondent writes that she is dreadfully disappointed to think she didn't get away in July or August so that she could avail herself of two weeks at the seashore. Very often late September is warm enough for such a vacation.

It's not so important which type of vacation you choose. There are so many pleasant and healthful ways of spending it. Of course, you want to get away from your particular occupation and routine. If you've been confined to any office, I would suggest getting away somewhere where you may enjoy outdoor life, indulging in outdoor sports which call for muscular exercise. Go some place where you can enjoy a good game of golf. Or, if you don't play, let it be your chance to learn how. You'd enjoy it, I know. Then, there is tennis, horseback riding, and hiking. After eighteen holes of golf, a strenuous tennis game, a four or five mile hike, or a horseback ride, you'll welcome a hot tub followed by a rubdown, and then a good snooze, before luncheon or dinner. It will make you feel like an entirely different person. However, don't become so wrapped up in these sports that you allow yourself to overdo.

You want to be assured of a comfortable bed so that you may enjoy, to the fullest, these hours allotted to sleep and rest. And, as to food, you want good sensible food, pure water and milk, and plenty of fresh vegetables and fruits. Don't think it necessary to order all the food on the menu card. Remember your stomach will enjoy a vacation, too. Choose your food wisely and do not overeat.

Let your vacation be a complete change, not only from your work, but from the recreation to which you have been accustomed during the year. Meet new people. How about a cruise? You'll have no trouble finding congenial companions, and it's so refreshing to spend an evening or two finding out how other people live, their plans, and enjoyments.

Hollywood

BY SIDNEY SKOLSKY.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 4.—"Marie Galante," which was out of production for four days because of the wandering Spencer Tracy, who wandered all over town but never showed up at the studio, is before the camera again.

Director King is anxious to get going. He wants to gallop along and cover the time he lost. Spencer Tracy and Arthur Bryon are the two actors ready to play the scene. It is Tracy's first day back, and he is continuing from where he left off.

Tracy delivers his lines to Bryon, who makes the necessary answers. It doesn't play right to Director King. He stops the action and goes into a huddle with Jack Yelle, who is on the set to supply what is known as "additional dialog" whenever it is needed. Yelle and King start to rewrite the scene. They are still rewriting it late in the afternoon. Later the entire production is called off for several days until the script can be rewritten. They wait four days for Spencer Tracy to return to work, and the first day he does they have to stop work.

It is an outdoor sequence of "Music in the Air." Chorines in their native mountain costumes are to do their national dance in the public square. The chorus girls have gathered and are waiting. Director Joe May barks through a loud speaker: "Montgomery, Lange." But Douglas Montgomery and June Lange don't appear, and after several more calls an assistant director is sent in an auto to their dressing rooms, which are easily half a mile away at that large Fox studio. One of the chorines tells me: "We did one step of this dance for fourteen takes this morning and we're still doing the same thing. Probably be at it all afternoon." I hurry on my way.

Director Archie Mayo is lighting a street scene, a Mexican street during a carnival, for his "Border Town." There are about 150 extras, all types, waiting to play their bits. While the electricians are moving huge arc lights and the cameraman is toying with the camera, Director Mayo tries to explain what is going on.

"This scene," says Archie, "should be taken in Mexico. But I'll save the company an expense of $25,000 and a trip to Mexico if I can light this scene properly. It all depends on the lighting," continues Archie, "for then I can fake a big carnival street scene and you'd never know it was done with just a few extras on a set."

Late that night I met Archie Mayo. He told me that it took him five hours to light that set.

Standing in front of a glass screen on a set are a number of actors who look as if they had stepped out of the pages of a Charles Dickens novel. They look correct, for they are playing roles in the movie version of Dickens' "Great Expectations."

On the glass screen there will be flashed a motion picture of a steamboat paddling its way down a river. The actors on the set will be in rowboats; yet when "Great Expectations" is released it will look as if those rowboats are in the river and the men are rowing and trying to get away from the steamboat. I asked one of the actors when they will go to work. "I don't know," he answers. "Maybe half an hour. Maybe an hour. We've been waiting for a couple of hours. Just doing nothing. You know the picture business."

The set of the cheap night club in Limehouse where George Raft and Anna May Wong dance is very interesting. This cabaret of "Limehouse Nights" is small and crowded, damp and stuffy, and hazy with smoke. There are machines on the sidelines which pump oil into the air to make everything hazy. It is only when the club is as dense as a London fog that Director Al Hall turns his camera on it and Raft and Wong.

Lowell Sherman is standing outside of the sound stage where "Night Life of the Gods" is being made. A fellow says to me: "Go in. They're probably shooting a scene." "But how can they?" I ask. "The director, Sherman, is standing outside, talking." "That's the kind of a director he is," says the fellow. "He can get things going, walk away, and they just keep going."

Sherman is really a fine director, one of the most interesting to watch. He talks in a whisper and acts out scenes, any rôle, for the performer. His favorite direction to an actor is: "Enter here. Exit there. Act like hell." But Lowell Sherman was busy talking outside the set, and I'm still waiting to see them make a scene.

TAX DIVERSION UPSETS COUNTY HIGHWAY PLANS

1934 Projects to Be Last for Several Years.

BY HAL FOUST.

Emmett Wheelan, president of the Cook county board, yesterday announced the accomplishments of the county highway department under its $2,500,000 construction program for 1934. It was an impressive list of new trafic facilities, many of which will be finished within the next few weeks. But the announcement was a bit in the nature of an obituary for the county department since the road money from the gasoline tax is about to be diverted for charity.

In 1935 Cook county will receive $4,000,000 as its share of the motor fuel excise unless the legislature heeds agitation to reduce this tax. For the $20,000,000 state relief bond issue, interest, and retirement will require $2,250,000. This issue is 12 year bonds bearing 4½ per cent interest. The diversion for teachers' back salaries will take $200,000. And the proposed $30,000,000 state relief bond issue, to be voted on at a referendum in November, would require $1,950,000 for retirement and interest the first year —1935—figuring the interest at 3½ per cent and the retirement in twelve years.

This would result in an obligation of $4,400,000 to be paid by $4,000,000 gasoline tax revenue. If the retirement of the $30,000,000 bond issue were figured for 20 years, the interest and principal in 1935 would be $1,200,000. In this case the county would be left with only $350,000 of gasoline tax money for road construction. However, bankers in buying the $20,000,000 issue insisted on a 12 year retirement provision.

If the new relief bond issue is charged to the motorists by the referendum and the 12 year retirement provision is again insisted on, the Cook county highway department will be without an appreciable amount of gasoline tax revenue for road building before 1944. The 1943 figure will be $682,114. Before the diversions for charity the county was spending $1,000,000 a year solely for right of way.

Notwithstanding diversions of $2,150,000 from its 1934 revenue, the county highway department was able to make many valuable additions to the motor transportation facilities of the metropolitan area, mainly small stretches of new pavement connecting existing long stretches of serviceable pavement. The diversions consisted of $1,500,000 for the $20,000,000 bond issue and $650,000 for teachers' salaries.

1934 Projects Are Listed.

Held to Grand Jury After Hearing on Arson Charge

Edwin Cody Buren, 45 years old, 719 Gunderson avenue, Oak Park, was held to the grand jury yesterday on a charge of arson by Justice of the Peace Louis S. Gibson of Oak Park. His bond was set at $7,500. Deputy State Fire Marshal Frank E. Dougherty, who conducted an investigation of a fire which destroyed Buren's home on Aug. 26, testified that he had discovered kerosene had been sprinkled about the building and paper had been stuffed into holes in the plaster.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

Raise Cane; Not Much

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.
September 4, 1934.

CANE, the crop that has the reputation of thriving in some of the dryest sections of the country, failed to live up to its reputation at THE TRIBUNE'S Experimental Farm this year. Three of the canes—Fetereta, Milo Maize, and Waconia Orange—were tried out in the test plots and the results have been disappointing.

These canes made such a slim showing for dry weather crops that the men at the farm do not even want to talk about them. But the failures must be reported along with the successes, for it is just as important to know what not to plant as it is to know what to plant. The unusual drouth is blamed for the poor crops. In a normal year the canes are expected to make a good yield. They will be tried again next year.

Cane is commonly grown in the dry farming sections of this country and crops grown at the farm were expected to make the finest showing of any plants tested this year. All three varieties made a poor showing from the start because there was insufficient moisture in the soil to bring about germination of most of the hard coated seed. The stand was so poor that men at the farm seriously considered plowing up the rows and planting other crops. Nearly two-thirds of the seed failed to come up.

Taking everything into consideration there is little difference in the yields of the crops produced by the three different canes. They were all started May 14 in a seed bed that was almost as fine and dry as powder. On the drouth stunted stalks heads began to form on Fetereta July 24, on Milo Maize July 24, and on the Orange Cane July 30.

All of them are now mature enough to be cut for silage. These canes are more commonly used for fodder; the stalk, seed and all, is fed to live stock. The canes in the test plots will be ready to cut for roughage in about two weeks. Even if the seeds were good, it is doubtful if any of them would be left for seed because the goldfinches and sparrows have been feeding on them since the middle of the summer. Feteretа has the heaviest heads, Milo Maize next, and the Orange Cane the lightest.

The canes are not generally known in this part of the corn belt. They are commonly used for fodder because of the high sugar content in the stalks. The canes remain succulent after they are cut and stored. Farmers say that the seeds make good chicken feed if the heads are cut before they get hard.

Milo Maize is the most popular of the three grown at THE TRIBUNE farm. This cane, like the others, is grown in Kansas, Nebraska, and Oklahoma, where it is often quite dry. In normal years these crops should thrive in northern Illinois and should produce an abundance of roughage. Milo Maize did not do so well in the tests at the farm as it does in states farther west. The rainfall here was perhaps shorter this year than it is normally in the dry farming areas.

Powdery mildew, which appeared on the stalks and leaves, apparently prevented the chinch bugs from damaging these canes to any extent. The mildew did not seriously injure the plants but left blotches which may lower the feeding value slightly.

A hill of Fetereta stalks is now on display in the loop at The Tribune Public Service office, Madison and Dearborn streets, along with fourteen other different kinds of crops grown at The Tribune's Experimental Farm this year.

FOREMAN FINED FOR PREVENTING MILK INSPECTION

Harold Lipsky, foreman of the Suburban Dairy Products, Inc., 7500 Marwood avenue, Elmwood Park, was fined $10 and costs last night for refusing to allow an official of the health department to inspect the plant owned by his brother, Marcus. Justice of the Peace Lou M. Shaw dismissed identical charges against three other employés.

He and the others were arrested Saturday night, when inspectors reported to Mayor Thomas Carey that they had been refused permission to enter the plant. Later they did so and obtained four samples. Three were found to be pure in an analysis made by Dr. Robert L. French of the Oak Park hospital, but the other contained an excessively high count of bacteria and bacillus coli.

H. I. Lepman, superintendent of the Chicago bureau of the state department of foods and dairies, announced yesterday that retail dealers in bulk milk in country towns would be given thirty days more in which to abide by his recent order prohibiting the retail sale of bulk milk.

PARK DISTRICT PLANS $600,000 BUDGET SAVING

Operating Costs Reduced by Consolidation.

The Chicago park district expects to save $600,000 in park operating costs when it drafts its budget for the remainder of 1934 on Friday, according to Robert J. Dunham, president of the district, which supersedes twenty-two smaller park units.

Mr. Dunham returned yesterday from California and immediately attacked the problem of a park district budget, since the legislative act authorizing the creation of a consolidated park district requires that tax levy figures be filed with the county clerk on the second Tuesday of September.

Further Savings Expected.

The operation of the twenty-two separate park districts cost $6,900,000 in 1933, Mr. Dunham said, and the current expenses so far this year are believed near that figure, although some reductions were effected when the twenty-two districts submitted their 1934 budgets to the district board for approval.

The general budget, to be passed next week, is to be drafted for the entire 1934 period, but actually can bring savings only for the four month period of the year remaining. The total for the year, including the amounts provided for the first eight months under the twenty-two separate budgets, will be not more than $6,300,000.

Further savings, in addition to the $600,000 amount now contemplated, are likely when the park reorganization program gets under way, Mr. Dunham said.

Plan Personnel Changes Later.

"When the budget is drafted we'll merely be making appropriations and we don't have to spend all of the money appropriated," he pointed out. "Undoubtedly there will be further reductions, although they must come more slowly, since the entire reorganization program cannot become effective at once. We plan many economies and there will later be personnel changes to bring down operating expenses."

The budget activities will move ahead despite the fact that there is still a chance for a rehearing of the Illinois Supreme court decision upholding the validity of the consolidated park act. State's Attorney Thomas Courtney yesterday said he was "still considering" whether a petition for a rehearing will be filed. A decision must be reached Friday, since notice of an intended petition for rehearing cannot be filed more than 15 days after the date the court decision was handed down Aug. 23.

Bridge Problem Is Next.

Following approval of the park budget, the board will turn to the problem of constructing the outer drive bridge over the mouth of the Chicago river and to the completion of the administrative and financial reorganization of the 22 park systems merged under the consolidation act.

"We have been planning this reorganization for four months, and it shouldn't take more than a week to complete the final touches," Mr. Dunham said. "However, the actual transfers under the reorganization must go slowly."

Under the plan now considered by the board there will be a single administrative machinery for all the parks; all financial supervision will be under a head controler; the police will be reorganized as a single unit, in three or four divisions, and there will be a single tax levy for the park district. Remaining obligations of the 22 old park districts will make necessary continued district tax levies to retire these obligations, however.

Congressman Parks Wins Arkansas Primary Runoff

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Final returns from the Democratic run-off primary in the Seventh Arkansas district showed today that Congressman Tillman B. Parks of Camden won the renomination over Wade Kitchens of Magnolia by a majority of 291 votes.

The headline of a story printed in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on Sept. 4 incorrectly stated that the Rev. C. J. Tervestad, pastor of the First Baptist church at Allegan, Mich., was "fired" after he had preached a sermon on "Should Christians Fight." The Rev. Mr. Tervestad said he offered his resignation upon the demand of an elder, but that it was not accepted at a meeting of the church board.

To reach the source of these homespuns, whose strength and good looks have become legendary, we have to go back generations—direct to the looms of hardy Carolina mountaineers who knew just what it took to make a homespun able to take a rough-and-tumble backwoods life. Then, as now, only the finest virgin wools went into them—the result is a year around suiting; one that it's next to impossible to wear to a shine; one that drapes very nearly as freely and softly as fine flannel. That's a rare accomplishment for a hard finished suiting, but another thing homespun is liked for and why it will appear this fall as the gentleman among the rougher suitings.

LONDOS SETS UP LAKESIDE TRAINING CAMP

Husky Spar Mates Greet Champion.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

His majesty, James Londos the First, set up his training trappings in these parts for the first time yesterday, but he came in the guise of a commoner rather than that of a monarch. This was not the King James who has been going up and down the land these last four years nailing to the canvas the vertebrae of the many pretenders to his throne, but Jim Londos, a rassler who has a date with another rassler, Ed Lewis by name, at Wrigley field on the night of Sept. 20.

There was no trumpeting to herald his entry into the confines of George Renehan's lodge, two miles northeast of Round Lake, Ill. He simply drove in out of the rain with Ed White, his prime minister, and went to work. Although the nature of the weather did not make for any extensive al fresco calisthenics, Jim managed to give onlookers the impression that he is very much in earnest about that engagement with Lewis by the manner in which he went through a brief workout in the dancing pavilion at Renehan's.

You Gotta Show Ed.

It is quite obvious that Londos regards his forthcoming argument with the Strangler not so much as a world's championship match, but one in which he will settle a personal score which dates way back to their first meeting in Canton, O., when Lewis was riding high and Jim himself was no more than a natural middleweight. The champion, however, confines his personal sentiments to a minimum, being content to allow Prime Minister White to issue official communiques on the subject.

The latter is undoubtedly one of the most willing official communique dispatchers in the business, and he maintained a regular Downing street stance throughout the day yesterday as he held forth on the now celebrated case of Lewis vs. Londos. The matter of Lewis' 14 victories over Londos, a point which the former's agents never overlook, evoked naught but a fine diplomatic scorn from Prime Minister White. Nothing would delight him more, said he, than a complete, attested record of those 14 matches, several of which he still regards as quite mythical.

Jim Will Build Up.

True, he admits, the Strangler did set James down more than a few times, but what of their respective weights at the time, which he calls that bygone day. Lewis was a real heavyweight, while Londos, not yet having inaugurated his systematic system of physical expansion, was never more than 165 pounds, making all of their matches handicap affairs. Mr. White even went so far as to recall a couple of drawn matches between the pair, a statement which has no place in the Lewis record of their rivalry.

Londos, fresh from a tour of the coast and northwest, in which he canceled a number of matches in order to arrive here early, appeared to be ready to face Lewis tonight, if need be, but went through a drill of an hour or more in spite of his excellent condition. He weighs 198 pounds, but hopes to be nearer 210 when he enters the ring at Wrigley field on the 20th.

When he arrived at Renehan's after a drive in which he evinced a marked interest in the California gubernatorial election, particularly with reference to Upton Sinclair's candidacy, the champion expressed his complete satisfaction with the training site where he may remain until a few days before the match. The present Renehan's grandfather first settled the property in 1836, and George himself is now in his 33d year as host.

Plenty of Help.

Londos will find more than enough training competition when he begins serious work this morning. On his arrival yesterday he discovered Lou Plummer, who has met Lewis and Hans Bauer waiting for him. With them were Bobby Burns, a Chicago captain of life guards, and Frank Battaglia, a former Austin High athlete, two amateurs who will take their turns against Jim.

THE GUMPS—THE SKY IS THE LIMIT

MR. WILLIAMS- I HAVE A LITTLE FAVOR I'D LIKE TO ASK OF YOU THIS MORNING- IF I MAY-

WELL, NOW YOU UNDERSTAND, MR. WILLIAMS- THE ONLY REASON I'M ASKING IS BECAUSE I'M SO SURE OF THE OUTCOME OF THIS SUIT- WHY ONLY YESTERDAY BIM GUMP HIMSELF CAME OVER AND OFFERED ME $5,000,000.- TO SETTLE-
HE DID! WELL- WELL- JUST HOW MUCH WAS IT YOU SAID YOU NEEDED AGAIN, MRS. DE STROSS? ONLY TOO GLAD, YOU KNOW-

A CHAMPION GETS READY TO WORK

Limbering up. Londos expects to settle a score with Lewis in the championship bout on Sept. 20.

NINTH INNING RALLIES WHIP PHILS, 3-2, 6-5

Moore Hits Homer with One On.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The New York Giants today scored the winning runs in the ninth inning of both games of a double-header to defeat the Phillies, 3 to 2 and 6 to 5.

The double victory increased to seven games New York's lead over the idle Cubs and Cardinals, who are tied for second place. The Giants have 24 games to play against 26 for their rivals. The Phils' two losses left them only one game ahead of the cellar dwelling Cincinnati Reds.

Hubbell Beats Davis.

Curt Davis and Carl Hubbell engaged in a 2 to 2 pitching duel for eight innings of the first game. Up to that time Davis had allowed only four hits, but successive doubles by Travis Jackson and Hank Leiber in the ninth produced the winning run. Hubbell, although touched for nine hits, spaced them well enough to gain his 19th victory of the season.

The climax of the second game provided an even greater thrill for the crowd of 7,000. Trailing from the first inning, the Giants went into the ninth one run behind. Harry Danning opened the inning with a single and George Watkins ran for him. Then Joe Moore hit one of Sylvester Johnson's pitches over the right field wall, scoring the winning run behind Watkins.

Smith Gets Credit.

Johnson had replaced Moore in the eighth after the Giants had scored their fourth run. Fred Fitzsimmons was taken out for a pinch hitter in the same inning and Al Smith was credited with the victory. Score:

BRAVES, 3; DODGERS, 1.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The Boston Braves, led by the pitching of Leo Mangum and the hitting of Randy Moore, today defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 3 to 1, in the last game between the two teams this season. The defeat also eliminated the mathematical chances of the Dodgers to gain the National league flag.

The Dodgers' only run was scored in the sixth inning when Tony Cuccinello hit a home run. Mangum yielded ten hits. Moore drove in all of Boston's runs, getting a single in the fifth to send Bill Urbanski home and another base hit in the seventh driving home Tommy Thompson and Urbanski.

ROSS FINISHES M'LARNIN DRILL; CERTAIN HE'S FIT

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 4.—Barney Ross, the Chicago Golden Gloves boy, who became the first fighter in history to win the lightweight and welterweight professional championships, today capped training preparations with two rounds of boxing at Stillman's gymnasium. When he had doffed his padded head guard and the big mittens and eased himself to the table where Trainer Izzy Kline was ready to begin his ministrations, Barney opined he was ready for Jimmy McLarnin come Thursday night.

Barney bounced a lot of punches off the chin of one Jimmy Murray in the last workout. This Jimmy Murray is not to be confused with the Loop Jimmy Murray who picks the winners at Chicago's horse tracks, although the pair have this in common that they lead with their chins. The New York Jimmy Murray, clad in pea green tights and sporting an Irish brogue, may have been signed by Manager Sam Pian with Irish motif in thought, but to Ross, Murray was just another guy to belt around.

There's Reason for Confidence.

Did he hit him? Yes, plenty, and frequently. But the number of bull's-eyes scored this afternoon will bear no relation to the shots at Jimmy McLarnin's chin Thursday night. Even so, every one of the several hundred who paid Stillman 50 cents each for the privilege of applauding the champion this afternoon, agreed that Barney is a confident fighter.

Ross had no difficulty winning from McLarnin three months ago. He escaped that famous Irish punch which the boys call lethal, and came through for a stirring triumph. Prior to this, Barney twice had licked Tony Canzoneri. Such breeds confidence, and Barney had all the reasons in the world to believe in himself.

Sam Pian and Art Winch, who shuffled around the ring this afternoon calling Barney's shots while he

THE game between the Bears and All-Stars apparently has made the fans football conscious a month earlier than usual. . . . Chilly Bowen, ticket manager at Illinois, reports orders for the Ohio State and Army games, home appearances of the Illini, are the heaviest since 1929. . . . Max Hayford of Northwestern and Art Haley of Notre Dame also say applications are coming in strong. . . . The mother of Ken Meenan, who was expected to be a back field regular at Illinois until he lost his life as a forest ranger in Colorado a few weeks ago, will receive some compensation from the government. . . . MIKEL, STABLE OF 32 BARRED ON DOPING CHARGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Providence, R. I., Sept. 4.—J. D. Mikel, young farmer boy of Bloomington, Ill., who has been a sensation on the eastern turf this year as a result of his ruthless claiming campaign during which he has acquired a score of horses that have been able to win for him was indefinitly suspended today by the Rhode Island racing commission.

His license as owner and trainer was ordered revoked and the 32 horses in his care were barred from further racing activity here.

The commission's action was announced after a saliva test taken on Mikel's horse Khamseen revealed evidence that the horse had been stimulated with dope.

Commission Writes Owner.

Mikel's big racing stable was suspended when the commission sent to him the following letter:

"The Rhode Island horse racing commission today has suspended you and your stable indefinitly, the stable to include the following horses: Portcodine, Foolhardy, Tocaya, Lebam, Enro, Liqueur, Flag Time, Zorans, Brown Wisdom, Lerack, Wirt G. Bowman, Pennywise, Carisbrooke, Fred Almy, Redress, Flabbergast, Gallardia, Polyfon, The Pelican, Khamseen, Blue Foam, Macadam, Last Servant, Frigate Bird, Ridgeview, Ayston, Jay D., Silk Flag, Burning Up, Portfolio, Gold Step, and Lamp Black. Your owner's and trainer's license will be automatically revoked."

Mikel Calls It Frameup.

Young Mikel, who had just transferred his horses from Narragansett Park track to the Rockingham Park track, said he was amazed that such a ruling had been made against him.

"If Khamseen was 'doped' I know nothing about it," he said. "I know I have made a lot of enemies by claiming horses which I believed were being run too cheaply. These horses have been able to win for me. I think it's a frameup by some one who lost a horse to me in a claiming race."

Cubs Arrive in New York Amid Trade Wind Gale

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 4.—Baseball trade winds were blowing a gale as the Cubs arrived here this afternoon, the first stop in the rather bleak enterprise of overtaking the world champion Giants, whom they now trail by seven games with less than a month's play remaining.

With the Giants virtually conceded the pennant, despite the fact that Guy Bush pitches the opener of a series against them tomorrow, the several gents managing also-rans are free to talk trade much earlier than in any season in years. The Giants were far ahead at this time last season, but the runnersup were playing hunches that the New Yorkers would crack. They didn't, and there is no talk of a blowup this September at all. As a result the disappointed bosses are swinging into swap activities, with the Cubs and Pirates due for what amounts to dismantling.

The Chief Auctioneers.

1. Charles John Grimm, recently reengaged as manager of the Cubs. Grimm says there are only two teams in each league the fans remember throughout the winter, the one that wins the pennant and the one that finishes in the cellar. Grimm adds the only kind of a team he has any interest in is the one that can finish on top. He has very definite notions on what he will have to do with his Cubs to win next year, and his plans reserve only seven of his present cast.

2. Harold [Pie] Traynor, installed as manager of the Pirates in midseason to succeed George Gibson. The Pirates, heading the second division, a strata to which they have fallen but few times in history, have been even a greater disappointment than the Cubs. On paper the Pirates figured to be a redhot contender, even though their pitching staf was not of high order. Traynor, like Grimm, is said to have the permission of his bosses to shoot the works in reorganizing the Pirates.

3. Frankie Frisch, manager of the Cardinals for a year and a half. Frisch is not assured of reappointment, but has indicated he will be in the thick of the trading under authority of President Sam Breadon and the wily Branch Rickey.

Everybody Wants Help.

All other managers are out to strengthen their teams, of course, but aside from Bill McKechnie of the Braves they don't seem eager to discuss an up and up trade in which both sides will stand a chance to help themselves. As usual, the Philadelphia and Cincinnati clubs are to be tempted with bundles of cash.

It is reported that the Cubs are prepared to dispose of the following players if satisfactory deals can be arranged. The list includes only the names of players in whom interest has been expressed by bidding clubs:

Woody English, looked upon as the best trading material in the league, since every club wants him and he is not a regular on the Cubs. English is a prime favorite with Grimm and will come high on the market.

Chuck Klein, a disappointment with the Cubs this year, but still rated one of the game's greatest stars.

Kiki Cuyler, along in years, but still one of the best outfielders that ever played in the National league.

Pat Malone, who staged a comeback this year. On a team where discipline is a bit more rigorous than it is on the Cubs, Malone would be a star for at least three or four more years.

Guy Bush, a great pitcher, who should be great for five more years. Available only because the Cubs realize they can't trade bat boys for front line stars. Guy would thrive on a change of scene.

Stanley Hack, a promising young infielder, who hits well in streaks and who is sure to improve, both as a defensive and an offensive player. He will not be available unless one of the two important deals now smoking is closed.

Root May Go, Too.

Other players such as Charley Root, Bud Tinning, Augie Galan, and Riggs Stephenson may be thrown in for good measure, after the fashion of the disposal of Gink Hendrick, Mark Koenig, and others in last year's deals.

Reports from Pittsburgh are that Manager Traynor has reserved only three of his players as not for barter or trade at any price. These are the two Waners and Arky Vaughan. The Cubs' interest in the Pirates is confined to First Baseman Gus Suhr and Lefty Larry French.

One of the hottest prospects on the fire involves the acquisition of Pepper Martin from the Cards. If Pepper goes to Chicago he probably will take along Bill Hallahan as his roomie.

Brandt Deal Warm.

A hangover from last winter's dickering, which now has a fair chance of materializing, would send the mature Lefty Dutch Brandt and Outfielder Hal Lee to the Cubs. The names most frequently mentioned in connection with this proposition are Cuyler, English, and Malone, with Root an added possibility. Brandt is 32, Lee is 27, Cuyler is 34, English 27, and Malone 31. These ages are taken from baseball record books and not family Bibles.

The Cubs will resume cash and player offers to the Cincinnati Reds for Chick Hafey and have included bids for Paul Derringer. A nice packet of currency has been wrapped up in pretty red ribbons and the Phillies can have it if they will transfer Pitcher Curt Davis to the Chicago roster.

TIGER OFFICIALS GAMBLE $25,000 ON WORLD SERIES

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Frank J. Navin and Charles F. Navin, president and secretary of the Detroit Baseball company, gambled $25,000 today that their Detroit Tigers will win the American league pennant, and if they win several thousand fans will pay for the privilege of seeing a world series from the wrong side of the fence.

The Navins applied to city officials for permission to build bleacher seats to accommodate 17,000 persons in stands to be erected on the street along the left field fence at Navin field. The seats would sell for $1 each, according to the plans, and would increase the seating capacity of the park to approximately 47,000.

In applying for the permit to build the stands, an application favorably and enthusiastically received by Mayor Frank Couzens and members of the council, the Navins finally admitted Detroit has a chance to win its first American league flag since 1909.

ROCKNE SYSTEM TO BE SCRAPPED BY NAVY ELEVEN

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The 1934 Navy football team, which will begin practice tomorrow, will scrap the Notre Dame or Rockne system of offense, it was learned today.

Lieut. Thomas J. Hamilton, to whom the naval academy squad will report tomorrow, will work his team offensively from a kick formation, featuring a jump shift and power plays from a single wing, close formation.

Such was the system Hamilton used as coach of the west coast Navy team, which lost but one game a year for three successive years that Hamilton coached it—one year to the Olympic club, another to California and a third to Southern California.

Only minor modification in the shift will be made in supplanting the system that Rip Miller, formerly of Notre Dame, taught the Middies the last three seasons.

Pierce smashed Edmonton in the mouth and then in the neck, flooring him. He was taken to the hospital, where he died.

PHILLIES DROP HACK WILSON FOR FAILING TO HIT

Harvey [Gink] Hendrick and Cy Malis, pitcher, also were released by the club.

Wilson came to the Phillies last month after being released by the Brooklyn Dodgers. After failing to hit he was benched by Manager Jimmy Wilson.

LEWIS TO START WORKOUTS TODAY FOR LONDOS BOUT

Plans to Train at Fair Are Changed.

Lou Talaber, chief trainer for Ed [Strangler] Lewis, took hold of his job yesterday afternoon and put a crimp in the Strangler's plans by vetoing the arrangement for the challenger for Jim Londos' heavyweight title to train at A Century of Progress.

Although Lewis had arranged to train at Dave Barry's Hall of Champions at the Fair, Talaber ordered Lewis to give up all idea of training in the open air because of the changeable weather. Lewis is suffering from a slight cold and the idea of having him work under a tent and then trail through the cold to his shower and dressing room made no hit with Talaber who refused to let the big fellow work yesterday afternoon and sent him to Charley Postl's for a bath and rub.

Beginning today, Lewis will work each afternoon at Trafton's gymnasium at 4 o'clock and after yesterday's layoff, the work will be arranged to make up for the time lost.

Strangler Visits Fair.

The challenger arrived in Chicago yesterday morning at 6:30 o'clock after a match in Akron Monday night and spent the greater part of the day in bed. He went to the Fair in the afternoon, accompanied by his training partners but Talaber put his foot down on training there and Lewis returned to the loop for a bath and rub that was expected to loosen up a heavy chest cold he had acquired during the last two weeks of traveling.

This afternoon, Lewis will start a drill that will include wrestling with Zack Malkov, Marin Plestina, and Pete Schuh at Trafton's gymnasium. One hour has been fixed as his starting routine with each man taking him on in ten minute relays, which means that each of the men will work twenty minutes with Lewis. Later this program will be stepped up so that by early next week he will be hitting a two hour drill each afternoon with no rest. Mornings will see him in Lincoln park for road work, a detail of the training to which Lewis has always been particularly partial Aims to Develop Wind.

Chief Trainer Talaber said yesterday that the challenger to Londos' heavyweight mat title will pay particular attention to his wind for the first few days of his training. Talaber asserts that Lewis needs no training on the actual business of wrestling. After some 5,000 matches Lewis can be told or instructed on no angle of actual mat tactics, Talaber says, and all his training will be directed toward preparing him for a long, hard struggle with the Greek.

Later on in the program Lewis plans to get other training partners to assist, and will select men who have met Londos in the last year, in order to be prepared for any new tricks the Greek may have added to his repertoire. Lewis has not wrestled the Greek since 1924, and in ten years the champion may have developed a number of new holds, and Lewis expects to prepare a block for each of them before he enters the ring at Wrigley field Sept. 20 in THE TRIBUNE's presentation of its wrestling and boxing spectacle.

DUKELSKY FACES ANOTHER TEST IN BROUILLARD

Meets Ex-Champion Friday at Mills Stadium.

Further evidence on whether or not Hayden [Young] Stuhley of Kewanee, Ill., and Solly Dukelsky of Chicago, belong among the leading challengers for the world middleweight boxing championship, may be forthcoming in bouts prior to their 8 round match on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's athletic show at Wrigley field Sept. 20. Dukelsky boxes Lou Brouillard, former welterweight and middleweight champion, and Stuhley tackles Frank Misko, Saginaw, Mich., in 10 round combats at Mills stadium Friday.

Dukelsky has the tougher assignment, for few outside his closest admirers, give him a chance to win. Those who predict Brouillard will triumph, however, are not taking into consideration the superb physical condition Solly always manages to reach and gameness and perseverance in the ring. These essentials have characterized Dukelsky's work in recent months and placed him in the limelight.

Dukelsky started his bid for fame when he stopped My Sullivan at Newbridge field. Despite this decisive triumph it was more or less of an upset. A seven round technical knockout of Kid Leonard followed. Then he handed Jackie Gibbs a trimming. In his last bout Solly thoroughly whipped Frank Battaglia, a victory not even his stanchest followers prophesied.

Billy Celebron, Rockford, Ill., welterweight, and Bob La Monte, former Catholic Youth Organization champion, were matched yesterday for the eight round main event next Tuesday at Western stadium. . . . Bus Breese has returned from a rest at his home in Manhattan, Kas., in anticipation of fighting in the windup bout Monday at Marigold Gardens. . . . Freddy Miller, featherweight champion, is due to disembark from the liner Laconia Sunday at Liverpool, England, to finish preparations for a title defense against Nel Tarleton, English titleholder, Sept. 20.

Frank Sigillo, junior welterweight challenger from Cicero, has started drills at Trafton's gymnasium for a return encounter with Davey Day late this month or the first week in October. . . . Mickey O'Shea is training at Northwest gymnasium for his next match. . . . Johnny Fitzpatrick, featherweight, suspended since February, was reinstated yesterday by the Illinois athletic commission. . . . A boxing show will be presented Sept. 26 at Quincy, Ill.

Vern Ovens and Frank Agnes, featherweight boxers, will meet in a five round feature bout on the amateur card tonight at Ashland arena, Ashland avenue and Addison street. Jimmy Dunnington opposes Sam Pasquale in one of seven supporting matches at three rounds.

Upon the recommendation yesterday of Chairman Joe Triner of the state athletic commission wrestling bouts in the future will be limited to one fall instead of two out of three falls. . . . Wrestling cards will be presented Friday at Round Lake, and at Springfield, Ill.

Buck Everett, Gary, Ind., and Biff Bennett, Fort Sheridan, both heavyweights, have been ordered to appear before the Illinois boxing commission.

Arlington Country Club Prepares for 'Pa-Ma' Tourney

"Pa-Ma" day in which husbands and wives will compete against one another in a series of golf events, will be held at the Arlington Country club on Saturday, Sept. 15. The events will consume the entire day, winding up in the evening with a dinner dance and entertainment.

The "Pa-Ma" feature was designed over the week-end by officials of the club and Mrs. C. P. Christ...n, chairman of the ladies' activities, because of the inclement weather which made it almost impossible for the fairer sex to compete in Labor day events which had been planned.

W. R. Snyder, club president, placed the entertainment activities in the hands of L. F. McHugh, and the tournament events with Walter E. Wright and Ralph Learn. Twenty members and their wives and guests are expected to attend.

Londos and Lewis Must See Doctors

All participants in the charity athletic show to be presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE at Wrigley field Sept. 20, were ordered yesterday to appear at the Illinois athletic commission next Monday for physical examinations. At the same time the commission ruled Ed [Strangler] Lewis and Jim Londos must train in the city at least 10 days before their world's heavyweight wrestling championship bout, the windup event on the card.

In addition to Londos and Lewis the order affects King Levinsky and Art Sykes, who meet in a 10 round boxing bout; Leo Rodak and Everett [Young] Rightmire, contestants in another 10 rounder; Solly Dukelsky and Hayden [Young] Stuhley, opponents in an eight round fight, and Jim McMillen and Ed [Don] George, principals in a 30 minute wrestling match.

The commission voted to request THE TRIBUNE to start the show at 8:15 p. m. instead of 8:30. It pointed out that the card, which also includes an exhibition bout by Champion Barney Ross and an appearance by Jack Dempsey as referee, appears to be too lengthy to permit a later beginning.

The commission will appoint two judges to officiate at the Londos-Lewis struggle in addition to a referee. All wrestling officials will appear at the commission next Monday to discuss rules and regulations.

King Levinsky resumed drills yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium after taking a layoff Monday. He sparred three rounds and his performance was impressive. The Kingfish has hired a new sparmate for today's drill. He is James Scaobroag, Gary, Ind., Negro, who weighs 193 pounds.

Motorcyclists in Qualifying Trials for Title Tonight

Flat track motorcycle stars from all parts of the country will compete tonight at Logan Square, Kedzie and Elston avenues, for places in the Mid-West championship finals, set for Sept. 26. Tonight's events will be the second series in the qualifying rounds and in the John S. Clark trophy competition.

Nine riders qualified a week ago for the championship finals. Many have yet to win places, and a field is assured for tonight. There will be three handicap events and one scratch race. These races are four laps each.

Among the riders who will endeavor to qualify tonight will be Ed Thorsen of Chicago, who was high point winner in the meet two weeks ago, but who was shut out in the first qualifying round. Otto Waldvogel of St. Louis also drew a blank in that series, as did Kenneth Brower, a west coast star. Amos Collinske, Martin Thorsen, and Andy Koslow, Chicago graduates from class B, also will get a second chance to qualify tonight.

Cliff Hills, the star of the first qualifying round, who swept the card of races, leads all the contestants in the Clark cup competition with twelve points. He is closely followed by Mark Kelly of Portland, Ore., who holds the track record of seventy-four seconds for the scratch race. Jimmy Gibb, Tom Cox, Don Smith, Dick Springston, Bob Miner, Johnny Spiegelhoff of Milwaukee, and Don Turnbull, other riders who have met the qualification test successfully, will be riding tonight with the object of freezing out all the other entrants, as well as improving their standing.

snapped at his slipping galluses, are worried. They're always worried, for that matter. But the managerial duo actually gave the impression that Barney has the upper hand in this scrap. Perhaps they don't realize that they are tipping their plans, but this is the fact.

Plan insists that the judges and referee be changed for the coming fight. In particular, he didn't care for Judge Tom O'Rourke, the old time manager of fighters. Announcer Joe Humphries' eyes blinked when he scanned O'Rourke's card in the first bout and saw O'Rourke had marked nine rounds for McLarnin, one for Ross, and five even. The other men were more to Plan's liking. Judge Harold Barnes gave Ross 12 rounds, awarded McLarnin two, and called one even. Referee Eddie Forbes, who cast the deciding vote, thought Ross had won 13 rounds. He gave McLarnin one and called one even.

It May Be a Carbon Copy.

McLarnin's efforts to regain his welterweight championship at the Garden bowl in Long Island, may wind up in a carbon copy fight. The reports from Orangeburg, N. Y., have it that Jim has sacrificed speed to put on weight. His speed certainly was not equal to that of Ross in their first encounter.

While McLarnin did cut his weight to 142 pounds at noon on the day of the battle and may come in at least four pounds heavier this trip, it remains to be seen if this will benefit.

One point which apparently has escaped nearly all who are concerned with forecasting the result of the second Long Island battle is McLarnin's low punches. Three months ago, Jimmy hit Barney low in five rounds, according to the referee, who under the New York rules awarded those rounds to Ross. If McLarnin raises his sights and goes along without disrespect for the rules, he already has shown he is not outclassed. Those low punches were the deciding factor.

The weather man, after a spell of Labor day rainy weather, has promised better. The ticket sales will pick up, so the Garden officials affirm, and by Thursday there should be $100,000 in the till.

Patrick is particularly interested in the two outstanding Regina, Sask., stars, Murray Armstrong, forward, and Andy Young, goal keeper. Verne Johnson, with Brandon, Man., Native Sons two years ago and the Pats last year, also will be taken.

Earl Nicholson of Regina, who played with the Saskatoon, Sask., Elites last winter, and two outstanding junior prospects from the Saskatoon Wesleys, Hill and Farner, have been asked to compete.

Their two day auto racing program having been washed away by rain over the holiday week-end, the pilots who gathered here for the Evanston Motor Speedway events last Sunday and Monday will have another opportunity to race at the Lincoln and Devon avenues track next Sunday. This was announced yesterday by Director Len Bernard.

The fans who turned out for Monday's scheduled show despite the intermittent rain found the pilots ready to compete, but officials of the National Race Drivers' association refused to let them risk their lives on the slippery racing strip.

Frankie Hart will face Les Fischbaugh of Newark, O., in the 30 minute semi-windup. The card:

COCHRANE SIDES WITH TERRY THAT GIANTS ARE GOOD

Mickey Cochrane, Detroit manager, turned the other cheek yesterday when informed Bill Terry, manager of the Giants, didn't think the Tigers were so hot as world series opponents.

Terry said the Tigers should be easier than the Senators, who didn't provide the Giants much opposition last fall.

"Well, if we are in the series, we'll have to step to beat the Giants," was Cochrane's counter to Terry's broad, bold slap. "The Giants play smart baseball, have a smart manager and with their pitching staf are not easily beaten in a short series. I have a lot of respect for fellows like Hubbell, Schumacher and Fitzsimmons and my men feel the same way about them."

HENRY ROTHIER IS DEFEATED BY PATRICK HENRY

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox and the pennant budding Tigers had additional leisure forced on them yesterday. The doubleheader they expected, and even wanted, to play so as to catch up on themselves because of the Labor day postponement was erased by a combination of rain and soaked grounds. The soaking was so thorough that the entertainment was canceled early, thus enabling the worried looking Mickey Cochrane to lead his world series entry back to Detroit on a noon train.

The cause of Cochrane's worried appearance is no secret. The young man is sitting up nights fretting over the possibilities of having his boys overtaken by the Yankees. That probably won't happen, but Mickey can't see it that way. He also is fearful of how well his boys may not hit the Giant pitchers in the impending series. On that score Mickey is entitled to all the worrying he can possibly do.

More Rest for Sox.

The Sox will have more time for themselves this afternoon. They were originally scheduled to play the Yankees in the opener of a four game series, but this affair was disposed of by a double-header early in August. However, the Yanks will arrive tomorrow and may be greeted by the veteran Ted Lyons. The latter's chances of being selected for the task are excellent because of what he did to the New Yorkers on their own lot recently. He beat them to give the Sox their only victory of the season in Gotham.

The new fellows Jim Dykes, the Sox manager, hopes to employ in games following the Yankee series aren't showing up in great numbers, but while many of them are raw bushers, this is not accepted as definite proof that they have lost their way. Thus far Hugo Klaerner, a right handed pitcher from the Pine Bluff, Ark., team, is the lone freshman on hand. He won 26 while losing 6 down there. Vernon Kennedy, a pitcher from Oklahoma City, is thought to be headed in this direction.

Pitchers Vance and Whitehead and Catcher Pasek will be shipped to town by the Dallas team as soon as it is definitly established that the Dallas Steers are not going to be in on a playoff of one kind or another.

Bonura Is Ready.

Zeke Bonura, the huge Italian first baseman, will be back on the job tomorrow if the ground is firm enough to make it safe for him to move around on his recently strained leg. Incidentally, Bonura is to have a big show staged in his behalf next Saturday. The Italian folks are coming out in droves to present him with a few tons of spaghetti, which should last Zeke a few days, and also with an automobile. A few yards of spaghetti will be reserved for Tony Lazzeri and Frank Crosetti of the Yanks.

The two games washed out yesterday will be played off at Detroit a few days before the season closes.

U. S. SINGLES ARE STOPPED AGAIN BY DAY OF RAIN

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Rain today washed out the second round of the men's national singles tennis tournament for the second straight day.

Consequently the final match for the championship, originally scheduled for Saturday, has been put over until Monday, but there is a strong likelihood that it will be further deferred since the weather forecast for the remainder of the week is none too favorable.

The second postponement was a disappointment to officials of the United States Lawn Tennis association for they had visualized a record gate for the final Sunday.

Provided the weather is clear and dry tomorrow, the U. S. L. T. A. will endeavor to complete the second round schedule of 32 matches which was interrupted yesterday after seven matches were played to a finish and two players had advanced to the third round via defaults.

GRAND RAPIDS TO TRY FOR C. Y. O. BASEBALL TITLE

St. Isidore's baseball team, winner of the Catholic Athletic Organization title of Grand Rapids, Mich., is the first entry to be received in the second annual National Catholic Youth Organization baseball tournament, Jack Elder, C. Y. O. athletic director, announced yesterday.

The tournament to determine the national Catholic amateur baseball championship will be held at Wrigley field Sept. 12 to 16. It will be sponsored by the Fair store through the courtesy of D. F. Kelly, president.

At least 12, and possibly 16, teams are expected to compete in this year's meet. In last summer's event, which was held at Comiskey field, nine teams played, but with the expansion of the Catholic Youth Organization on a nationwide scale, several additional dioceses are expected to send representatives to this year's tourney.

St. Isidore's merited the trip to Chicago by virtue of its 6 to 1 victory over St. Adalbert's for the Catholic baseball title of Grand Rapids. The Michigan nine comes to Chicago boasting a season record of 15 victories and only one defeat.

In addition to the Grand Rapids entry, teams are expected from Louisville, Ky.; Detroit, Mich.; Salt Lake City, Utah; San Francisco, Cal.; York, Neb., and several other cities.

McKinley Park Tennis Tourney Opens Saturday

The McKinley Park Tennis club's first annual women's open tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday, with final round matches to be played the following Saturday and Sunday.

Homers Help Indians Beat Browns, 8-4

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The Browns scored three runs in the first inning today, but timely hitting by the Cleveland Indians, including two home runs, soon erased the lead, and the visitors won their third straight game, 8 to 4.

Averill and Trosky, who hit home runs in yesterday's double-header repeated the performance. It was Trosky's thirtieth homer of the season and Averill's twenty-fifth.

Lloyd Brown, who started for Cleveland and yielded two hits and two walks as well as hitting Pepper, was removed in the second for a pinch hitter and Clint Brown finished. Score:

Yacht Race to Be a Battle of Able Skippers

Newport, R. I., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Yachtsmen believe it would be difficult to find two better equipped skippers or two keener minded yachting strategists than the rivals who will sail the contending sloops in this year's America's Cup races—Thomas Octave Murdock Sopwith for England and Harold Stirling Vanderbilt for the United States.

They will match their craft, their crews and their sailing wits, starting Sept. 15, in a best four out of seven series of races, which most observers expect to develop the most thrilling competition in the history of the famous trophy. Granting there is little to choose between Sopwith's Endeavour or Vanderbilt's Rainbow, the outcome seems likely to hinge on the tactics of the men at the helm.

Vanderbilt Experienced Skipper.

Vanderbilt, born to great wealth and social position fifty years ago, began sailing at the age of eight. He has many blue water triumphs to his credit, the greatest of which was his successful defense of the America's Cup four years ago, when he sailed Enterprise to victory over the late Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth and last Shamrock.

Sopwith, now 46, began sailing small craft as a youth, but he did not become interested in racing the larger boats until relatively recent years, and it was not until Lipton's last challenger was brought home and he acquired it in 1931 that he turned his thoughts to America's Cup. He gave the orders for Endeavour's construction when Shamrock V. was dismantled. He did not care to patch up Lipton's unsuccessful contender.

Sopwith a Designer.

Before he turned to yacht racing, Sopwith gained fame in the air and at the wheel of racing motor boats. Many Americans remember him as a contender in the historic flight around Boston light in 1911. His fortune is self-made, largely through his skill in designing and building aircraft.

Harvard Nine Outhit, but Defeats Japanese, 9 to 7

TOKIO, Japan, Sept. 4.—Keio university's baseball team lost to the touring Harvard squad, 9 to 7, today. Keio, however, outhit the Americans, 13 to 12. Four Keio errors enabled Harvard to win.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

TOO LATE.

DEAR HARVEY: While you were putting on airs while pinch hitting for R. H. L. over in that highbrow col. on the editorial page you still proved you were human and our kind of people by admitting that of two keys, similar in shape, you picked the wrong one seven of eight times in attempting to open the outer door to the sanctum.

This distressed and grieved me. I pondered and pondered. It was not a case where mentality was involved, so far as I could see, but rather some occult ratio or odds, or something of the sort. I thought I had a solution, tried it, and it did not work, although it produced a better average than you had. Then I came across this information in "Popular Mechanics" under the caption, "Push Buttons Release Keys":

"Keys are released automatically by a compact pocket container. The case has space for four keys, each of which springs out ready for use at the press of a button. The four buttons on the face of the case are numbered, so it is easy to release the right key. The case holds keys for the car, garage, home, and office."

Should you have similar difficulty again I'd suggest for your particular case that you write on a small card to be carried constantly the numbers of the keys and what they unlock. Helpfully yours, Newell Van S.

I appealed to Patrick M. Shanahan, an ingenious Irishman of our city, for a solution of your Wake-Line key problem and he said: "Why don't the mon lave the keys of the shanty stickin' in the dures?"

Solomon Piffle.

HERE WE'VE BEEN BACK on the sports pages for four days and it certainly seems strange not to be pulling for the Cubs to figure in a world's series. Mathematically they are not out of it yet, but we never were good at mathematics. If still in college, we'd be encoring in trigonometry. Therefore it appears as if one must get excited over the Londos-Lewis rasslin' bout. We're going to get excited, all right, but we wish to present our reasons in greater detail at another time.

That Football Game.

HTW: Why don't pro football partisans come right out and admit they were outplayed by the College All-Stars instead of advancing excuses? The game ended in a tie, so I'll not ask them to concede the college boys were the better team, although I think they were. But here's my thought: The champion pros were overconfident, underestimated their opponents, whether or not Coach Halas did. Whether that affected the result I don't pretend to say, but the fact remains the collegians performed better than generally expected. The pros did not. L. C. B.

BILL BROOKS IS THROWN TWICE BY MIKE LONDON

Mike London, English lightweight wrestler, last night defeated Bill Brooks of New York at White City. London won the first fall in 27 minutes and the second in 4 minutes and 55 seconds. George Schwab and Zack Malkov wrestled a 30 minute draw in the semi-windup.

In other matches Ralph Garibaldi pinned Lee Fishbough with a body slam in 28 minutes and 15 seconds and Karl Von Lehman defeated John Yurkovitch in 22 minutes and 34 seconds.

Bears Resume Practice for Two Games

The Chicago Bears, rested after a three day layoff following the All American game in which the pro champions were held to a scoreless tie, resumed drills yesterday in the rain for their two practice games this week. Tomorrow night they play the Inland Steel company team at Indiana Harbor [Washington High school field] and Sunday afternoon they meet the Chicago Tigers at Normal park, 61st street and Racine avenue.

Beattie Feathers, University of Tennessee half back, and Art Krueger, Marquette university center, who played with the All-American against the Bears Friday, engaged in their first workout as professionals.

Another All-American, Bernie Masterson, Nebraska university quarter back, reported but did not practice because of an injured shoulder. He is under the care of Dr. John Davis, club physician. Masterson is expected to be in shape in another week.

Miller, Manders Hurt.

Ookie Miller and Jack Manders, injured in the elbow and knee, respectively, are responding to treatment and will be available for Sunday's game. They worked out yesterday, but refrained from rigid work.

The Bears' squad now numbers 33 and it is the intention of Halas to carry most of these men for at least two weeks. The work of Wayland Becker of Marquette at end and Art Buss of Michigan State at tackle in the All-American contest gave the impression they may earn permanent berths. The club needs a kicker and Becker did an excellent job against the collegians.

Molesworth Will Play.

Keith Molesworth, who is playing baseball with Baltimore, is expected to report in ten days. It was feared the Baltimore club would prohibit Molesworth from playing football, but it has offered no objections.

NEW CARDS TO PLAY OLD

After almost a week of intensive training the Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional Football league are eager for action. Coach Paul Schissler announced last night that he is planning an intra-squad game between the veterans and the newcomers to be played Sunday at the Loyola stadium.

Because there are only six of last year's squad on the roster it will be necessary for the veterans to draft the balance from some of the "freshmen" to make up a complete team.

All-Stars to Play.

The pairing will be done by Coach Schissler, who will arrange it so that Bill Smith, former Washington star; Paul Pardonner, Purdue quarter back; Mike Mikulak of Oregon, Fred Canrinus of St. Mary's, Dave Cook of Illinois, and Pete Mehringer of Kansas, who played in the All-Star game between the Collegians and the Bears last week, will be on one team. Pardonner will be captain.

The veterans will have last year's holdovers in Lou Gordon, Frank McNally, Dick Nesbit, Milan Creighton, Phil Handler, and Howard Tipton. Gordon has been chosen captain for the season.

Squad Practices Indoors.

Despite the inclement weather of the last few days the Cardinals have kept right on with their strenuous drills, using the Loyola gymnasium for their practice.

TERRY AND OTT FAIL TO GAIN IN BIG 6 RACE

The New York Giants' two entries, Bill Terry and Mel Ott, failed to gain on the other big six batsmen yesterday when they took part in a double-header while all their rivals were idle. They continued to occupy the last two places, as Terry managed to keep his .352 average unchanged by batting safely three times in nine trips to the plate and Ott dropped a point to .345 with two hits in seven times up. Here Are Some Tips on Fishing in Superior Waters

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. IGNACE ISLAND, Ont., Sept. 4.—Today is moving day in camp. We are about to say good-by to all the brook trout coasters in Lake Superior waters, as well as to the big lake trout. This morning we had a grilled coaster trout for breakfast, the last one [a 2 pounder before dressed for the table] that we will eat this season. Big Dan, the guide, has our 15 pound lake trout, a 12½ pounder, a 10½ and several six pounders packed to go back to camp with us. Little Dan, guide number two in our outfit, is packing up the commissary department and cleaning up the camp site.

We can look across the bay and see a doe and her two fawns playing on a sand beach. What a time they are having this morning! To the east the high peaks of St. Ignace loom against the sky line, their forested tops showing hazy and purple in the sunshine.

When you look at that peak on St. Ignace and know that somewhere near the top of it there is a small lake which you haven't seen or fished, you feel that you want to come back here next year and explore it. Moreover, there are miles of shoreline that we haven't fished for coasters [brook trout] weighing up to four or five pounds. And just two hundred yards from camp is a lake trout hole that has all kinds of fish in it. No telling how large the big one is in that hole. We had to quit with a 15 pounder as our top fish because five lakers, the daily limit, came all too quickly.

In case you want to explore this amazing country on the north shore of Lake Superior when another fishing season rolls around here are some tips on how to do it: First, the St. Ignace Island region is reached via Nipigon, Ont., which is about 74 miles east of Port Arthur. You can reach Nipigon by train or by auto. A new automobile road has just been built between Port Arthur and Nipigon.

To reach the St. Ignace fishing waters in Lake Superior you take a big cruiser, a safe boat skippered by a licensed master who knows how to navigate these waters. It's about 2½ hours by boat from Nipigon to a camp site on or around St. Ignace. The boat leaves you on your camping spot with a big canoe and your guide. A small outboard is desirable. With it you can cover a big area of water around the numerous islands where coasters are found.

Inasmuch as there are large brook trout, lake trout, and rainbows in these waters you need a wide variety of tackle. A couple of fly rods capable of holding large brook trout, a trolling rod for lakers, and one or more casting rods in case you want to catch the big brook trout by bait casting, a stunt that sounds sort of impossible, yet is a matter of common occurrence up here. For fly fishing we had streamer flies, regular wet fly patterns, an assortment of spinners, and another assortment of dry flies and floating bugs. When the water is quiet the big coasters hit floating bugs just like bass.

UPSET VICTOR IN GIRLS' TENNIS BEATEN LATER

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Hope Knowles, 15 year old miss of Great Neck, Long Island, caused the first real upset in the United States lawn tennis girls' championship matches today, but fell a victim in a later match.

Miss Knowles, her blonde plaids coming to her elbows, struck out well with both forehand and backhand to defeat Helen Grawn, Grosse Point, Mich., 1933 indoor girl champion, 4-6, 6-3, and 6-3.

Her own Waterloo came at the hands of an unseeded player, Patty Kilmartin, also 15, of Miami Beach, Fla., 6-4, 6-2, sending Miss Kilmartin into the quarter finals.

Spectators at the Cricket club also found much to applaud in the second seeded player, May Hope Doeg of Santa Monica, Cal., sister of John Doeg, 1930 men's national champion, who loosed a strong service to defeat Cecil McLaren of Glendale, 6-3, 6-1.

REDS TRANSFER PLAYERS.

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Four young players, recalled by Cincinnati from its various farms, were released to the Fort Worth club today. They are Walter Bohl, infielder; Arthur Evans and Leland Terhune, pitchers, and August Brittian, catcher.

Poloists to Play Today in Trial Games

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Both sides will resume action tomorrow in preparation for the East-West polo championship matches which will start at the Meadow Brook club, Westbury, L. I., on Saturday. Both the East and the West plan easy games if the fields are dry enough.

The lineup of neither team will be announced before Friday morning, but the guessing at the makeup of the East four has about ended. It is regarded almost certain that Michael Phipps, James P. Mills, Winston Guest, and Billy Post will play in that order.

Plan Practice Game Today.

These men, with Earle Hopping cutting in at No. 2 for Mills and Ray Guest for Post at back, plan a game against fairly strong opposition tomorrow at the Piping Rock club in Locust valley.

There is more uncertainty about the West team, for Elmer Boeseke Jr. of California, bruised by a blow from a ball last Saturday, is still out of action. Lindsay Howard is scheduled to play for him tomorrow.

Boeseke May Be Out.

With Eric Pedley at No. 1, Cecil Smith at No. 2, and Aidan Roark at No. 3, this combination will face S. H. Knox, Bob Bullock, Stewart Iglehart, and Robert E. Strawbridge Jr. at Meadow Brook tomorrow. This game will be played Thursday if it is impossible to get into action tomorrow.

Carleton F. Burke, West team director, has said that Boeseke is unable to resume play at present, but it is known that some doubt exists concerning his ability to appear in the lineup. It is believed he will try riding again either tomorrow or next day.

ROYAL LEON AND KEESTER THROW DOWN BETTERS

Players of Favorites Cry for Their Scalps.

BY FRENCH LANE.

[OTHER RACE NEWS ON NEXT PAGE.]

After the running of the Ravenswood purse at Lincoln Fields yesterday the players of favorites were ready to demand the scalps of Royal Leon and Jocky Paul Keester, who rode him.

They had wagered so heavily on this pair that Royal Leon became an even money favorite at post time. Then they slapped their binoculars over their eyes and watched Royal Leon finish a bang-up last in the small field of five starters.

It was Cloud d'Or, a son of High Cloud-Heart o' Gold, which races for Mrs. W. T. Westrope, mother of the famous jocky, Jack Westrope, who got the decision by four lengths. Tiny Kitty was second and General Parth, though staggering in the heavy going, finished third.

Keester Guesses Wrop.

There was no criticism of Keester's ride except that he guessed wrong. During the early part of the afternoon, when the track was a trifle sloppy, horses which raced on the inside next to the rail were able to win. This appeared to be the spot where the footing was best

VANSANDT SETS SEASON RECORD IN CIRCUIT TROT

Timed in 2:00¾ for Mile Event.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 4.—(AP)—For the second time in two days a grand circuit season record fell today at the state fair track as Vansandt, driven by Fred Egan and owned by W. Gleason of Williamsport, Pa., trotted a mile in 2:00 3-4. The chestnut son of San Francisco also lowered his own mark by a quarter of a second.

The record trip around the oval gave Vansandt victory in the $2,000 empire stake, free for all trot, and marked another ascendancy for the horse which was waged a see-saw duel with Kashmary and Calumet Crusader all season.

Maine Chance Wins Belmont Park Feature

New York, Sept. 4.—[Special.]—An easy three lengths' victory was scored today at Belmont Park by Maine Chance, the colt by the Porter which recently was claimed at Saratoga by Trainer George Phillips on behalf of the Maemere farm. Maine Chance carried the colors of his new owner in the Shoreham purse, best event on a program riddled by scratches, and was ridden by Eddie Litzenberger.

Litzenberger made it a double in the Brookhaven purse, next on the card, when he led practically all of the way with Andrew Schuttinger's Astra. This son of Sting was much more energetically played than was Maine Chance, which went to the post the second choice in a field of four.

Dusky Princess, one which carried the colors of the Wheatley stables, was made the choice at 9 to 10 but at the end she was not a menace to the leader. Maine Chance finished the six furlongs over a sloppy track in 1:11 1-5 and carried 112 pounds. He was held at 6 to 5.

Astra was the medium of a big and successful plunge. Opening at 5 to 2, he was played down to 9 to 5 at closing while Flaming Light, which opened the choice at 6 to 5, went up in the betting to 8 to 5. When it came to the running the horses ran just as the betting indicated they would.

ROSENGARTEN UP ON 5 WINNERS AT ROCKINGHAM

Boston, Mass., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Charley Rosengarten, who broke into the big time less than a year ago at Tanforan, Cal., today won five straight races at Rockingham Park in as many attempts.

Starting with the second race, Rosengarten, who rides at less than 100 pounds, swept through the next four races. He won the second with Mrs. S. Bennett's Our Sallie, the third with Unchanging from the Geneseo stable, the fourth with Mrs. M. J. White's All Forlorn, the featured fifth with the Brann Castle farm's Swatter, and then wound up his day's activities by scoring with B. Davidson's Fast Move in the sixth.

WALKALONG, raced wide the final three-eighths, dropped back slightly on stretch turn and went evenly the final quarter.

O'CONNOR URGES GREATER USE OF TRAINED MINDS

Defends Roosevelt Theory of Brain Trust.

The use of highly trained minds, both in banking and in government, was urged last night by J. T. F. O'Connor, controler of the currency, in a radio address over a nation-wide hookup to students, graduates, and members of the American Institute of Banking section of the American Bankers' association which held commencement exercises simultaneously in 200 cities.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, awarded thirty-nine standard certificates and fifty miscellaneous certificates to graduates of the Chicago chapter. Exercises were held in the institute headquarters in the Bankers' building.

O'Connor pointed to public expenditures of hundreds of millions of dollars in the last fifty years to teach the youth of the nation certain legal, economic, financial, sociological, and industrial theories on the assumption that they are sound.

Defends Brain Trust.

If sound, he declared, then men charged with the responsibility of government should have the benefit of the specialized knowledge of teachers and professors. If the teachings are false, then hundreds of millions have been wasted, he asserted.

"Great crises confront our government," O'Connor said, "and can be solved only by the application of good judgment of well trained minds. If the doctrines which we learned when we were students prove false or unsound when put to practical test, no better time than the present exists for finding it out."

Pointing to the wide multiplication of governmental functions and the extension of government to fields not formerly accepted as within its sphere, O'Connor declared that a government neglecting to call trained minds to its aid would be "contemptible because it would be needlessly incompetent and would crumble before the blistering wrath of an outraged public opinion." He cited the precedent set by former President Coolidge in naming a trained economist and college president to the tarif commission.

Foresees Better Bankers.

In banking, he declared, the need of good minds is becoming "increasingly plain." He predicted a better trained banker of the future who will be regarded more as a professional than a business man.

"Honest men admit that intolerable abuses crept into banking practices. Better bankers did not approve, but were powerless to prevent or correct them," said the controler. Bankers have no such regulatory boards as have many professions. Evils must be corrected by legislative action which could have been removed by the bankers' own regulatory boards had they existed.

"No banker worthy of the name approved the practice of officers and directors borrowing for their account the entire capital and surplus of a bank, or payment of interest on demand deposits. Yet it was necessary to prohibit these old practices by penal legislation.

"Leaders of finance have long questioned the propriety of commercial and investment banking under the control of identical boards, the purchaser buying from himself and obtaining a profit on both sides.

"Similarly," said Mr. O'Connor, "sale by a trustee to his own trust created a strain upon virtue which many bankers could not withstand. The bank act of 1933 has relieved many individuals of this embarrassment."

Traces Last Year's History.

Mr. O'Connor traced efforts to strengthen the banking structure since the moratorium in March, 1933. Between Feb. 15 and March 4 a year ago, he said, $1,930,000,000 was actually withdrawn from banks. To Aug. 13, 1934, 1,019 of the 1,407 national banks unlicensed at the end of the banking holiday had been reopened. To Aug. 16 more than half a billion had been distributed to depositors in closed national banks.

Cummings told the Chicago chapter that the borrower should be as important to a bank as the depositor. The commodity a bank is dealing in is money, he said, the use of which it has to sell at a profit. He said that bankers should strive to favor the commercial borrower, because loans to him mean employment of labor and furtherance of industry which tends to promote prosperity. The reputation and moral responsibility of the applicant for credit, Cummings asserted, should weigh as heavily as the financial statement of the company in granting or refusing a loan.

GEORGE K. SPOOR CONVEYS BLOCK TO BONDHOLDERS

The entire block of property formerly fronting on the lake shore between Argyle street and Margate terrace was transferred yesterday by George K. Spoor and others to Albert E. Burton, representing a bondholders' committee of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company. The vacant land, which adjoins the new park fill-in, was conveyed by master's deed and follows a foreclosure instituted by the committee.

It was security for a $250,000 loan made by the Continental Illinois several years ago. It is directly across Argyle street from Spoor's Acquitania apartments.

The property conveyed is in two parcels, the southwest corner of Argyle and the western boundary of Lincoln park, 340x120, and the northwest corner of Margate and the park, 341x120. Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt were attorneys. Charles H. Binney, head of the real estate department of the Continental Illinois, is chairman of the bondholders' committee.

U. S. SEARCHING NEW SOURCES FOR TAXATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—A study of possible new federal taxation will be begun tomorrow by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr.

With the secretary under heavy pressure from some of his closest advisers to embark on a still greater spending spree, the outlook was dark for the nation's taxpayers. No definite total to be raised by new tax levies has yet been agreed upon, however.

Huge federal cash outlays of an inflationary character, running as high as 15 billion dollars, are being urged on the secretary by some of his advisers. Leader of the group is reported to be Marriner S. Eccles, Morgenthau's special assistant and his candidate for the vacant governorship of the federal reserve board.

Concentrate on Revenue.

These inflation advocates, however, are understood to be less interested in the new taxation than in the creation of a central bank of issue to replace the federal reserve banks. The treasury then could borrow indefinitly from its own bank, which would print the paper money to pay the bills.

Secretary Morgenthau said today, however, that he is not yet ready to take up the question of expenditures. For the time being he expects to concentrate on the revenue side of the budget.

The income tax apparently will be the first levy investigated by the treasury head. He announced he will meet tomorrow with Roswell Magill, treasury tax expert, who has just returned from a study of the income tax methods used in Great Britain, home of the most drastic levies on earnings and inheritance.

Two Studies Made.

A new revenue law which will be proposed to congress eventually will be whipped into shape by Secretary Morgenthau and his aids. Beside Magill's study of foreign taxation, treasury brain trusters under Prof. Jacob Viner, special research assistant, have been inquiring into revenue problems.

Secretary Morgenthau explained that tomorrow's meeting with Magill will be the first thought which he has given to taxation and budget matters. He bluntly declined to discuss the resignation of Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget.

The treasury secretary, however, is reported to be reaching out for control over Douglas' old bureau. In the past the budget bureau has been independent of the treasury, reporting directly to the White House on all matters pertaining to the expenditures side of the budget.

In order to control both the revenue and the expenditures in the budget, Morgenthau now is understood to be plotting the end of the budget bureaus' autonomy. First step in this direction came when Morgenthau had President Roosevelt appoint a treasury official, Daniel W. Bell, temporary budget director. Eventually the President may transfer the whole bureau into the treasury.

21 MUNICIPAL ISSUES OFFERED FOR SALE BY RFC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—An offer for sale of twenty-one more municipal securities, totaling about $4,000,000 and made available by the Public Works administration, was announced today by Chairman Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Such securities were taken at face value by the PWA, and money in return was turned over to the municipalities for work projects. The PWA submits the securities to the RFC as its fiscal agent, which, after their sale, turns over the receipts to the PWA for more grants.

Recently, nearly $6,000,000 in similar and railroad securities were offered by the RFC and ten issues sold at a premium of $92,000. Sealed bids on the new offering will be received until noon Sept. 13 at the offices of the RFC. The bids may be for purchase of any or all of the bonds described.

SEVERAL ROADS REPORT GAIN IN FREIGHT TRAFIC

All reporting railroads yesterday showed considerable gains in loadings last week over the preceding week. Totals for the month of August also showed heavier movements than in July.

The Chicago & Northwestern had aggregate loadings last week of 28,338 cars, compared with 26,181 in the preceding week, and 26,655 a year ago. The total for the month was 124,040 cars against 112,738 in July, and 116,610 a year ago.

The Santa Fe reported a total of 26,761 cars for the week against 26,469 and 23,022. For the month the total loadings were 118,772 cars against 112,729 and 98,912. Chesapeake & Ohio loadings of 30,477 were 1,537 cars above the preceding week but 2,158 below a year ago.

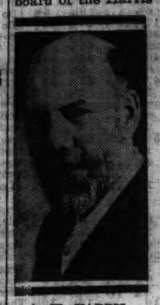
First of Modernized I. C. Coaches on St. Louis Run

The first of the 39 modernized coaches of the Illinois Central to be included in principal passenger trains of the line have been placed in service on the Daylight, Chicago-St. Louis train. It is expected that all the coaches will be placed in service before Oct. 1.

Harris Denies Banks Force Tight Credit

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Albert W. Harris, chairman of the board of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, yesterday broke the long silence that leading bankers all over the country have been maintaining in the face of New Dealers' criticism to the effect that banks are balking the administration's recovery efforts by not lending money.



A. W. HARRIS.

In a letter to the stockholders of his bank Mr. Harris stated the cause of conservative bankers generally in a simple brief statement. He spoke as a banker who feared no disaster during the depression and has asked no political favors since the moratorium.

That there might be no question about this he presented a tabulation showing how his bank had made progress in bad years as well as good, proudly pointing to the fact that his deposits have increased 65 per cent during the period ended June 30, 1934, compared with an increase of 66 per cent during the five years ended June 30, 1929.

"A bank is organized and operated to facilitate business. Banks do not make the conditions under which business is carried on, he said. "They only expedite it.

"The more business the more employment, and under conditions existing today it is desirable to stimulate business to the end that more people may be employed. It is essential that the banks of the country be in a position to facilitate business and to handle any legitimate demands for accommodations and credit whenever conditions in the business world call for it. Notwithstanding intimations to the contrary, banks are making every effort to obtain good loans."

German Plea for Credits Gets Laugh from Investors.

Dispatches from Berlin quoting Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, Germany's economic dictator and president of the Reichsbank, as saying that Germany would be glad to pay the interest on her debts to investors in the United States and other foreign countries provided she can get short term credits to buy new raw materials has given investors here one of the few good laughs they have enjoyed in many months.

In effect, what Dr. Schacht says is that if Germany can borrow more money here she will be glad to use that money to pay her debts and remove the blot on her credit caused by her default.

Germany played that same game for nearly a decade after the collapse of her currency in 1922. She borrowed here and in other foreign countries to set up a new gold reserve when she set up her new post-inflation currency in 1923. Then she borrowed more money from investors here and elsewhere to get funds to pay her reparations for several years.

Then she borrowed tens of millions more from American banks and investors to build tremendous modern apartment buildings for workers, stadia, highways, sewers and whatnot.

All this was on borrowed money. She kept borrowing enough ahead to pay interest on her mounting debts—until the whole structure crumbled. Only then did investors discover that the interest money they had been receiving came out of new loans.

Germany couldn't finance her New Deal by selling bonds to her own people in the period from 1923 through 1929, because she had already ruined them during the war by borrowing all they had and paying them back in worthless paper. So she shrewdly got foreign investors to finance it. It was great while it lasted.

Big U. S. Financing Program Watched in Financial Circles.

The treasury's forthcoming fall financing continues to be the chief topic of interest in the financial district.

As the time for the treasury's big offering of 1 billion 700 million dollars of bonds approaches market experts become more thoroughly convinced that this refinancing will be put over successfully, no matter what the obstacles.

That the treasury is a little nervous has been pretty well demonstrated. Treasury officials have gone to great pains to explore the market's receptivity to the new offering. It is generally understood that they have taken equally great pains to insure the coöperation of banks controled by the government through the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The heavy artillery also is understood to be moving into position. It has been many months since the twelve federal reserve banks have stepped into the market and supported quotations on government bonds by buying great quantities of them. It is understood, however, that they will be used again if needed.

Then there are numerous government agencies which invest their funds in government bonds, notably the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation and the postal savings. As a last resort the treasury could even buy back its own bonds through its 2 billion dollar stabilization fund. The treasury has been buying back its own bonds for months on the open market, but, as far as is known, hasn't subscribed to its own new issues.

Treasury Receives 11,574 Ounces of Silver in Week

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—The treasury today announced receipt of 11,574 ounces of silver for the week ended Aug. 31, under the executive order of last December. Silver acquired under the nationalization order of Aug. 9 was 12,301,781 ounces for the week, bringing total receipts to 71,854,841 ounces. Receipts of imported gold reached $2,753,728 with secondary gold at $1,033,869, and new domestic gold at $1,822,873.

U. S. Will Start Drive to Win Foreign Trade

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Reaching out to recapture lost European trade, the state department announced today that negotiations would begin immediately for a new reciprocal trade agreement with Belgium.

Open hearings on the treaty will be held in Washington on Oct. 29, closely following hearings on proposed agreements with Brazil and Haiti.

The trade agreement negotiations are designed to give further impetus to increasing American sales abroad. Department of commerce figures made public today showed that during the first seven months of 1934 American exports amounted to $1,197,856,915, compared with $813,438,098 during the same period in 1933.

Imports Show Decline.

Total exports in July were $161,786,571, against $144,108,767 in July, 1933. Imports during the same month were $127,341,977, against $142,980,034 last year.

Decline of Belgian-American trade and Belgium's recognition of the trade decreasing effects of tarif barriers were said to be the chief reasons for beginning negotiations with that nation, the first European country with which an agreement will be concluded.

In 1929, the peak year of American exports, goods valued at $114,854,492 were sold in Belgium, but by last year sales had dropped to $43,267,566. Imports from Belgium during the same period decreased from $74,047,843 to $23,163,235.

Chief American Imports.

Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxemburg are already signers of the Ouchy convention which was designed to bring about modification of trade restrictions with other countries as well as among themselves.

The chief American exports to Belgium are cotton, gasoline and other petroleum products, lard, wheat, oil cake, rice and other grains, leaf tobacco, copper, automobiles and trucks, typewriters, calculating machines and radios.

The principal imports from Belgium are certain kinds of cotton manufactures, woven fabrics, diamonds, fertilizers, radium salts, furs, cement, and glass.

Gets More than Share.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in its review of business affairs today, said that the commerce department's figures suggest that the United States is having more than its proportionate share in the increase in physical volume of trade among all countries.

American exports during the half year, the chamber's report said, brought 55 per cent more dollars than in the corresponding period last year, while imports cost only 40 per cent more dollars, and the physical volume of both increased.

Exports to Europe in July were approximately $6,000,000 less than in the same month last year, and the state department's negotiations with Belgium are the first to attempt to increase sales in that area. July sales in all other geographical divisions were larger than in 1933.

Rumor Pact with France.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 4.—A move toward opening formal negotiations for a Franco-American trade treaty will be made soon, it was reported in French quarters today. The French commercial attaché at the Washington embassy is now in Paris, and he has discussed the matter with the ministries concerned. It is presumed that he had conversations on the subject in Washington before he came here.

Franco-American trade relations have been governed by provisional agreements based on a reciprocal grant of most-favored-nation treatment. The absence of a formal agreement has been a constant source of annoyance both to American and French exporters and importers.

DOLLAR STEADY ON FRANC; LOWER AGAINST POUND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 4.—Rallying from a low of $4.98⅛ at the close last Saturday, the British pound rose 3½ cents here today to $5.02. The franc remained steady at 6.69½ cents.

In London the dollar dropped ⅞ cent to the pound, closing at $5.01¼. The recovery was attributed to speculative covering rather than official control.

The value of the dollar in terms of the French franc was 58.51 cents. In Paris the dollar closed at the equivalent of 6.68¾ cents to the franc after a weak opening at the equivalent of 6.70 cents.

Canadian Dollar Rises.

A gain of ⅝ cent was shown in the Canadian dollar, which closed at $1.02⅛. The German mark rose 3 points to 39.93 cents, while the lira gained 1½ points, closing at 8.71½ cents. The Dutch florin was quoted at 68.78 cents, a gain of 3 points.

The price of gold in London declined 8½ pence from the new peak yesterday of 141 shillings 7 pence to 140 shillings 10½ pence a fine ounce, or $35.26.

Movements of precious metals included a continued overflow of gold to France on exchange transactions, the arrival of 2,022,000 ounces of silver consigned to Handy & Harman, and the importation of small lots of newly mined gold from South America for resale in the United States assay office.

South America Ships Gold.

Ten packages of gold came from Cristobal consigned to the Banca Commerciale Italiana Trust company here. The metal was originally shipped from Guayaquil, Ecuador, to Cristobal, and was brought from there.

At the Banca Commerciale Italiana Trust it was said the ten packages had an aggregate value of $15,000 and that it was the product of South American mines, which found it more advantageous, on the basis of the present price of gold, to ship to New York for sale to the assay office at $35 an ounce than to export to London at greater shipping cost. The Italian bank has been receiving a series of these small gold shipments, some of which are in the form of bars and some in gold dust.

The Bank of the Manhattan company sent to Paris $2,500,000 gold, withdrawn on a treasury license covering an exchange transaction. Lazard Freres exported $2,500,000 to France.

MIDDLE WEST PLAN WILL BE READY SEPT. 20

Attempts to reorganize Middle West Utilities company are expected to languish for the next ten days or two weeks, but Robert N. Golding, attorney for the noteholders, again declared before leaving on a vacation that a plan would be ready for presentation Sept. 20, when Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson has called a hearing on the appointment of a permanent trustee.

Daniel C. Green, president of Middle West, is temporarily trustee under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy law, the lever being used in the attempted recasting of the vast holding company.

While Golding is on his vacation, Attorneys Orville Taylor and Donald F. McPherson will attempt to work out new plans acceptable to the noteholders, who have an option to buy out secured creditors for $11,340,000.

August Business Failure Total Reported as 929

Business failures in August totaled 929, against 912 in July and 1,472 in the same month last year, according to Dun & Bradstreet. With the exception of July the number of defaults was the lowest for any month since October, 1920.

U. S. TREASURY DEFICIT 475 MILLIONS FOR 1ST TWO MONTHS OF YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 4.—A deficit of $475,518,854 confronted the government on Aug. 31 at the end of the first two months of the fiscal year, treasury figures revealed today. For the two month' period expenditures reached $979,973,605, including $545,461,760 for emergency purposes. The total compared with $580,687,515 in the corresponding two months of last year. Emergency expenditures last year amounted to $214,003,518.

Government receipts for July and August were $504,455,020, against $351,002,057 the year before. The principal items were:

Source—	1934.	1933.
Income tax	$ 42,949,155	$ 27,387,024
Miscellaneous internal revenue	277,596,964	239,292,154
Processing tax	81,863,685	9,320,535
Customs receipts	42,283,407	57,771,426

The public debt at the end of August was $27,079,860,564, compared with $27,189,245,812 a month earlier and with $23,098,514,910 Aug. 31, 1933. The peak of the war debt was reached Aug. 31, 1919, with $26,596,701,648.

During July and August this year the government issued $799,961,431 in new securities, compared with $1,988,420,792 in the same period last year. Retirements were $773,242,283, compared with $1,428,478,443. The only issues of consequence this year were in treasury bills, while in July and August last year there were heavy issues of treasury notes and bonds. The treasury showed a cash balance of $2,136,676,859 at the end of August.

Several Hundred Return to Work in L. & N. Shops

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—Several hundred men returned to work in the Louisville and Nashville railroad shops here today. The men had been idle for weeks.

WHEAT REGAINS EARLY DECLINE; CORN WEAKENS

Belated Rally Ends Market Lethargy.

A last minute rally awakened grain markets from the lethargy which had gripped them most of yesterday and prices moved forward, erasing earlier losses with the exception of corn.

A break of more than 2 cents in Liverpool wheat over the American holiday resulted in an initial dip, but outstanding strength in Winnipeg, Duluth, and Minneapolis markets, plus a buoyant tone in oats, brought in sufficient buying to elevate values.

Trade was extremely small, but this factor aided the rally, as it was difficult to fill buying orders without paying small concessions. At the close December wheat was quoted at $1.04 with all wheat futures showing a range of ⅛ cent lower to ⅝ cent higher than Saturday's finish. Corn was ¾ cent lower with the exception of old September, which was unchanged to ⅛ cent improved. The December contract ended at 79⅜ cents.

Oats, Rye, and Barley Higher.

Oats rose ⅛ to ½ cent, carrying December to 52⅝ cents; rye advanced 1¼ to 1⅝ cents in one of the dullest sessions of the year, while barley moved ⅜ to ⅝ cent higher.

Winnipeg displayed an excellent tone by pushing ⅝ to ½ cent higher despite heavy hedging pressure attendant on the movement of new crop wheat to market. Liverpool closed 2 to 2¼ cents under Saturday; Buenos Aires, ¾ to 1 cent higher, and Rotterdam, ¼ to 1¼ cents lower.

Rainy weather over the week-end was paid only scant attention, although the southwest received the best moisture of the season.

Striking reflection of drouth ravages was given in the week's visible supply of wheat, which showed a decline of 257,000 bushels. Ordinarily stocks continue to pile up until late in the year before the movement falls to a point where consumption overtakes it.

Visible Supply Drops Earlier.

The drop this year is the earliest even oldest traders could recall and compares with an upturn last year of 2,672,000 bushels. It was not until Oct. 7, 1933, that the first decline was shown. The nearest approach to yesterday's trend in recent years occurred in the second week of September, 1931, when there was a decrease of 1,250,000 bushels, against 144,276,000 a year ago.

Frost and wet weather, which have retarded harvesting, aided prices in Winnipeg. Thomson & McKinnon reported that a 10 to 15 million bushel cut in yields may have been sustained in Saskatchewan from frost.

Cash markets continued strong. Premiums in Kansas City were steady to ½ cent higher and all offerings were readily absorbed.

Cash markets now reflect the strong grain situation more effectively than futures and as the season progresses may be able to swing futures prices into line.

Stocks Lower; Textile Strike Curbs Trading

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 4.—The shadow of the textile strike lay heavily on speculative Wall street today. With none able to guess the probable duration and magnitude of the tie-up, few traders were in a mood to barter the future and those that were had stocks to sell and none in mind to buy.

The result was a steady dribble of sales that caused quotations to sag to lower levels. Losses among the more volatile descriptions ran to around 2 points. Turnover fell to around 309,000 shares, making it one of the dullest five hour sessions since ante-war days.

There were other bearish factors in addition to the textile strike to inhibit speculative activity on the upside. Authoritative statistics show that business continues to decline a little instead of turning upward, as those looking forward to early autumn for traditional improvement had been hoping it would do.

Trade Reports Unfavorable.

Week-end business reports were on the whole unfavorable.

The dozen or so stocks that fill the class of leaders in ordinary markets contributed little of note to the picture today. Their range was from a small fraction to three-quarters of a point almost without exception. Some of them, including American Tobacco and Allied Chemical, did not appear on the tape until well along toward the close of the session.

Little interest was shown in any particular group. Only about half the usual number of railroad trading counters appeared on the tape at all and most of them were down from a fraction to a point or so.

Mining Group Is Dull.

Mining and other so-called inflationary issues showed as little life as the rest of the list. Fractionally lower prices were the rule.

The farm implements were heavy and the automobile stocks found lower ground.

Building shares were listless and the liquor department came in for no constructive attention.

Industrials like American Can, U. S. Steel, and Westinghouse moved in a narrow range with a tendency to easier levels.

STEEL OUTPUT FOR WEEK DROPS TO 18.4 PER CENT

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—The American Iron and Steel institute today estimated steel production for this week to be 18.4 per cent, against 19.1 per cent in the preceding week, and 25.8 per cent a month ago.

The rate is the lowest reported by the institute since the inauguration of its weekly statistics last fall and is also the minimum reported by any trade authority since the bank holiday in March, 1933.

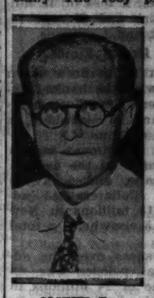
The current rate represents a decrease of .7 of a point, or 3.6 per cent from the preceding week.

KENNEDY SPOILS ROSY NEW DEAL VIEW OF TRADE

Blames Business Lag for Dull Stocks.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 4.—[Special.]—The rosy picture of business conditions which the New Dealers have been painting in recent weeks was slightly marred today by Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the securities and exchange commission, after he had conferred with President Roosevelt.



JOSEPH P. KENNEDY.

Mr. Kennedy in an interview with reporters denied that the drastic regulations of the SEC were responsible for the dullness of the present stock market and blamed the lag squarely upon general business conditions.

Regulation Is Delayed.

When asked about the present sickness of the market, Mr. Kennedy replied:

"That's not due to any regulation or intimation of a regulation the commission might place in effect. When conditions are right, the securities market will be active."

Mr. Kennedy made a report to the President on the organization and progress of the securities and exchange commission. He stated after the conference that, although the act itself became effective July 1, the regulations would not become fully effective until about Oct. 1, because of certain physical difficulties encountered in perfecting the registration of exchanges and listed securities.

One of the major difficulties, he said, was presented by the exemption of the small exchanges, which have their own group of listed securities and an unlisted department where securities listed on other exchanges are traded.

Predicts Smaller Volume.

Mr. Kennedy expressed the opinion that the volume of trading would not be as great in the future because the stock exchange control act outlaws pool operations, but he declared that upward and downward swings in the market would continue, depending upon business conditions.

After his conference with Mr. Kennedy the President had luncheon with J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and liaison man between the railways of the country and the administration. Mr. Pelley, a former vice president of the Illinois Central road, discussed the general condition of the debt burdened railways but declined to reveal what recommendations, if any, he made to the President.

These figures are interesting as illustrating the fact that our deposits have increased during a period of business decline at about the same rate they increased during a corresponding period of great business activity. The increase was 66% during the five years ended June 30, 1929, and 65% during the period ended June 30, 1934.

The continuity of our management has been maintained and our personnel has increased with the growth of the business. Our officers welcome an opportunity to discuss matters connected with investments or trusts as well as credits. Our Trust Department business with individuals has increased more than 162% in the above ten-year period. With one exception, the Investment Department up to date this year has sold to our clients more municipal bonds than in any similar period during our fifty-two years of investment service.

RESERVE BANK DEPOSITS SHOW 70 MILLION GAIN

Idle Funds Pile Up; Loans and Investments Dip.

Idle funds of federal reserve member banks continued to pile up last week as deposits moved still higher and loans and investments declined.

Gross deposits of banks in 91 leading cities of the country as of Aug. 29 gained 70 million dollars above the preceding week. New York and Chicago supplied all of the rise, 34 and 39 millions, respectively, while other centers reported a drop of 3 millions.

Individual deposits climbed 112 millions—40 here, 48 in New York, and 24 in the other cities—while interbank deposits dropped 9 millions, the banks in 89 cities showing a loss of 12 millions and New York and Chicago respective gains of 2 and 1 millions.

Government Draws Funds.

The government again drew down funds on deposit with the banks, taking 16 millions from New York institutions, 2 here, and 15 elsewhere, a net decrease of 23 millions.

Total loans and investment sagged 17 millions, slipping 7 in the eastern center, 6 in Chicago, and 4 in the other 89 banks. Collateralized advances were cut 18 millions in New York, 1 here, and 5 elsewhere, a total drop of 24 million.

Growing nervousness over the administration's fiscal policies was reflected in a decline of 24 millions in government securities held. The banks in 89 cities lopped this account 3 millions, Chicago sold 4 millions, and New York 17 millions.

Business Loans Contract.

Business loans were contracted 5 millions here, but New York expanded commercial credit 15 millions and the other banks reported a rise of 2 millions. Holdings of other than government securities gained 19 millions, rising 13 in New York, 4 in Chicago, and 2 elsewhere.

New York, Sept. 4.—Further recessions in treasury issues featured trading in bonds today, while an irregular trend developed in the domestic corporation division. Trading volume was $18,510,000, the great bulk of it being contributed by selling of government securities.

Under the pressure of persistent selling, prices of treasury liens fell away with little resistance, adding to doubt over the success of the forthcoming conversion offer, announcement of which will be made Monday.

Doubt Long Term U. S. Issue.

Recently there has been a disposition to believe that the treasury has abandoned the idea of offering a long term security in exchange for the certificates maturing on Sept. 15 and the called Fourth Liberty 4¼s, the two aggregating about $1,750,000,000. Today's market developments strengthened this belief, for the government's 3 per cent bonds sold below par. This is the issue that Washington offered last June in exchange for securities then maturing.

Long term bonds bearing a 3½ per cent coupon sold below 101, and 3¼s, due 1944 to 1946, were brought below 102. The latter is the bond for which Fourth 4¼s, called for redemption April 15 last, were exchanged.

Home Loan Bonds Drop.

Home Owners Loan 3s sold at a new record low and the 4s were at their lowest since listing on the stock exchange. Federal Farm 4¼s, likewise, were heavy. There was some indication of federal support of treasury direct obligations, but not of the guaranteed issues.

High grade railroad, utility, and industrial bonds followed no definite trend. Some were a shade higher, but an equal number sold below their Saturday's closing prices. In neither direction was there enough activity to lend significance to price change. The same was true of second grade and speculative domestic bonds.

In the foreign list the feature again was weakness in German bonds, many of which broke through their old 1934 lows. Italian 7s were weak on a few offerings. Polish 6s and 7s were heavy.

Yellow Truck and Coach.

Investors' Guide: We wish information concerning Yellow Truck and Coach. Does it manufacture all General Motors trucks?—L. S.

Answer: Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing company manufactures all General Motors trucks except Chevrolet. It is controled by General Motors corporation, but operates as an independent organization.

General pickup in industrial activity has helped earnings. Net sales for the first half of 1934 totaled $14,718,000 and net income was $272,000, which was 54 per cent of preferred dividend requirements. The company lost $1,188,000 on net sales of $7,140,000 for the first half of 1933.

	Net sales.	Net loss.	Loss per share.
1933	$19,668,000	$ 982,000	$0.97
1932	16,438,000	3,787,000	2.30
1931	26,948,000	2,762,000	1.82
1930	42,725,000	*1,115,000	*0.03

*Net income.

Current assets at the close of 1933 totaled $15,280,000 and current liabilities were $1,995,000. Profit and loss deficit was $5,428,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 150,000 shares of $100 par 7 per cent cumulative preferred on which nothing has been paid since Jan. 1, 1928, and 1,300,000 shares of $10 par class B and 800,000 shares of $10 par common. The class B and common are identical.

All classes of stock are quite speculative.

New York Trap Rock.

Investors' Guide: What information can you give me on New York Trap Rock 6s, due 1946?—P. F. K.

Answer: New York Trap Rock corporation produces crushed stone, used primarily in public works construction, mostly roads. Its five quarries are well situated with respect to dock facilities.

The poor financial condition of many municipalities and counties during the last few years has checked road building, with a consequent loss of business to New York Trap Rock.

In 1933 the company lost $192,000 before fixed charges of $328,000. In 1932 only 47 per cent of charges was earned. Charges were earned 3.39 times in 1931 and 4.64 times in 1930. In 1933 the chairman received a salary of $52,650 and the president received $56,700.

The company defaulted on June 1, 1933, sinking fund requirements of the first 6s and the debenture 7s. The $4,793,000 first 6s, due 1946, are secured by a first mortgage on all fixed assets and the $466,000 debenture 7s, due Dec. 1, 1936, are unsecured. The first 6s are speculative and the debenture 7s more so.

PRICES OF LIVE STOCK RECEDE; RECEIPTS RISE

Cool Weather, Demand for Pork Aid Hogs.

Live stock markets were put to a test yesterday under some of the heaviest receipts of the year. The biggest increases were in cattle and calves, and a big proportion of the arrivals in these two departments consisted of government owned stock shipped in from the drouth regions. Hog receipts were comparatively small, and sheep supplies were not far from normal following the two day holiday.

Prices were pressed lower in all branches, but considering the size of the total arrivals of meat animals, the decline was mild. Hogs were down only 10 cents on the average and showed only a 25 cent loss, compared with the high spot of the year last Wednesday.

Of the 29,000 hogs received here yesterday, 15,000 were billed direct to packers from other points, leaving 14,000 on the market to sell.

Pay Up to $10.

Packers paid $9.90 to $10.00 for the bulk of the best grades of 190 to 300 pound averages, including the tax, for which the market price to the farmer was $7.65 to $7.75, only 20 to 25 cents under the high spot of the year. A few scattered lots of prime light and medium weight butchers cost packers $10.05 and $10.10, while the general average figured $9.55, including the $2.25 tax. Packing sows that cost the buyers $9.00 to $9.50 returned the farmer $6.75 to $7.25.

Combined receipts of all kinds of stock at the leading markets were among the largest on record for this season of the year. Chicago and several of the outside markets were closed Monday, but a number remained open. Seven of the principal points handled a combined total of 496,000 cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep on Monday and yesterday, as against 480,000 a week ago and 299,000 a year ago. Chicago alone had 38,000 cattle yesterday, the largest one day run since 1926.

Corn Fed Stock Firm.

Best grades of corn fed stock held firm, while others declined 25 cents in most cases, with some spots off more. A string of 40 steers averaging 1,291 pounds topped the price list at $10.80, within 10 cents of the year's top. The bulk sold at $7.00 to $10.00, with comparatively little except ill bred grassy stock below $6.00. A few of these ranged downwards to $3.00 to $4.00.

The "upper crust" of the supply of cows and hefers maintained a fully steady price basis. Fair to good cows sold largely at $3.25 to $4.00, but the best "fed" stock ranged upwards to $6.00 and odd head of smooth kinds in a class by themselves sold as high as $7.00. Canners brought $1.75 to $2.35 and cutters sold at $2.50 to $3.00.

The 18,000 sheep and lambs in the Chicago run yesterday cashed at fully steady prices, city butchers getting hand picked natives up to $7.00, while packers bought the bulk of the natives and westerns at $6.75 and under. Buck lambs sold at $5.75 and below, with the cull natives at $5.00 and under.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was quiet today. A sale was reported of 3,500 bags of Cuba from store at Norfolk to an outport refiner at 2.86c, or 11 points above the last sale of Cuba, but there was nothing firmly offered from first hands. At the same time refiners showed no general buying interest, with the trade at large more or less confused by the announcement that a decree had been issued in Cuba calling for the fixing of prices at which Cuban sugar be sold to the United States. In the meantime there was a disposition to await further details of the decree before making fresh commitments. Futures were nervous and price movements irregular, owing to the reported Cuban decree for the fixing of daily prices. It was also reported that efforts would also be made to include in the price regulation all Cubas held in bond here. Just how this was to be accomplished was not revealed, but it had an unsettling effect and prices moved rather feverishly with the market closing 1 point higher to 1 point net lower. Sales were 37,500 tons. Prices:

There was no change in the refined market with refiners listing at 4.75c and second hands available at around 4.70c. A continued good withdrawal demand was reported, but new business was only moderate and supplied through second hands.

HAROLD TEEN—SHADOW IS IN THE MONEY

MEN

GET THE MOST OUT OF LIFE!

There is nothing that hinders the joy of living so much as dissatisfaction with a job. Thousands of men go to work each day saying, "If I could only get another job." This frame of mind breaks down a man's character, it smothers his real ambitions and produces a marked inferiority complex. He becomes an automaton, blindly, searching for an "out." After all, a man spends nearly all of his life at his job. He spends more time there than with his loved ones—because he has to. He has got to earn money to keep his home—to keep himself in a way you can't blame a man for hesitating when it comes to looking for a different job—a position that will keep him happy and prosperous.

But the trouble with most men is THEY DON'T KNOW WHERE TO LOOK! Or else they haven't sufficient visualization to realize the possibilities that can be offered by our international organization. This company, which employs one of the largest groups of salesmen in the world, presents an opportunity. You don't have to visualize the benefits and possibilities—because this product is so well known in this country and all over the world that it is even used by the United States Government. It is approved by the United States Bureau of Standards. It plays an important part in the lives of our home. This scientific accomplishment has made our lives a healthier and happier existence! It has to do with cleanliness, health, air-conditioning and heat. The power of electricity has made possible the invention! But—IT IS NOT A LUXURY OR A NOVELTY. It is a necessity. It's priced to sell in these times.

Now—can you visualize the future this job holds—can you visualize the earnings that are possible? This is a life job. We need a few men who want a little more out of life than just an ordinary existence. If you are ambitious you do not need selling experience. We can take raw material and we can train them to do this job successfully. SELL OUR PRODUCTS. Sell them the way these newcomers did the last few months, most of them without any selling experience.

Doctors, lawyers, pharmacists, carpenters, ministers, grocers, clerks—men from all walks of life have joined this huge organization and have made in one month remarkable records of earnings like these in our national organization.

Dean	916	Ebert	767
Doerzler	1,200	Laier	1,861

Demers	1,313	Connor	1,271
Harvier	1,498	Hutto	1,600
Managoli	1,798	Mahan	1,401

These commissions and bonus made by these men. All that we ask is that you be clean cut, honest and above all ambitious! And while you are here, talk to the men who are working for us now, men who in a short space of time have risen from the ranks to executive, supervisory and managerial positions. Judge for yourself if these are happy, contented and making money and then see if this is the job you have always wanted. Remember, you are practically your own boss: we furnish the capital and the training. The rest is up to you. If you have the determination, you will make a success.
